UN Chief Fears General War

Breathing Spell Asked by Thant

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—UN Secretary-General U Thant reported to the Security Council today that he feared a clash between Israel and Egypt over Israeli shipping through the Strait of Tiran would "inevitably set off a general conflict" in the Middle East.

He gave that estimate in a six-page report to the 15-country council, of which Canada is a member.

The report followed his talk with President Nasser in Cairo early this week.

Thant called for "a breathing spell which will allow tension to subside from its present explosive level." He urged all parties to exercise restraint to let the Security Council deal with the underlying causes of the situation.

The secretary - general said that in his talk with Nasser Wednesday night, Nasser repeated the Egyptian position "substantially as set forth" in his Monday night speech, in which Nasser announced a blockade of Israeli shipping through the Strait of Tiran connecting with the Gulf of Aqaba and the Israeli port of Elath.

COULD MEAN WAR

Thant told the council Israel had declared that it would regard the closing of the straits to Israel ships as a casus belli, or cause for war.

"The decision of the government of the United Arab Republic to restrict shipping in the Strait of Tiran, of which I learned while en route to Cairo, has created a new situation . . ., he said.

"While in Cairo, I called to the attention of the United Arab Republic the dangerous consequences which could ensue from restricting innocent passage of ships in the Strait of Tiran.

"I expressed my deep concern

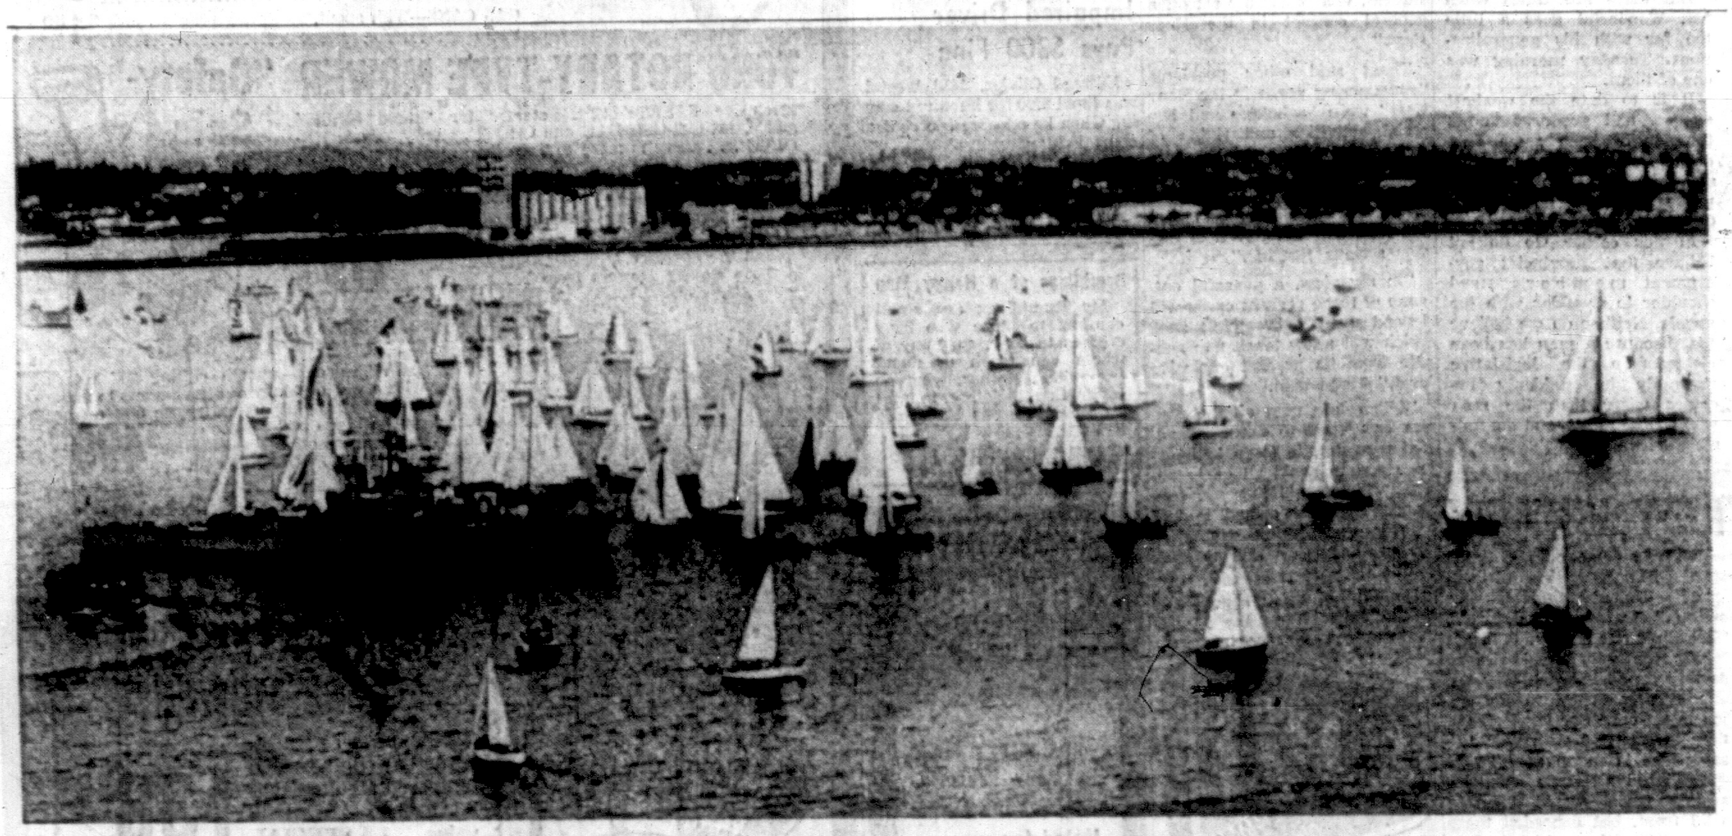
UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The United Arab Republic today requested an urgent meeting of the Security Council on the Middle East. It did not specify when the council should meet.



Who Is Fleetest in Fleet? Only Breezes Know

Now is the hour and the largest fleet of yachts ever to compete in Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca contests have spread their wings. The first swarm of racing craft began their journey in light winds and haze, at 9:30 a.m. This Vancouver Island Helicopter view shows vessels hovering like gulls about HMCS Beacon Hill, their official guardian. This week-end culminates a year of tension for the 120 skippers. Time limit is 50 hours. Then the tension builds again for next year's Swiftsure over the same 136-mile course. Swiftsure Trophy is top prize. (Times photo by Strickland.)

RACE STARTS SLOWLY

By TERRY IZZARD

It could go down in history as "THE RACE THAT NEVER WAS."

The 26th annual Swiftsure classic will go down in history anyway because it got off to such a slow start.

For the first time since 1930, boats sailed over the starting line with spinnakers set to catch every ounce of wind. They barely billowed.

And 136 miles stretched ahead.

Last year several yachts were damaged by heavy winds. The 1967 start lacked this peril.

Winds were east to southeast at a mere four to five miles an hour.

To make matters worse, one of the heaviest flood tides this year greeted the record number of boats shortly after noon.

Unless the wind strengthens, the boats will have to sit out the worst of the tide for up to eight hours at William Head or Pedder Bay.

●

If the worst comes to the worst—and it's never happened to date—the winner may never make it in the 50-hour time limit.

In this case the first boat to the turning point 68 miles out would be declared the winner.

In the case of the shorter Juan de Fuca race, it would be the first boat to Clallam Bay, in Washington, 38 miles away.

When the starter's gun boomed from the decks of the Beacon Hill, off Brotchie Ledge at 9:30, the 49-foot sloop Mary Bower—first over the finish line last year—nipped into the lead.

Hot or her heels was the 47-foot sloop Hussy skippered by R. Page of Seattle, with the 26-foot sloop Moea of West Vancouver in third place.

At press time the Mary Bower, skippered by John Long of Vancouver, was still in first place.

McGUGAN

LIQUOR PRICES TAKE JUMP —SO DOES McGUGAN SALARY

The provincial cabinet Friday approved a completely new liquor price list which will add about a dime on the average to a bottle of spirits or wine.

The new list goes into effect June 1 and will replace thousands of printed copies of a consolidation issued to LCB stores in April.

The cabinet also raised LCB chairman Col. Donald McGugan's salary to $19,500 by giving him his second $1,000 increase within a year.

The price increases are scattershot rather than uniform, with no apparent reasons for increases of from five to 55 cents, decreases in a very few lines of up to 10 cents and no change in a minority of the 1,500 items on the list.

On the whole, rye whisky has gone up about 15 cents a bottle but there are wide variations among individual brands. Rums went up a nickel a bottle in the majority of cases as did gins.

Many imported Scotch lines escaped increases—they were boosted heavily during the past year—but a few were raised 10 cents

Canadian wines showed numerous increases although a Port Moody winery's products were almost untouched while those of an Okanagan winery were raised in most lines, ranging from five cents for the pints to 25 cents for the gallon sizes.

Some imported wines were raised from five to 40 cents but many were unchanged. Imported beer and ale was untouched and there were no changes in Canadian brews.

Aldous Issues Denial Ferry Buy Bad Deal

B.C. Ferry Authority manager M. F. Aldous today denied a suggestion the crown corporation was "slickered" in purchasing a second-hand ship in Quebec.

Mr. Aldous denied reports that it is paying more than the ferry cost five years ago, when it was sold at a second-hand price.

And he denied it was sold by its last owners because it proved too costly to operate.

CONTRADICTION

"That isn't so," said Mr. Aldous in replying to a Canadian Press report quoting a spokesman for North-South Company, the last owners.

The company spokesman said the ship cost the company $1.2 million five years ago when acquired from a Lake Michigan service. Now it has been sold to the B.C. ferry authority for $1.69 million.

The company spokesman also stated in Montreal, according to the CP report, the ferry had been sold because operation of the vessel had proven too expensive.

He said the expense was involved in the annual replacement of rivets which was necessary after operation in salt water between Rimouski and Baie Comeau for five years.

"That also isn't factual," said Mr. Aldous. He said the ferry was sold because it was too large for winter traffic on the former service.

CALLED SCANDAL

The Canadian Press report also stated that Maurice Tessier, Liberal member of the Quebec Legislature for Rimouski, charged the sale of the ferry was a scandal.

Mr. Tessier said the ship had been paid for with public funds and he criticized the Quebec government for letting North-South Company pocket the $1.69 million received from B.C.

Mr. Tessier, mayor of Rimouski, and a former secretary-treasurer of the North-South firm, said the law required the government to name an administrator to take charge of the ferry company when it entered Quebec public service.

Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson said his government could not have intervened because the law did not apply.

The North - South Company spokesman said the ferry purchase had been paid for out of federal subsidies of $300,000 paid annually. And since 1962 the provincial government had paid $200,000 toward the original cost.

Mr. Aldous said he could not comment at length but after reading the CP account, he discounted the whole story. He said none of the details listed were in accord with the information the B.C. negotiators had received.

Last May 5, Premier Bennett said the ferry, presently named the Pere Nouvel, was worth $5 to $6 million.

"This was a tremendous bargain," he said. "This is a business government. Anytime we can get a value like this, we will take it. We are the trustees of the peoples' money and it is our responsibility to make the best possible deal."

Exchange Gunfire

SEOUL (AP)—South Korean naval vessels exchanged fire with North Korean shore batteries and patrol craft for 20 minutes today off Korea's west coast, the South Korean navy said. The South Korean side claimed it suffered no casualties.

4 Africans Killed

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesian government security men shot and killed four Negroes in a gunfight about 140 miles west of here Friday night, the government announced today. It said one of the government men was wounded.

War Tempo Up Across Viet In U.S. Drive

SAIGON (AP)—The U.S. command reported powerful new assaults on North Vietnamese troops today in the northern border provinces of South Vietnam. American jets smashed again at North Vietnam's MiG airfields and a power plant inside Haiphong.

The raids cost the United States one navy Skyhawk jet Friday, the 561st plane downed over North Vietnam. Returning pilots said one surface - to - air missile exploded 2,500 feet over the Kua Kam River and showered debris on a merchant ship moored in Haiphong. The nationality of the ship was not known.

Both on the ground and in the air, the war appeared to be mounting in tempo.

U.S. marines and North Vietnamese soldiers were locked in a fierce fight for Hill 117 just inside the demilitarized zone.

Heavy fighting was reported in the three northernmost provinces of South Vietnam.

The South Vietnamese sent more than 1,000 soldiers, supported by armored vehicles, on a sweep today just outside the ancient city of Hue, capital of Thua Thien province.

Within three miles, the South Vietnamese hit about 500 Viet Cong guerrillas and fought a three-hour battle, with air and artillery support. Sixty guerrillas were reported killed.

'We Will Destroy Israel'

CAIRO (CP) — Tension in the Middle East was at the crisis point again today after a declaration by President Gamal Abdel Nasser that Egypt will wage a war of annihilation against Israel if fighting breaks out.

Nasser said there would be a full-scale battle if Israel made any aggressive move against Syria or Egypt.

"Our aim will be to destroy Israel . . . . If we entered into battle, we would be confident of victory," he said in a speech broadcast throughout the Middle East by Radio Cairo.

Israeli foreign ministry officials said in Jerusalem Friday night that the Gulf of Aqaba, barred by Egypt to vessels carrying strategic supplies to Israel, must be reopened and that the time for this is running out.

They said Israel is not delivering an ultimatum or setting a time limit, but time is crucial in the matter.

Nasser's close friend, editor Mohammed Hassen Haykal, wrote in his Cairo newspaper Al Ahram Friday that war with Israel is inevitable.

Heykal said Israel is bound to start fighting because it is vital to it that ships be able to pass through the gulf.

Nasser said he knows his blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba could lead to war with Israel and, if war does come, the

7 Israelis Wounded

BEERSHEBA, Israel (UPI)—An official communique said tonight an Israeli halftrack truck was blown up by an Egyptian anti-vehicle mine on the southern Gaza Strip border.

Seven or eight Israeli soldiers were believed wounded in the incident which the military communique said occurred at 11:15 a.m.

According to the communique, the explosion occurred near Kere-Shalom, a settlement on the southern Gaza Strip border opposite Rafa.

It was the first incident in the Gaza Strip reported by Israel since evacuation more than a week ago by UN emergency forces touched off the crisis.

DIPLOMATS DOUBT NARROW STRAIT MINED

War of Nerves: Let Other Side Guess

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. experts say Egyptian mines in the narrow opening to the Gulf of Aqaba could be used selectively against Israeli ships while permitting routine passage of other vessels.

Officials who have studied the history and technique of naval blockades give that assessment amid a multitude of rumors here over whether Egypt has mined the Strait of Tiran, as claimed by a Cairo newspaper.

U.S. officials said they don't know whether the strait has been mined. Egyptian diplomats privately expressed their doubts, but some Israeli diplomats claimed to have intelligence reports confirming partial mining of the strait.

Egyptian diplomats decline to confirm or deny the reported mining.

This, it is acknowledged, is part of the war of nerves: Let the other side guess. The same tactic was used by both Egyptians and Israelis several years ago when the question came up as to whether the two were secretly making nuclear weapons.

Privately, Egyptian diplomats said they doubt mines were placed in the strait.

There is no need for them, they said, because it would be easy to control the narrow, 300-yard-wide navigable passage by deploying a few warships or with a few guns mounted on the plateau of Ras Nasrani, a hilly peninsula dominating the mouth of the strait.

Experts say there are two ways of using mines to achieve a selective blockade.

One is to lay mines according to a predetermined pattern with only the country that placed them knowing the zigzag route through the minefield. The same country then would provide pilots to guide any vessel that received permission to pass through.

Such a minefield could easily be deployed in the Red Sea at the mouth of the strait, but not in the narrow strait.

The other method would be to use mines that can be set off electrically from some observation point on the mainland.

Egypt is understood to have placed artillery on Ras Nasrani when its troops moved in after the departure of the United Nations force earlier this week.

They can be trained on the navigation lane about 1,000 yards from the shore.

Some o' them Swiftsure boats must be waitin' fer Chichester t' catch up.

Comparisons Odious, Particularly This One

By JIM HUME

There are times when we wonder about the Hon. Dan Campbell, minister of municipal affairs.

Last Tuesday Mr. Campbell addressed the annual convention of the B.C. Association of Municipal officers, a rugged group of down to earth administrators.

Hume

During his speech Mr. Campbell said many municipalities in the province are creaking at the seams and couldn't be trusted to spend large amounts of money wisely.

He put it just about as bluntly as that, too.

The implication was that at the municipal level, administrators, elected or hired, were of the village pump mentality and couldn't really be trusted with serious expenditures, just a little too thick between the ears to be given much authority.

While there may be some merit to that charge, it doesn't bear examination at close range.

Take a look at just a few of the municipal leaders in our own backyard and — as bluntly as Mr. Campbell — compare them with the MLAs or cabinet ministers we know, who choose to serve at the municipal level.

In Victoria we have Mayor Hugh Stephen, a man who quite successfully operated a million-dollar business for many years. He was operating that business with all its complexities while Mr. Campbbell was teaching school.

Nothing wrong with school teachers (well, not much, anyway) but I don't think there is too much doubt as to who would be the more experienced administrator.

In Oak Bay and Esquimalt we have Reeves Allan Cox and Ray Bryant, barristers by profession. Their years in law school and private practice give them quite an edge when it comes to facing administrative problems.

In Saanich there's Reeve Hugh Curtis who operates successfully in the world of radio and is no slouch when leadership and balanced thinking are required.

Out in the rural areas there are Reeves Gordon Lee, Central Saanich, and Jim Cumming, North Saanich. Knowing both men well I'd back them so far as intelligence, integrity and wise administration go, against 80 per cent of the provincial cabinet.

A little further afield we have Reeve Allan Emmott of Burnaby, Mayor Joseph Palyga of Trail, Mayor Maurice P. Finnerty of Penticton. The list could go on and on and the comparison between these men and senior government administrators could only grow more odious.

There may well be, in some of the remoter areas of the province, municipal councils which lack responsible leadership. But they don't come readily to my mind, neither would they come readily to Mr. Campbell's mind.

At the municipal level, uncluttered as it is by rigid party lines, we have a much better level of administrative government than the provincial government can ever hope to have.

On other occasions in this column I have stated that I have a great deal of respect for Mr. Campbell. There is no reason to change that opinion now.

But there are times when Mr. Wonderful goes a little too far with his generalizations. Tuesday morning was one of them.

It is to date the weakest excuse, and goodness knows there have been some dandies, for the government's steadfast refusal to loosen its purse strings to help British Columbia municipalities.

In this corner we do not believe that provincial government members stand shoulder to shoulder with the angels. Neither do we believe that because a man has been elected to the legislative assembly he suddenly becomes wiser than the men who choose to serve at the municipal level.

. . . 'DESTROY ISRAEL'

Arabs will set out to destroy the Jewish state.

Israel was reported avoiding an immediate challenge to the announced blockade of its direct route for Iranian oil and other cargoes from the east. But it has said it will fight to keep the gulf open.

In Washington, President Johnson met Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban Friday night.

Foreign Minister Eban said in Paris today he received support from the United States government for free access by all shipping to the Straits of Tiran.

He told reporters during a brief stopover here on his return to Tel Aviv from Washington that "in Washington I noted the praticularly firm and vigorous feelings of those responsible for American policy in favor of free access to the Straits of Tiran by ships of all nationalities without distinction of flag or cargo."

The Soviet Union has called on the United States and other Western countries to restrain Israel from a thrust against the Arabs.

A test of Egyptian control measures over the Strait of Tiran, at the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba, was possible today—but not by an Israeli ship.

FREIGHTER ENROUTE

A Danish freighter, the Estelle Maersk, was due at the Jordanian port of Aqaba, two miles from Israel's gulf port of Elath, and it was the first ship since the blockade was announced to head for Aqaba without first going through the Suez Canal.

The canal bars shipping to Israel and four other ships that have come to Aqaba in the last three days already had been checked by Egypt when they entered Suez.

The skipper of one of these four, the West German freighter Stolzenfels, said Friday night he saw no physical sign of a blockade in the Strait of Tiran.

Al Ahram had reported that Egyptian authorities in the strait had stopped and searched the Stolzenfels. It also said Egypt had mined the strait.

The American freighter Green Island also was expected at Aqaba, but the Egyptian Middle East news agency said that on orders from the U.S. consul at Port Said, the Green Island changed course for an Ethiopian port. The U.S. embassy denied any knowledge of the reported change.

Nasser's speech came after Al Ahram, which often reflects Nasser's political thinking, said Egypt had achieved its objectives against Israel and that war would come only if Israel started it.

"The United States is our enemy," Nasser declared. "Britain is our enemy. Both are taking sides with Israel. So long as they support Israel, they are our enemies. When we are trying to exercise our legal rights, they threaten us with war and say peace is endangered."

He hoped all Arab countries around Israel would form a solid front, but conceded there were difficulties with Jordan, Israel's eastern neighbor.

Al Ahram reported that Israel had 72,000 troops facing the Egyptian army across the Sinai Desert and 16,000 on the border with Syria.

No Break Showing In Nurse Crisis

Talks continued this morning between leaders of the psychiatric nurses and the B.C. Civil Service Commission.

But no break appeared in the deadlock with about 800 nurses due to resign next Friday at government mental hospitals.

Asked whether they are optimistic or pessimistic, the nurses' leaders replied "we're neutral".

They met for 2½ hours Friday with the acting minister of health, Dan Campbell, and then met for three hours in the evening with the Civil Service Commission.

Late Friday, Dwight Wenham, executive secretary of the Psychiatric Nurses Association of B.C., said "there was no definite agreement on any point but there seems to be recognition on both sides there is a genuine problem and a genuine concern to resolve it."

Mr. Campbell said he told the nurses delegation it has a choice between "a professional solution to their problem and those tactics which are not narmally associated with professional groups."

The nurses want binding arbitration of differences on wages and working conditions but say the commission has refused to discuss some points not covered in the Civil Service Act.

In public advertisements, the nurses association said the request for binding arbitration was refused, but such arbitration was available to federal civil servants, municipal employees, general hospital workers, teachers, policemen and fire-fighters.

They say that dog catchers, laborers and untrained orderlies make more money than they do.

Meanwhile, Mr. Campbell—who announced one week ago emergency plans are being prepared in the event of a mass resignation—said all patients who can be released to their homes will be.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

An intense Pacific storm north of the weather ship is drifting slowly towards the Gulf of Alaska, where it will weaken. Intermittent rain associated with a disturbance which has moved out of the storm centre will reach the lower mainland early this afternoon. The disturbance will weaken on crossing the coastal mountains with little or no rain anticipated for the interior. Behind it showers will persist along the coast but some clearing should occur in the interior. Lower temperatures are also expected for most areas behind the disturbance.

in this regard and my hope that no precipitate action would be taken."

Thant said there was no interference with shipping in the strait in the 10 years the UN Emergency Force was stationed nearby. But he now is pulling the force out by U.A.R. demand.

Thant declined to enter into the merits of the legal dispute in which Israel says the Strait is international waters and Egypt says it is territorial waters.

WANTS TIME

"At this critical juncture," he said, "I feel that my major concern must be to try to gain time in order to lay the basis for a detente relaxation of tension.

"The important fact is that in view of the conflicting stands taken by the United Arab Republic and Israel, the situation in the Strait of Tiran represents a very serious potential threat to peace.

"I greatly fear that a clash between the United Arab Republic and Israel over this issue, in the present circumstances, will inevitably set off a general conflict in the Near East."

Thant said other problems "endangering peace in the Near East" were "sabotage and terrorist activities and rights of cultivation in disputed areas in the demilitarized zone between Israel and Syria." He added that these "will, unless controlled, most surely lead to further serious fighting."

"In my view, a peaceful outcome of three present crisis will depend upon a breathing spell which will allow tension to subside from its present explosive level," Thant said.

"I therefore urge all the parties concerned to exercise special restraint, to forgo belligerance and to avoid all other actions which could increase tension, to allow the council to deal with the underlying causes of the present crisis and to seek solutions."

He did not refer specifically to the situation on the Egypt-Israeli line, which his report to the council a week ago called the most menacing since the invasion year 1956.

But he said both Nasser and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad "assured me that the United Arab Republic would not initiate offensive action against Israel."

"Their general aim, as stated to me, was for a return to the conditions prevailing prior to 1956 and to full observance by both parties of the general armistice agreement between Egypt and Israel," he said.

WANTS ISRAEL TO JOIN

Thant recalled that in his previous report he suggested that Israel resume participation in the Egypt-Israel Mixed Armistice Commission, set up under the 1949 armistice agreement to investigate complaints of violation of the agreement.

"I suggest that the council consider this possible approach during its search for ways out of the present crisis," he said. "This form of United Nations presence could to some extent fill the vacuum left by the withdrawal of UNEF."

BRITISH HOLD FAST IN HONG KONG

'Peephole' Worth Humiliation

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Barring an irrational, emotional upheaval, Britain believes China has too much to lose to boot the British out of their half-owned, half-rented colony of Hong Kong.

Despite the threats, demonstrations, strikes and bitter diplomatic humiliation, British authorities intend to hold fast to the string of islands and their rewarding possessions.

The profits of Hong Kong work both ways. The cheap labor of a population estimated at 3,800,000, combined with vast British investments, provide textiles, clothing, footwear and other products that compete easily around the world.

Much of the earnings by Hong Kong industrialists and consumers are channelled to China through food and other purchases. As much as $600,000,000 a year in foreign exchange is obtained by China this way.

British authorities concede the Chinese could throttle the Hong Kong administration in a day. But if the investors, traders, industrialists and skilled technicians escape, taking some of their capital and equipment with them, the morsels left would make a poor supper.

Hong Kong has been under British rule for more than a century. It provides a peephole to the aberration of the mainland and gives the Chinese a window to the Western world. Much of it was ceded by China to Britain in the Nanking Treaty of 1842, but part of the mainland and numerous islands also came under British rule under a 99-year lease signed in June, 1898.

★

Into this leased area have been poured investments in market gardening, numerous light industries and new water reservoirs without which the colony could not survive.

Renewal of the lease must be done at the will of the Chinese.

But in 30 years there likely will be much change in the Chinese leadership and perhaps even in its policies.

More than 90 per cent of the Hong Kong population is Chinese. Most of it is law abiding. Authorities suggest the current unrest is caused by a relatively small body of Maoists who stired up trouble to get the attention of the bigshots in Peking.

The crackdown certainly caught Peking's eye and the suffering and humiliation of British diplomats in Shanghai and Peking seemed to be ample proof of the low value China placed on British diplomatic relations.

★

Nevertheless, Britain intends to bear the humiliation without retreat. It would rather be watching inside China than be outside and not know what is going on.

As for Hong Kong, officials feel the worst is over; that while the Maoists likely will continue to cause sporadic trouble, law and order will prevail.

Ragged Marine Staggers Home, Lost 9 Days

PORT COQUITLAM (CP) — A ragged U.S. Marine Corps private staggered out of rugged bushland north of this Vancouver suburb late Friday, after nine days alone in the wilderness.

Andrew Hickman, a private first class in the Marines who hails from Vancouver, was found by a caretaker for the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority. He was reported in satisfactory condition, despite going without solid food for several days.

Pte. Hickman, 20, said in an interview later the thing that worried him most was the fact that he was three days overdue in returning to his unit at Camp Pendleton, Calif., near San Diego.

"I'm glad it's all over," he said from the home of his aunt and uncle here. "I'm okay now. My only real problem was hunger. I didn't have anything to eat after the first day.

"Now my main concern is to notify my unit at Camp Pendleton—my furlough ran out last Tuesday. I expect to catch a plane and join the outfit Monday."

Pte. Hickman left here May 17 on an overnight hike into the area between Buntezen and Coquitlam lakes. His troubles started when he slipped and fell into a mountain crevice.

He was not seriously injured in the fall, but it was getting dark. He lost his bearings and decided to spend the night on a slippery ledge nearby.

The Marine private spent the next day searching for a way out of the area but he was unsuccessful. He built lean-to shelters at night and wandered around in circles for the next several days.

On Wednesday he scaled Eagle Mountain and pinpointed Coquitlam Lake. He started out for it Thursday morning and and made it Friday afternoon. He was found wandering in the vicinity of the lake by caretaker John Blake.

Port Coquitlam RCMP, using two tracking dogs, a helicopter and civilian volunteers, started a full-scale search last week.

The numbers of searchers climbed to almost 60 last weekend, and RCMP continued checking each day with hydro crews and other persons in the area for a sign of the missing man.

EVERYWHERE THAT LULU WENT . . .

It's $20 a Call For Little Lulu

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lulu, the pint-sized dog of Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, is the darling of CNR porters from coast to coast.

The dog, which accompanied the emperor on a recent nine-day tour across Canada, had a tendency for fast, fast relief of internal pressures, tour officials said Friday.

Every time Lulu answered nature's call, a train porter received a $20 tip for keeping the train corridors clean.

The CNR's royal coach wasn't the only target for the tiny male with the female name.

Other victims: Carpeting at Victoria's exclusive Union Club, Government House in Victoria, Winnipeg's Union Station and fire hydrants across the nation.

At the Union Club, it happened during a government luncheon for the 75-year-old emperor. When the luncheon started, Lulu disappeared and a search began.

A major-general found the dog asleep under the back seat of the Imperial car and brought him into the club. Doubtless feeling some discomfort after his snooze, Lulu promptly left his mark.

At Government House, where the emperor was the guest of Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, Lulu was followed constantly by a maid with an ammonia-soaked cloth.

On the train that took Selassie to Expo 67 in Montreal, porters drew $20 tips for services rendered.

In Winnipeg, Lulu missed the train because he was busy leaving signs all over Union Station.

When the emperor missed his pet, the emergency cord was pulled and the train's trans-continental voyage was halted while a courier was dispatched back to Winnipeg to get the dog.

Tour officials forgave Lulu all his depredations when the dog showed an uncanny ability to pick out the emperor's limousine at the various tour stops, always heading straight for it.

A spokesman said the Winnipeg incident was the only delay the Chihuahua-sized dog caused on the entire visit—"and that was due only to overzealousness."

HAMILTON:

'I'm a Clear Alternative'

OTTAWA (CP)—Alvin Hamilton offered himself and his economic up-draft policies to the Conservative party Friday—formally entering the party's leadership race.

"I'm a clear alternative to every one else," the 55-year-old former agriculture and northern affairs minister said at a press conference.

He informed party leader John Diefenbaker of his plans Thursday night, shortly after a 30-minute conference with Mr. Diefenbaker and former finance minister Donald Fleming who is the object of a draft-Fleming movement.

"I haven't asked any endorsation and he hasn't volunteered any," Mr. Hamilton said about his meeting with Mr. Diefenbaker, whose own intentions about the leadership remain in doubt.

IN TO STAY

But even if Mr. Diefenbaker is in the running at the convention in Toronto Sept. 6-9, Mr. Hamilton said he's in the race to stay.

Mr. Hamilton, MP for Qu'Appelle and long regarded as one of the main idea men in Conservative efforts to reshape policy after their 1963 election defeat, joins a lengthy list of others seeking to succeed Mr. Diefenbaker.

Former justice minister Davie Fulton, former trade minister Geroge Hees, Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon of Toronto, also a former trade minister, and John McLean, Brockville businessman, already have declared themselves.

On the horizon as other possible candidates are Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba, party president Dalton Camp and Mr. Fleming.

STATES PREFERENCE

Mr. Camp has said he prefers Mr. Roblin or Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia, whose government seeks re-election Tuesday, or Premier John Robarts of Ontario. The latter two premiers have declared they have no intention of running.

Mr. Hamilton made it plain that he thinks the party needs a man who is in the Commons, as are he, Mr. Fulton and Mr. Hees. The leader must not only be able to help his candidates get elected but be able to make constructive Commons speeches and, at times, hit the government with all weapons.

"Until you meet that test, you are buying a pig in a poke," Mr. Hamilton said.

Without identifying the men by name, he said that in the last three years he approached several with Mr. Diefenbaker's approval, trying to get them to come to the Commons so the party would have a wider choice of proven material.

RULED OUT

He said that he doesn't think any of them could do the job today.

With Mr. Fulton and Mr. Hees running what look like costly campaigns, Mr. Hamilton said the big question is whether enthusiasm and dedication can match the expensive techniques of American-style leadership campaigning.

He said he sees the next election being fought on Liberal plans for a guaranteed annual income for all of around $3,500 plus commercial union with the United States endorsed last fall by the Liberal convention.

Life Sentence For Raping Six-Year-Old

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A Coquitlam man was sentenced Friday to life in prison for raping a six-year-old girl last Dec. 6.

Charles Davi Gary Head, 21, received the term from Mr. Justice George Gregory of Victoria after pleading guilty.

Head also received a 10-year term for the attempted rape of a nine-year-old Surrey girl in a gravel pit last Nov. 8 and five years for indecently assaulting a nine-year-old New Westminster girl in Burnaby Jan. 16.

In a second case, Mr. Justice Gregory imposed a five-year sentence and five strokes of the paddle on Burnaby fireman Norman Robert Plamer, 31, of Surrey, who pleaded guilty last week to indecently assaulting a six-year-old girl in Surrey last Nov. 3.

Jail Escapee Back For Extra 6 Months

A man who escaped from William Head prison last month was sentenced to a six-month term Friday.

Lloyd Arnouse, 27, of Chase, B.C., was caught in Nanaimo by RCMP officers eight days after he walked out of William Head minimum security prison April 25.

He pleaded guilty in central court of escaping lawful custody and being unlawfully at large and received concurrent terms. A charge of possession of stolen property against him was dismissed.

Arnouse was serving a three-year sentence for auto theft at the time he escaped, court was told.

A man the Crown claims escaped with Arnouse was committed for trial before a judge at the conclusion of a preliminary hearing Friday.

Clarence Dennis, 25, charged with escaping custody, being unlawfully at large, and breaking into a Colwood drive-in restaurant, had pleaded not guilty and elected trial by a higher court.

The Long-Term Policy

IN A SPEECH AT WHITEHORSE, Mr. Jack Davis, the Liberal member of parliament for Coast-Capilano, reviewed Canada's enviable position as a possessor of natural resources and came out with some striking advice as to how we should develop and sell these great assets. His words make a lot of sense to anyone concerned about the future of our country and its emergence as one of the outstanding producers of the world.

Mr. Davis rightly feels, for instance, that among our trade goals two considerations should be kept in mind. One, in selling raw materials we should always charge as much as the traffic will bear; and secondly, that the ultimate objective of our trading policy should be to ensure that Canadian processing is developed to its maximum so that we export finished products wherever possible, rather than raw materials for the plants and workers of other countries.

These concepts are not advanced in an isolationist sense: they should not be followed except in so far as they contribute to the general Canadian good—and this is to be achieved through as wide and diversified a trade as possible with the countries of the world. One facet of the policy would be that we do not, as a nation, remain merely a source of raw materials for United States industry, but press forward as a manufacturing power in our own right.

That is not an easy assignment for a country lying in the shadow of the American industrial and commercial colossus. But we have certain strengths which make it a feasible national long-term policy. We cannot do otherwise, in fact, if we are to reach eventual maturity as a nation.

Mr. Davis mentions such comparisons as that, with only one half of one per cent of the world's population, Canada controls six per cent of the non-ferrous metals in use and contains at least 17 per cent of mankind's softwood resources.

With development of the Alberta tar sands—a recently solved problem—this country could claim a quarter of the world's available oil resources; we have natural gas and coal in great abundance, and the world's largest reserves of uranium,

With this and other backing, Mr. Davis urges that "certainly we must deal, and deal more freely, with the United States. But we must go all out after markets for more highly processed goods in other countries as well."

"Continentalism," he adds, "has its advantages. But narrow continentalism is like narrow nationalism . . . Canadians must paint their picture of our nation's future on the broadest possible canvas if they are to prosper as they should."

A few basic principles are offered toward this end. We must assess our own requirements for decades to come, rather than on any shorter basis. We should export only those resources which are surplus to Canada's ultimate needs—the treasure house of riches is not to be drained as quickly as possible merely for short-term gain. The export selling price of our resources should cover not only cost of supply but should be equated to alternative sources, and there should be no bargain-basement approach to sales. Finally, the export flow of raw materials should be viewed as a movement which ultimately will develop into a trade in processed goods.

These will not be easy principles to apply in all cases. Obviously our export trade must be governed by world prices and sometimes special considerations, and we cannot sit on our treasure trove demanding impossible conditions of sale. But equally, we are not obliged to shovel out our natural wealth as quickly as possible and on a basis of major advantage for others.

The freer the trade situation and the more competition for our goods, the better. And the corollary of this, of course, is that we must provide equally open trading facilities for foreign producers. A step forward in this direction has been made in the Kennedy Round, but there is still a long way to go.

Nuremburg and Vietnam

THE COURT MARTIAL OF AN American army doctor, Captain Howard B. Levy, for refusing to give medical training to Special Forces first aid men destined for Vietnam has taken several odd turns. For one thing his defence counsel, Mr. Charles Morgan of the American Civil Liberties Union, has invoked the spirit of the Nuremburg war crimes trials at which the principle was established that the Nazi leaders in the dock could not claim immunity for their actions simply because they were obeying orders. As Mr. Morgan put it, since Nuremburg "all people are now responsible for their acts."

Countering this defence, Captain R. M. Shusterman, chief counsel for the army, maintained that "a man who would rather not kill can be made to kill regardless of his personal beliefs. The accused's personal ethics, his personal beliefs, would have no effect on an otherwise lawful order."

Captain Levy has admitted that he refused to train the Special Forces first aid men because they carried weapons into battle and were not recognized under the Geneva Convention as Red Cross personnel, and because of a conviction that the war was wrong. His counsel has called as witnesses soldiers who have been in Vietnam and elicited from them testimony which could be interpreted as supporting the charge that American troops have committed atrocities — either directly, or indirectly through Vietnamese under their control.

Without hesitation, the military court seems to have welcomed this testimony and the prosecutor observed: "That's what this trial is all about—Nuremburg. I expect it will come up several times more." He argued that "The military society, with its recognized, demonstrated need for uniformity and discipline is not unfamiliar with the notion that not even truth can be used to bring about a palpable injury to good order and discipline."

Finally, on Thursday the trial officer of the court, Colonel Earl V. Brown, ruled that the defence had failed to make a prima facie case of American war crimes in Vietnam.

But in thus ruling out this aspect of the defence so far as guilt or innocence of the accused is concerned, Colonel Brown added that it could be taken into account in mitigation of sentence. The Nuremburg trials door was opened up by the army only so it could be slammed shut again, at least so far as Vietnam is concerned. Individual conscience, the court has ruled, cannot be the criterion of whether or not an American citizen will serve as he is directed by the government.

Breath of Life

A SPOKESMAN FOR THE ST. John Ambulance Victoria branch points out that some of the 186 deaths from drowning in British Columbia last year might have been avoided if someone had been able to apply artificial respiration.

The comment is timely. In the days ahead thousands of our people will be seeking recreation in or on the water. Accidents will occur, some of them fatal. Their number might be reduced, however, if citizens accept the branch's offer of instruction in methods of resuscitation—instruction that is given without charge in lectures by the St. John experts.

Correction

I think you should correct the error in your editorial "The nose count in Alberta" when you state "the NDP which dropped almost half of its 1963 popular vote, lost its single provincial member."

In actual fact the NDP more than doubled its popular vote from 38,133 in 1963 to 77,525 in 1967 although it did lose the Pincher Creek seat. It seems a blot on our system that a party which procures 16 per cent of the popular vote has no voice in the Provincial Legislature whereas the Liberals with only 11 per cent of the popular vote retained three seats in the Legislature. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 2530 Lansdowne, (Editor's note: The error Mr. Wrixon has pointed out in the editorial has been noted by other subscribers. An inadvertent transposition of the popular vote percentages, which actually showed 16 per cent in 1967 and 9 per cent in 1963, resulted in a misstatement of the NDP's position.

LSD Regrets

A thought for those who may contemplate trying LSD.

A considerable number of healthy people who have tried it must seriously regret having done so — if they have sufficient wits left to regret anything.

On the other hand we have yet to hear of healthy people who seriously regret NOT having tried it. — R. Morris Wilson, 235 Cook.

MIRACLE OF THE SEED

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Reliability in a Doubtful Contemporary World

THE old gardener was out today, in a chilly coastal spring, to plant his forty-fifth and possibly his last vegetable garden. His doctor (who never sowed a seed and cultivated only a golf course with inferior tools like mashies and putters) had recommended the gentle exercise of gardening but the gardener paid no attention to this advice. He was not planting for exercise. He was not planting for reasons of economy, either, to obtain cheap food. He was not even planting for reasons of pleasure exactly. He was planting for other reasons that no doctor, only a philosopher, or a child, would be likely to understand.

Hutchison

What interested him as he crouched over the damp earth with aching back was the seed in his numb fingers. The seed interested him because it was one of the few reliable things left in the contemporary world. All the reformers of the Great Society, he reflected, have been unable to change the seed. It alone defied the general revolution and stubbornly remained itself, sprouting infallibly into life and growth by its own changeless methods. This he found reassuring and, at his age, he needed all the reasurance he could get.

For about $5 he had purchased a lot of reassurance, enough to plant half an acre. It now cost twice as much as in his early days but was still the best bargain on the market, each package holding ten cents worth of mystery beyond price. At the cost of a bottle of whisky, soon consumed, he would reap enough food to nourish his household for an entire year.

That was the least part of the bargain. With a hendful of seeds he had purchased admission to a spectacle more astounding than Expo 67, to the greatest wonder in creation, to the act of creation itself, the genuine article. From seed the most ignorant man like himself could learn the only things worth knowing without turning on the television or reading the newspaper.

Newspapers, of course, never reported these vital matters. There was no news in the sprouting of seeds. They had sprouted regularly aeons before the invention of printing and would sprout long after the last newspaper came off the press recording, perhaps, the sudden end of man's civilization.

No news in seeds and yet the most casehardened reporter, he guessed, would have the biggest scoop of all time to write if, in some future spring, the seeds refused to sprout. The black headlines were easily imagined — Nature Goes on Strike. Mankind to Starve within a Week.

Stuff of Life

Century after century all men and other animals lived on the ability of a dry, inert globule to surge instantly into life at the touch of earth and moisture and they could live on nothing else. Yet the public seldom gave a thought to this one essential business while concentrating its attention on such minor concerns as war and politics, careless of the unending, decisive war inside the soil, the ruthless struggle, the realpolitik of survival.

Men debated their superficial affairs with pathetic anxiety, though there would be nothing at all to debate if the seed failed for a single season. In Canada especially they debated their national identity but the seed had solved that problem in the first dawn of life. A Canadian might become an American, for example, but no radish seed ever turned into a lettuce, no pumpkin ever became a cabbage since the first living cell first appeared on the planet. Only among men was there any question of identity.

Worth the Trouble

It seemed odd to the old gardener that men took so little interest in seeds when every man began as a seed himself, germinating and taking his awkward, ugly shape like the humblest vegetable. Admittedly, however, there was a difference between a human and vegetable seed more profound than shape and this difference in itself made gardening worth all the time and trouble.

A radish remained a radish through countless generations, no matter how you cultivated, fertilized and pampered it; whereas the most innocent human baby might turn into a monster like Hitler or Stalin, who probably were delightful in infancy. The healthy, care-free boy became a broken old gardener at last.

With human seed you never knew what might happen, for better or worse, but with any vegatable seed you always knew precisely what to expect. You could bet all your savings on the unvarying cycle of the radish but no such bet could be safely placed even on your own son or daughter, no matter how well you fed, housed and educated them.

So the gardener held the lifeless-looking globules in his fingers for a moment and sprinkled them slowly on the earth, knowing that each contained its sure explosion of life which, in combination with all the other seeds now sprouting across the northern hemisphere, was more powerful than the hydrogen bomb, man's explosion of death.

Evidently man preferred his poor parody of nature since he spent so much work and money on it. He sought the meaning of things in empty space when he could find the answer much more clearly in a square foot of garden if he looked closely enough. Doubtless he would shortly alight on the barren moon before he had truly explored the rich, teeming substance under his feet. He could invent almost anything and might carry himself past the remote stars but with all his cunning he had never made even the most primitive sort of seed.

Still Hope

Well, the gardener hoped he never would. For if he did, if seeds ever came out of the laboratory, then the fun of gardening would be finished in question of a purposeful, intelligent universe would be answered in the negative. So long as seeds alone could make other seeds there was still some hope of a positive answer.

Anyway, the old gardener had found a cheap, simple way to survey the whole complex process reduced, for quick reading and plain demonstration, to a sphere no larger than a pin's head but more extraordinary than all human achievements — a speck of immortality for ten cents and a little digging. Pleasantly exhausted at the day's end, he allowed himself a discreet drop of alcohol, apparently a man-made product but, in fact, like all valuable things, only the distillation of seeds.

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

The Whys and Why-Nots of U Thant's Decision

HISTORIANS are likely to debate for a very long time the wisdom of U Thant's decision to acquiesce when UAR President Nasser ordered UNEF, the UN peace army, out of Egypt. Could not Thant have refused? Or at least, dragged his heels? Did not the interests of world peace override the technicalities of international law? If the Secretary-General did not feel he could hold out against Nasser alone, could he not have tossed the matter into the lap of the General Assembly or Security Council, and let the membership decide?

Frye

These and related questions are already being debated intensely here. Every alarming news bulletin from the Mideast gives new impetus to the criticism.

Answers offered by Thant's aides boil down to this: the UN is not a world government. It must, and does, respect the sovereignty of member states.

Excepting Rhodesia

With the exception of Rhodesia, where economic force is being applied, the UN has never sought to impose its will on any political entity more significant than the Congolese province of Katanga — and Katanga was not recognized as a sovereignty by anyone. Korea was a special case in which the United States, with UN approval, repelled an aggression.

The UN does not have even theoretical power to undertake an enforcement action, that is, to require compliance from a sovereign state, unless that state goes to war or otherwise threatens the peace. Nasser was threatening Israel. But he was doing so, ostensibly at least, in an effort to deter an Israeli attack on Syria.

Whether in such circumstances he could legally have been adjudged an aggressor, and subjected to enforcement action, is highly controversial.

From a practical point of view, it is obvious he could not have been put on the carpet by the Security Council. The Soviet Union would certainly have vetoed such a finding.

The veto-free General Assembly might theoretically have decided to defy Nasser and order UNEF to stay on. But given the political balance in the Assembly, this is extremely doubtful. The most it would have been likely to have done would have been to appeal to Nasser for a reprieve.

This he would clearly have refused. Egyptian artillery was already lobbing shells near UNEF observation posts. Tank columns had taken positions between UNEF and the frontier.

The only way UNEF could have held its ground would have been for it to have gone to war with the U.A.R. — and in such an event, it would have been crushed in hours, if not minutes. UNEF was an armed observer corps, not a fighting army.

Quite apart from the impracticality of defying Nasser, Thant's aides argue, it would have been unwise to do so.

UNEF was admitted onto Egyptian soil with Egypt's consent. The late Dag Hammarksjold never was able to make any substantial inroads into the proposition that it could stay there only so long as the consent continued. If, having been told to get out, UNEF had refused, the UN could have been accused of double-dealing.

The next time a UN force was needed in some trouble spot, it might have been very hard indeed to get the consent of the prospective host state.

The case for Thant's decision to pull out is thus, in a nutshell, that it would have been at once unconstitutional, under the UN Charter, and impractical, politically and militarily, to do anything else.

This argument does not fully come to grips with another contention of Thant's critics, namely that he could have dragged his heels and played for time.

One method of stalling might have been to refer the eviction order to the General Assembly, which had originally created UNEF. The Assembly could then have debated what to do.

Might Have Succeeded

The eventual outcome might not have been very different from the one Thant produced. But there is an outside chance that the Assembly, by stalling and pressure, might have succeeded in changing Nasser's mind.

Nasser may secretly have wanted his arm twisted, it is argued — may have wanted to benefit politically from the appearance of firmness against Israel, but not run the risks of an actual confrontation with her.

No one can know whether this was, in fact, the case. Not a few western diplomats here, notably Americans and Canadians, wish fervently that Thant had been willing to try. The real reason why he did not, it is suspected, is that reference of the crisis to the General Assembly would have flown in the face of Soviet convictions that the Assembly is legally incompetent in the peace-keeping field.

This is not considered a good reason. It may have helped preserve Thant's acceptability as an East-West go-between. But it destroyed whatever hope there may have been of maintaining a significant UN presence on the Egyptian-Israeli armistice line. And headlines in subsequent days have reported the consequences.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

Go out to Beaver Lake and ramble along some of the still unspoiled trails leading towards Elk Lake.

By the lake trail the cattails are putting forth new sword-like leaves and the heads of the flowers are showing a bulge in the sheath.

There you will be able to find several kinds of bullrushes. Some are growing along the marshy shoreline, others in the shallow water. Here too you will see the yellow pond lily with its large floating heart-shaped leaves.

Growing here you can find the brooklime, with its dainty blue flowers. Look at the leaves and you will see how they vary on the same stem. This plant belongs to the same family as the forget-me-not in your garden.

The ox-eye daisy will soon show a mass of white blooms that will dominate the many meadows there.

These meadows are well worthwhile seeing. Most of them are surrounded by fringes of shrubs and trees. As the wind blows, the grasses wave like summer waves on the seashore.

Work your way up towards the higher ridge. Along the way there are several large clumps of thimble-berry with the maple-like leaf and showy white blooms.

Here the meadow broadens out and the pastoral scene is one that makes the Saanich peninsula so fascinating and beautiful.

As you work your way back to the parking lot you pass through some fine conifers. Mingled with them are many shrubs. Outstanding now is the Saskatoon with its saw-toothed upper leaf edge and clusters of white blossoms.

It is to be hoped that this park will, in most of its area, be left in its natural state, that its beauty can be seen by all.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

A world made jittery by the Vietnam war reacted with alarm this week when the perennial Middle East squabbling suddenly blew up into a full-fledged crisis.

Despite frequent border clashes, the Arabs and Israelis have managed to avoid a head-on collision since the Suez fighting of 1956, but now their forces are poised on the brink of war.

Whether they start shooting or pull back from their menacing positions may be decided soon, perhaps this weekend.

United Nations Secretary-General U Thant was to report to the Security Council today after holding emergency talks with President Nasser of Egypt in Cairo.

While diplomats scurried from capital to capital trying to dampen the flames many wondered how the crisis came upon them so suddenly.

●

The trigger was apparently cocked last week when an exasperated Israel declared she would retaliate in force if Syrian commando raids continued along the frontier.

That was all Nasser needed. In quick order he mobilized his armies and ordered the United Nations Emergency Force, set up after the 1956 affair, to withdraw from the Gaza Strip separating Egypt and Israel.

U Thant's quick compliance with this order caught many by surprise. They felt he should have stalled for time in the hope of cooling off the situation.

Legally, however, he was bound to take the action he did under terms of the agreement negotiated with Egypt in 1956 by his predecessor Dag Hammarskjold. The UN peace-keeping troops, including a large contingent of Canadians, were stationed on Egyptian territory by special permission of Nasser.

Nasser's next move was the most inflammatory of all. He announced his intention of blockading the Straits of Tiran which would close off shipping lanes in the Gulf of Aqaba and the port of Elath, Israel's only outlet on the Red Sea.

Since the gulf is regarded by most nations as an international waterway the threat was now posed of a confrontation at sea that could have wider implications than the immediate quarrel between Egypt and Israel.

This danger was heightened when the U.S. made a forthright statement supporting Israel and the Soviet Union made a similar declaration backing the Arabs.

At this point diplomatic activity became feverish. Thant rushed to Cairo, British Foreign Secretary George Brown flew to Moscow and Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban went to Washington to sound out U.S. intentions.

President de Gaulle issued a call for a meeting of the Big Four — Russia, the U.S., Britain and France — to head off a showdown.

●

Nasser told Thant he would co-operate in any international measures to ease the situation but held firm to his position vis-a-vis the Israelis.

Brown had more luck in Moscow where the Russians rejected the idea of a Big Four meeting but let it be known they had no desire for a war in the Mideast and would do what they could to prevent one.

Reports that the Russians had tied promises of help in the Mideast to concessions by the U.S. in Vietnam were denied by Brown.

Most of the Arab nations united behind Nasser but Jordan and Saudi Arabia, which have been feuding with Egypt, were lukewarm in their support.

Observers agreed the Israeli forces, using U.S. and French equipment, are stronger than the Russian-equipped forces of Egypt, Syria and Iraq. Nasser is also strapped by having 50,000 troops tied down in the Yemen civil war.

Because of this there is a feeling the Egyptian leader is bluffing and hopes to win some concession without shooting. The test will probprobably come when the first ship attempts to run the blockade into Elath, or trigger-happy patrols on the border begin firing in earnest.

Cost of Living Rise Draws Greater Concern

By THE CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

Canadians are beginning to realize what the rising cost of living is doing to their economic positions.

Nearly a third of the population (32 per cent) say they are worse off than they were a year ago. This is well on to three times the ratio as said it two years ago. Twenty-six per cent feel they are better off and 41 per cent say their economic positions are about the same as a year ago.

When a similar question was put to the public in 1965, only 13 per cent said they were worse off; 29 per cent said better off and 53 per cent saw no change in their finances.

The greatest number of people today (36 per cent) who feel they are worse off than a year ago are to be found in the ranks of labor. Least hurt by rising costs are from the professional and executive classes. Only 22 per cent among those groups say they are worse off than a year ago.

The question: "Considering your income and cost of living, do you feel you are better off today than you were a year ago?"

	1965	Today
Better off	29%	26%
Worse off	13	32
The same	53	41
Can't say	5	1

Here is how people in different occupations feel today, in regard to their incomes and the cost of living:

Worse off	22	30	36	26

It Takes Some Getting Used To

Commonweal

The U.S. government isn't sure how many civilians it kills in Vietnam, but it does know the heartbeat rate of American pilots during bombing runs.

Not only that. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reports, in the words of the New York Times, that "Even during bombing runs on the most hazardous missions over North Vietnam American pilots remain remarkably cool."

This is in marked contrast, mind you, to the people being bombed, who have been known to get excited and run for cover. Little children covered with flaming napalm often lose their cool entirely.

But then the NASA report explained that the American pilots had the advantage of long experience. Perhaps after 10 more years of war, Vietnamese kids will be getting used to napalm.

A Little Too Sweeping, But Not Under the Rug

By ART STOTT

One of my querulous complaints for the last 20-odd years concerns one phase of the public reaction to education. In this community, I'm convinced, the people who most need to inform themselves are the ones who don't bother.

Stott

Those who least require instruction are the ones who read the most on the subject, go to the lectures, study the issues, bring reasoned judgment to their assessment of the system. At the other extreme, those who contribute to the problems go to the beer parlors. Not that I'm agin pubs, but they are not always educative.

A militant proselytizer in the cause of education could, of course, preach among the infidels by taking the message to the beer parlor and expounding to the captive audience around his table as long as he kept buying. There's a hazard there, though. A lot of malt can put a sort of fuzziness on the argument he might be trying to make.

A more respectable and acceptable method of disseminating information has been developed by the Association of Women Electors of Greater Victoria.

* * *

Members have published and distributed the results of a second education study, offering it as the viewpoint of a group without partisan political bias. The study displays creditable interest by the women electors, whether you agree with it or not. They have looked into problems and have come up with their criticism.

Generally speaking the report takes a pretty dim view of our school system, methods of school financing, political control of school curriculum and development and methods by which education should be imparted to the young generation.

Any remarks of mine on the report should be qualified by a double confession from me. The more I read and listen to experts on the subject, the less definite is my understanding of what education is or should be, and what we as citizens should be expecting our schools and school system to do.

The ladies are more positive.

I'm not prepared to swallow whole some of the quotations in the report: John Holt's remark that "To a very great degree, school is a place where children learn to be stupid," William Hull's cryptic words "If we taught children to speak, they'd never learn," or June Callwood's summary that "Canadian schools are geared to give education to only one type of student — the middle-class, university-bound, preferably female and docile."

The graphic phrase hits the eye. So does a fast foul tip spinning off a hitter's bat into the face of the catcher.

The study, nevertheless, makes clear some of the points in the school field that the Women Electors do not like. With many of their points I agree — in particular the need to find a better method of financing for schools.

* * *

It is less explicit on what the study members want or expect from education. Contained in the report is a tribute to the job John Young is doing at Campbell River Senior Secondary. There, say the authors, four basic rules only are applied: No smoking (for Grade 12s and under), no truancy, no loafing in class and no irresponsible behaviour. The last rule, it might be noted, provides a reasonably elastic option for those running the show.

My information is that Campbell River Senior Secondaray is well-run school, where there isn't any looseness and where ample space and a high ratio of teachers to pupils helps the educational process.

In some other schools in the province some rather exceptional and valuable developments have taken place with probably less publicity.

By and large, I'd say the ladies' report is of specific value. It points out faults as the study groups sees them. It stimulates interest in education. It's rough on the establishment — which should ruffle complacency. And it wants something better, recognizing that improvement is possible and arguing that changes in policy "do not involve more expense at the local level."

* * *

I still have to be convinced that "our children are caught in a mass production system which effectively drowns individuality, stunts creativity, brutalizes human relationships, anaesthetizes the mind and undermines mental health with the pervasive educational philosophy that 'smarter is better'."

Perhaps I'm just a little slow in making up my mind — even on the basic question of what education actually is.

Johnson and Pearson at the prime minister's summer residence near Ottawa this week: "The most powerful man in the western world had come on an urgent call for advice from a renowned diplomat whose magic touch had once before brought the world back from the brink of war."

Canada's Position As Middle Power

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA—Two moving and meaningful scenes in Otawa during this past week demonstrated in their very diferent ways both the diplomatic strength and the political weakness of our nineteenth prime minister, Lester B. Pearson.

The most impressive event of the week was certainly the flash visit of Lyndon B. Johnson and its most impressive moment occurred as his gleaming jet, Air Force One, with the proud seal of the American presidency emblazoned on its fuselage, soared away from Uplands Airport, late on Thursday afternoon.

Newman

Its mission had been completed. The most powerful man in the Western world had come on an urgent call for advice from a renowned diplomat whose magic touch had once before brought the world back from the brink of war.

The substance of the talks between the two men must remain secret, but the fact that they took place at all speaks loudly for the stature of a man, much maligned in domestic political combat, who still remains a commanding presence in the more deadly enterprise of cold war diplomacy.

Farmers' March

The other significant scene of Ottawa's week—Wednesday's march of nearly 15,000 angry farmers on the Parliament Buildings — reflected in reverse on the reputation of the same man.

These were the discontented and the dispossessed. Here was one of the final convulsions of the great agrarian community which only two generations ago had run this country (in fact, they made it; tearing at the rocks in the meadows with their bare hands).

The parliamentary doors were slammed in their faces. The prime minister never appeared and the emissaries he sent out to appease the mob only served to enrage it.

As the farmers milled around the manicured lawns of Parliament Hill, and you watched these good and honest men, you could almost feel their terror of the future, their repudiation of the present and their longing for that vanished age of simplicity when the virile pioneer virtues were what made a man proud and what earned the politicans' respect.

Showed Change

Both of these large events, in their disparate ways, were a symptom of how much and how fast Canada and the world in which we live have changed.

That we are no longer a rural nation has been evident for some time. But it comes as a shock to realize that by the time the next general election is called, probaby in 1969, less than 8 per cent of the electorate will be earning their livelihood in agriculture, and no political party will ever again come to power championing their cause.

At the same time, despite the impressive Johnson mission, the Pearson style of diplomacy seems sadly to have exhausted its relevancy. Under Pearson's stewardship, our foreign policy has been an extension of our domestic policy—or vice versa.

The accent has always been on sort of a non-committed brokerage between competing interests, whether they be Israel and Egypt or Ottawa and Quebec, with the idea that if you don't take too strong positions on anything, something less than disastrous is bound to emerge.

This has been the great appeal of Lester Pearson as the Liberal leader: he is always the rational man in an irrational world, forever trying to make the best out of a bad situation.

This has also been the essence of our middle power, quiet diplomacy approach. It has been a useful policy because there is something in our national character that clings to sweet reasonableness as the only possible posture in the face of our geographical, economic, social and military dilemmas.

The idea of Canada as a middle power supplying "peace keeping" cadres to world trouble spots fit in ideally with this benign philosophy. But the haste with which U Thant, the secretary-general of the United Nations, ordered the withdrawal of the UN emergency force from the Gaza Strip brings into serious doubt all such operations in the future, and with it the usefulness of Paul Hellyer's newly-integrated, mobile force of peace-keepers.

Restore Peace

To be fair, the government has always maintained that its new military force would be more concerned with "peace restoring" than with "peace keeping," and the weapons that the department of national defence has been ordering in recent months fit far better into the more combative peace-restoring role than the more passive "blue berrets and billets" peace-keeping kind of operation. But here again, our credibility as a relatively uncommited, honest broker is being reduced.

It will not be possible very much longer for our external affairs department to perpetuate the myth that we are a middle power, in anything except the weight of our influence.

Canada's situation is reminiscent of a remark made by some forgotten statesman about the place of Italy in Europe before the First World War.

"Many of Italy's problems," he said, "arise from its inability to decide if it is the least of the great powers, or the greatest of the small powers."

The Crucial Question: Will U.S. Back Israel?

By CHALMERS ROBERTS

WASHINGTON — By every sign the climax is coming soon in the Middle East crisis.

So far, despite the black headlines and the air of tension, there has been no significant military clash. The battle thus far has been one of words. But time is running out; one side or the other will have to give way or one or the other will have to invoke war.

There is no sign that any of the many diplomatic efforts will resolve the basic problem of whether there is to be, or is not be be, free passage for all ships from the Red Sea, through the Straits of Tiran into the Gulf of Aqaba and to the Israeli port of Elath.

The indications are that Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser is determined to close the straits to all Israeli-flag ships and to all other ships carrying "strategic materials," including oil, to Israel.

And the indications also are that Israel intends to fight rather than to let that happen after a decade of free passage to her port.

In the first instance, the crisis involves the long-time Arab-Israeli feud. But in the world of power politics it is becoming a major test of Soviet and American positions in the entire Middle East.

No Polarizing

Although the United States has had a special relationship with Israel since the moment of its founding in 1948, Washington's policy always has been to avoid polarization; that is, to avoid becoming the champion of Israel at the cost of total Arab hostility. Thus it has maintained friendship with part of the Arab world.

Soviet policy has been to drive western influence out of the Middle East and to force a polarization of American influence with the Soviet Union the only great power friend of all Arab states.

The danger of just that eventuality is evident now that President Johnson has publicly backed the Israeli contention of free passage and termed Nasser's proclaimed blockade to be illegal.

Once a ship tests Nasser's blockade and finds it firm, if it turns out to be firm, then the United States faces the problem of whether to use force to back its principle. Every effort is being bent to avoid that eventuality for if it occurs Washington knows it will have very little if any military support in the effort.

In the situation as it now exists any compromise would seem to call for some diminution of the rights Israeli has enjoyed these past 10 years. Even such a compromise would depend on some backpeddling by Nasser. Right now he is at least the verbal hero of the Arab world, his badly damaged prestige much restored by his bold act.

Israel knows that the United Nations Security Council, because of the Soviet veto, is not going to proclaim the straits to be international waters even though most of the maritime powers consider it so.

Many Friends

Israel is basically dependent on the United States where it has many powerful friends. Yet in part because of the Vietnam war there are few in Congress who are calling for unilateral military action to back Israel in forcing the straits.

Thus in the end it may come to a decision for Israel: either accept the blockade or fight. Every sign has been that Israel will fight. Indeed, it is highly doubtful that the current government could survive if it gave in to Nasser's blockade.

The popular view both in Israel and here has been that if it comes to war Israel's superiority so amply demonstrated in the 1956 Suez war would be reasserted. Quite evidently Nasser has long been deterred by Israeli arms.

But there are a growing number here who point to the changes since 1956, especially the escalation of weaponry. There are faster and more deadly aircraft, more powerful tanks and the Egyptians' possession of ground-to-ground missiles. Finally, more attention is being paid to Egyptian possession of poison gas, already used in Yemen, which could be employed as a terror weapon against the compact and crowded areas of Israel.

Oil Lines

There are other nightmares, too. The Arabs already are talking of blowing up the international oil pipelines. Foreign oil rights, many of them American, might be nationalized. The British pound could suffer, too.

In short, war could shake both the Middle East and world politics. Which is why the diplomats are working so feverishly in these final days or even hours before the crisis reaches a climax.

Israelis See Plot

JERUSALEM (Israeli Sector)—The Israeli government has reached the black conclusion that what it faces is the result of a carefully planned and concerted Soviet-Egyptian program not merely to choke off its southern port of Elath but to extinguish the nation itself.

In the words of one high official, who is known to reflect a government consensus, "This is the end of the road."

●

From interviews here and in Tel Aviv, the unvarying forecast emerges that Israel will go to war to defend what it now sees as a calculated massive assault aimed at its destruction. The only element of doubt is whether the plan is for accomplishing that end here and now or whether it is limited for the time being to a series of acts.

Throughout last week, and for a few days of this, the majority opinion here was that Nasser had been carried along to more and more achievement by a series of fortuitous events of which he was more the follower than the creator. That idea has now disappeared.

On evidence which they decline to reveal, Israeli leaders are now convinced that they are witnessing a carefully conceived progressive program formulated jointly by the U.A.R. and the U.S.S.R. They are not sure when, but perhaps last month when Soviet Foreign Secretary Andrei Gromyko met with Nasser in Cairo.

If the blockade remains in effect, according to this analysis, its consequence will be not merely the strangulation of Israeli communication with Africa, all of Asia, including most importantly Iran, Japan and India, and the collapse of development in the Negev which is pivoted on the port of Elath.

●

It will also mean such a stupendous political and psychological victory for Nasser, so the argument continues, as to spell the instant doom of King Hussein of Jordan and the rather swift collapse of Saudi Arabia's anti-Nasser position. Equivalent changes in such West-leaning nations as Tunisia, Morocco and Lybia will follow.

The Hon. John Gilbey is welcomed aboard ship.

The Hon. John Gilbey—International Quality Controller

Embarking on one of his frequent voyages overseas, the Hon. John Gilbey talks about his unique job as Gilbey's International Quality Controller—and why it takes him to every corner of the earth:

"My gin has been the best gin in the world for no less than 110 years," says the Hon. John Gilbey. "It is my job to make sure that Gilbey's London Dry matches the original English standard no matter where it is made." So he travels to the 39 countries where Gilbey's London Dry is famous, and he samples the gin that carries his name.

"Wherever I taste Gilbey's London Dry," he explains, "I expect to find the subtle flavour that people call . . . the perfect balance for mixed drinks."

Next time you see Gilbey's famous frosty bottle, remember the Hon. John Gilbey and his job as Gilbey's International Quality Controller. And as you taste the gin with the perfect balance for mixed drinks, bear in mind his proud words: "This is my gin! For no less than 110 years it has carried my family's name. Gilbey's London Dry is the gin with the perfect balance for mixed drinks. And I shall make sure it stays that way."

ONE MAN'S WAY WITH THE NATIVES

Hard Work Shooting Crocs

By JOHN MANNING

Former Victoria Times reporter John Manning and his wife Pat are currently on a 12,000-mile "Centennial Cruise" aboard their tiny sailing ship Powindah. The pair started in England and hope to end their cruise in the Inner Harbor. This is the 28th in a series on their adventures.

The Aussie picked up the Winchester and ran one hand down the stock as some men might caress a woman's cheek. He snapped open the breech, held it up to the sun and let the light spear open the darkness of the barrel. The weapon was a 30-30 carbine. He worked the action a few times, not roughly, but gently, and there was reverence in his touch.

"How much?" he asked, looking at the owner, a hard-drinking American engineer.

"One hundred bucks."

"I'll give you fity."

"No dice. This gun's number one. Been used maybe four, five times shootin' tin cans." The engineer finished his drink. Ice clinked back into the glass as he poured a refill. "Besides you get a leather case and three boxes of ammunition. A good deal."

Up For Sale

"Sixty dollars." Jeff pulled the cash out of his pocked and laid it on the cockpit seat.

We were sitting in a fibreglass racing yacht that had just crossed the Atlantic. Her owner, tired of the sea, was putting her up for sale and going back to work in the States. It was obvious he wanted to sell the gun.

The engineer looked at the fluttering cash and then back at the gun. He shrugged his wide-set shoulders, picked up the money and poured us all another drink. "I'll be glad to get the hell out of here."

"Why?" asked Jeff.

"The sailing's okay but the people bug me."

"What people?"

"The natives here, all these Negroes; they walk around with a real chip on their shoulder. I don't like the feeling of the place. You can't trust 'em."

There was a period of silence. Then Jeff spoke up: "You've got to give them a chance. They've been kicked around a lot."

"You sound like an authority on the subject."

"No, but I've been making my living the last ten years with native people."

"Doing what?"

"Shooting crocodiles in the New Hebrides."

Unusual Man

The engineer gave the Australian a quizzical look. By any standards Jeff Mathews was an unusual man: there was no pretense about him. He was thirty-eight years old, in rock hard shape, had a beard that gave him anything but the look of a beatnik and had a way of speaking, chopping off the words, that any Hollywood tough guy actor would give his right arm to have. He had sailed his fifty-two foot teak ketch, the DIDA, from New Guinea to Cape Town singlehanded. There he had met a beautiful Dutch girl and signed her on as Mate. The two of them then sailed the boat to England and out to the West Indies where they had started in the charter business.

"Is there money in it?" asked the engineer.

"If you know where the croc's are and if you get a good team of natives working with you. In the New Hebrides I found that the blacker skin the people had the better they were. They still have the tribal sense of competition. Most of them are warriors and once they learn how to use a gun they'll out shoot most white men."

"You'd actually live with those guys?"

"Of course. For three or four months at a time. We'd hunt the crocs at night from a flat bottom boat, then skin them the next day. It was hard work but the money was good."

"So what do you want the Winchester for?"

"I like a weapon on board. Besides, I may go down to South America and see what there is in the way of crocodiles."

At that moment a little boat came alongside. It was manned by a small West Indian boy. The oars were three times taller than he was; the stern of the dory was piled high with grapefruit, oranges and melons. "Want any ice mister? Fruits, limes, lemons?" The boy was stunted, with frail arms; he spoke with a lisp, making his voice almost unintelligible.

"No, kid. I tell you every day I got an ice box on this boat," said the engineer.

"Hello Leo," said Jeff. "I'll see you tomorrow morning aboard the Dida."

Leo's eyes widened. His crooked, misshapen mouth became one happy smile. "Sure Skippah. Tomorrow mornin' for sure." He rowed away, grinning, struggling with each stoke of those giant oars as though it was a personal victory to make the boat move.

You know that kid?" bristled the engineer.

Odd Jobs

"He does odd jobs for me."

"Well I wouldn't trust the little beggar. He's just like all the rest of them, he'd soon as pinch your compass as look at you."

"I think not."

The next monrning I noticed Leo turn up on board the Dida on schedule. Jeff sent him off with his outboard to pick up some bread and ice in town. Three hours later he had still not returned. Jeff found his boat a few minutes later pulled up on the beach, minus the motor.

As the engineer had his yacht anchored next to to the Dida he was not long in inquiring of Jeff what had happened to the outboard.

"I don't know," was the reply. "I told him to come straight back here . . ."

"The kid's stolen it for sure. I told you he couldn't be trusted."

"Leo wouldn't take the motor. I think some other person's stolen it and Leo's too nervous to come back and tell me. I've already called the police."

"Well, buddy, I'm sorry to say it, but that's the last you'll be seeing of your outboard motor."

Full Bore

Then, almost as though the timing had been prearranged, little Leo appeared coming full bore into the yacht lagoon, Jeff's motor humming merrily on the stern of his boat.

"And just where have you been young man?" asked Jeff, making his voice as forbidding as possible.

"I'm sorry Skippah. Ah hit the ground with da propellor and she broke the pin, so me an mah friends took the engine into town and bought a new one fo' you. She just skins along."

"Do you realize the police are looking for the engine?"

"No, Skippah . . . I didn't know. I was afraid to tell you the engine broke, case you turn me off your boat." His little head dropped and he spoke the last words staring straight into the water.

Half an hour later Leo was all smiles again, polishing Dida's large brass bell. The engineer was nowhere to be seen.

Pretty Blondes And Good Liquor

SANTIAGO, Chile — The city of Santiago, capital of Chile, holds a number of surprises for the connoisseur of good liquor and pretty women.

The select Club de la Union has the world's longest bar, about 400 feet. Santiago is well known for excellent dry martinis, and for a drink called Pisco Sour, which is small but extremely potent. For those who wish to drink yet get their vitamins, a special desert made from pineapple and champagne is available.

Men who do a lot of travelling usually expect to cast their eyes upon beautiful blonde women in Scandinavian countries, Germany, and glamorous Hollywood. But quite a few international girl watchers are shocked when they first visit Santiago. This Latin American city has hundreds of lovely blonde women who look as though they should speak English but in reality only speak Spanish. Santiago is less Latin than other South American cities because many of the people have German or other origins. Hence the blondes.

Santiago has a population of about 2,100,000 people. Canadian Pacific Airlines' flights connect the city to major Canadian centres.

An unusual geographic aspect of Chile is that it extends for 2,600 miles along the west coast of South America, yet is barely 100 miles wide at any point. Chile is a republic with a president and congress elected by universal sufferage.

The name Chile is derived from and old Indian name meaning cold. Santiago is warm all year round, however, and has a climate not unlike Southern California. The farther south one goes, toward Antarctica, the colder it gets.

Chile is world famous for its seafood. A local delicacy is baby crawfish, known as langostinos. Swordfish steaks, fresh lobster, and a variety of shellfish are also popular with tourists and natives alike. Meals such as this can be obtained at numerous restaurants throughout Santiago, and even at the two racetracks situated in the city. Santiago is the only city in the world where there are 11 continuous hours of Sunday horse racing, a punter's dream. A total of 28 races take place at the Hipodromo Chile in the morning and at the swank Club Hipico in the afternoon.

JULY BEST

One area of Chile the visitor should not miss is Portillo, a 9,300 foot ski paradise popular with the international skiing set, both amateur and professional. There is an annual ski carnival held here in late August which is one of the biggest events of the year in Chile. The ski season opens in mid-June and runs through to September or October, with peak months in July and August.

Riot In Rome

ROME (AP) — More than 500 riot police used rubber truncheons Thursday to break up a sitdown near the U.S. Embassy by nearly 1,000 anti-American demonstrators. More than 20 rioters were injured in the demonstration protesting U.S. military action in Vietnam. About 100 were rounded up for questioning.

Hawaii Waves Aloha

Boat day is still a very special day in Honolulu for although a plane, either domestic or foreign, arrives every few minutes at Honolulu International Airport, there is nothing comparable to watching the graceful white passenger liners as they curve around Diamond Head and sail languidly into Honolulu harbor.

The Ss. Lurline, queen of the Matson fleet, is still the most frequent visitor to the port of Honolulu. On each arrival day, she with her complement of passengers bent on a Hawaiian holiday, is greeted by a small flotilla of catamarans, cruisers and surfers. They ride out and crest the waves just to say aloha and sail back in with the ship.

The Royal Hawaiian band, which is the oldest musical group in the islands, meets all passenger liners, whether it is a vessel flying a foreign flag or one of the U.S. lines.

Avoiding Bankruptcy On Expo Dream Visit

By JACK TRACY

MONTREAL (CP)—You can bring the family to Expo 67, see the fair and go home without ending up broke.

"You can spend $100 a day at Expo if you have it, but if you haven't, don't stay home," Expo officials say.

"The sights and sounds of 62 countries are at your doorstep in Montreal, and you can sample them for a song."

The fair's public relations writing service today offered this summary of advice for the budget-minded family:

1. Buy the $1 Expo Guide and use the maps. Don't wander aimlessly over the 1,000 - acre site.

2. Use the information booths and electronic information boards to keep an eye out for free entertainment.

3. Keep informed about free Expo services, such as Logexpo (the accommodation service); Expovox (telephone information service); and baby care service where mothers can look after small children in privacy. There is also a social welfare service operated by the City of Montreal for people in trouble.

Biggest cost to the visitor from outside Quebec province is transportation and accommodation. Bus lines have laid on special Expo buses from Toronto, Ottawa, North Bay, Sudbury, Cornwall and Kingston. For instance, an Ottawan can make the return trip to the site for $6.75 plus the $2.50 one-day fair ticket.

For motorists, Quebec tourist offices along the main highways provide free maps of parking areas near Expo, with routes to the major lots.

The three largest lots have a total capacity of 27,000 cars at $2-$2.50 a day and provide free bus service from the lot to the main Expo gate.

For campers there are 20,000 camp sites in and around Montreal with an average daily cost for a tent of $2.50.

Logexpo will not only seek hotel rooms but cheaper accommodation as well, such as furnished rooms in private homes whose owners have agreed to take paying guests at $6-$10 a night for singles, $8-$14 for doubles, $10-$18 for three and $12-$22 for four.

Food expenses can be a heavy cost at Expo but packing your own lunch can save expense, especially with plenty of park benches, outdoor picnic tables and grasssy spots on the side.

Soaring on Wings of Silver

SAN DIEGO — Every weekend giant silver winged birds glide gracefully over the Pacific surf rolling beneath the towering 300 foot bluffs of Torrey Pines Mesa. Enthralled spectators witness their manoeuvres in circling, climbing, and diving. These slim, fragile-looking birds in reality are sailplanes. For this is the congregation area for Southern California glider enthusiasts enamoured with the challenges and thrills of powerless flight.

San Diego is the only place in the world where glider-flying is a spectator sport. Fans can sit in their cars or walk along the landing strip and see most of the action. Ten, fifteen and even twenty sailplanes at a time are in view as they criss-cross the sky searching for updrafts over Torrey Pines to keep them aloft. These aircurrents provide invisible steps for the gliders to climb and maneuver.

The year around activity reaches a pinnacle every February when more than 40 pilots from throughout the southwest congregate to participate in the annual Pacific Coast mid-winter soaring championships.

This is the big meet of the year for glider pilots, a chance for them to soar to endurance and altitude records, drop "bombs," and check their skills at spot landings against top competition.

Unlike other meets spectators may witness almost all of the competition from start to finish. In most meets there are about 20 gliders at the start and then they are gone. In some meets the gliders are towed aloft by airplanes and the spectator never sees them again as they try for distance and altitude records. At Torrey Pines they depend on the winds that shove over the cliffs at the end of the Torrey Pines strip to get them up. Then most of the flying is confined to an area of approximately 10 miles along the cliff tops.

STEEL CABLE

During the Torrey Pines meet sailplanes are launched aloft by a high-speed winch stationed at the west end of the landing and take-off strip, overlooking the Pacific. The planes attach to a 1,500-foot steel cable which lifts them 400 feet into the air at 60 miles per hour. There, pilots disengage the cab and begin their search for updrafts sweeping in off the ocean.

For One Hour Each Day You're in a Different World

An American's view of Victoria is given in this article written by a tourist who recently visited the city.

As I walked down the grand staircase of the Empress Hotel, I entered another world — exactly at 4 p.m. every day for a week. For it was that enchanted tea time, so necessary to every Britisher, so "lost" to every American.

On the last step and on to the soft tread of the carpet, my feet and my heart caught the lilt of a waltz, The Chopin, which all pianists do sooner or later, but it came across the room from the great carved piano with the most delicate, hesitant clarity, soft and easy, sweetly sentimental. In all my life, I had not really heard salon music played like this. Here it was performed with as patient, careful artistry as that of the concert stage. I waited ever so quietly to catch the exquisite phrasing before I sat down at the cosy little table already set with embroidered linens, rose-sprigged china, thin, old silver.

SINGLE CHORDS

Again, the repeat of the four-phrase theme, with the violin waltzing along over the 1, 2, 3 of the simple chords. I could have listened forever, in such a mood. I was in no hurry. The moment lingered, not at all distracted by the uniformed maid whose r's rolled all the way across from Edinburgh.

She, too, was far from home, yet not so far as I, really, who live in the strident rush of things in mid-America. Like in an English novel, the tea was fragrant and hot; every crumpet was crisp; the watercress sandwiches, the scones, the pastel petit-fours were perfectly appointed, doll-sized, and all to the tune of Chopin. It was tea-time at the Empress.

Ta da, da de dim, ta ta de dim — now the Etude in beautiful B major was restrained, yet so resolute, with just a little rubato. Here it picked up a little and I was off in violet banks on a moonlight night. The artists, both old men, and quite frail, had been employed by the hotel for many a season.

YOUNGER WORLD

Once perhaps they had taught in the London Conservatory, or in a younger world, had played to many Victorian audiences in the Royal Symphony at Albert Hall or Covent Garden. Today at times they were absorbed in the harmonies they made; again, they were amused just observing the guests. Pleased they were, and most grateful, for every bit of dainty applause.

In a sort of ectasy, I looked about as lamplight came on to reveal the drawing room filling with guests, now engaging in the trivial, but delightful, conversation around the cosy little tables. Shadows across the wide verandas told the time of day on Government Street, and with each opening of the great leaded glass door, fresh tea was brought to those just coming in from shopping, or from duties at the parliament offices across the lawns.

BLACK FACE

I sat bemused as the little old ladies so beautifully gowned in their black lace and rustling silk of other days, descended the staircase from their "homes" on the second floor.

Elegantly dressed coiffures reflected the lustre of pearls to match those so delicately worn. Like dainty porcelain figurines coming alive to tea-time sounds, they joined hotel guests for this long-anticipated hour in the long-endured day.

I could imagine their nostalgia, their remembering of other tea times, other days in London's fashionable drawing rooms, or in some ancestral country house. Companions they had then, happy children about; not, only "my friend, who is alone, too."

And then, the brisk career women, tweedy and a little severe, come striding in and immediately succumbed to the quiet atmosphere of the room.

'Victoria Is Strange, Fascinating'

Tourists, businessmen, government clerks, jurists, members of parliament, retired ladies and gentlemen, bored and a little sad — a strange, fascinating assortment who became jovial as they greeted familiar faces. It was all so delightfully British!

STREET SOUNDS

All too soon the enchantment faded as street sounds came through the fragile lace and net over the windows. It was time for another part of the day.

Now, the nocturne, fleeting and ephemeral, played along the black keys of F sharp — a little like Debussy in places, but more singing, and much more romantic. Lingering little farewells were heard about the room. Hopefully, sedately, the ladies hesitated at the mail desk. A few bought the latest edition of the "Daily Mail," the "Illustrated Times"; some bought stamps and mints and a few autumn postcard scenes, sorting the coins from quaint little handbags swung on gold chains. Those going home buttoned great coats of heavy tweeds and woolens, and with a certain flourish ticked in their scarves against the damp chill along the waterfront. Not many forgot their umbrellas.

VASTNESS OF ROOM

I stood momentarily under the portrait of "our gracious queen," the lovely Elizabeth, who had recently made an official visit to "this England." off our shores. From this gold-framed spot, the impressive vastness of the beautiful room, appointed and decorated at the turn of the century, reflected the splendid George V and Queen Mary portraits dominating white marble mantels.

Against the soft light of damask walls, rich - hued Oriental carpets, the staging was reminiscent of a world only read about in books. Soon, I would return to the rough edge of reality, the not-a-minute-to-lose way of life, where non-essentials are whisked away before our very eyes, where one has to adjust to the functional, the efficient, the sleek, the contemporary, I must remember this moment.

We Americans thrive on the ordinary ten-minute coffee break, a quick coke, both ejected from some mechanical paper-cupped device; while in high social circles, the days' pace quickens to crowded cocktail rooms, meaningless, high-pitched, brittle, and tense.

These characteristic American customs, we say, give us more time "to get things done." Because of our accelerated automation, we have more leisure. But along the way, the precious amenities of pleasant living are lost in cold economics, and in the casual sophistication of "the new age."

'CUP OF TEA'

No historian nor political analyst am I to interpret the throes of power politics, the glories of an empire that was; neither am I inclined to explore the long corridors of antiquity. I am inspired, however, by the unquestioned fortitude of the British, whose "cup of tea" has been the stubborn defence of a way of life. Whether in rose-sprigged china or in deep pottery mugs, it has been exemplary, ennobling.

Too conservatively slow-paced for our American gears, such worthy, feeling traditions of gentility, stability, and serenity could be a great advantage if we dare to slow the terrific pace of the second half century.

And so, I shall retrieve this hour occasionally, and hold it close in the heart's scrapbook; perhaps I shall describe the memory to my teener grandchildren someday — if they will listen.

As I mounted the polished staircase, I hummed the little tune, the lilt, again, from the waltz, the pretty sixths in the right hand. From now on, until I am an older grandmother, I shall play Chopin for myself, and be enfolded in a bit of England, a drawing room in Victoria.

Run away to sea with P&O.

The Iberia, P&O's 30,000-ton floating hotel, sails from Vancouver October 3 on her escorted, all-inclusive "Spanish Main" Holiday to Europe and back. Including 13 ports of call in 9 countries.

You can be aboard her for as little as $172⁰⁰ a week. And see Acapulco, the Panama Canal, the bazaars of Balboa and Cristobal, Nassau, Florida and Bermuda.

From there, you'll sail on for five lazy days, crossing to England. Unless you don't care to be lazy.

In that case, you can play deck tennis, cricket, or the horses. Go swimming. Take a bicycle ride. Browse in the library. Or pick up a few duty-free bargains at one of the gift shops.

In the evenings, there's dining, dancing, movies, and parties all over the ship.

When you reach England, you'll be relaxed and ready for four days of sightseeing in London and another four days in Paris.

Then you'll board ship again, this time P&O's 29,000-ton Orsova at Le Havre. And sail to Lisbon, Portugal for a day and an evening. Then to the historic ports of the Spanish Main—Trinidad, and Curaçao—on your way home.

All told, over 50 days of high adventure on two of the "biggest bloomin' ships sailing the seven seas."

Price: first class starts at $1378, tourist at $1206. Sightseeing and tours included.

Bank Approves Share Split

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto-Dominion Bank Thursday became the second Canadian bank to have its shareholders approve a five-for-one split in its shares, the first in its history.

A. T. Lambert, president and chairman, told a special general meeting of shareholders the split would take effect June 1.

It will change the capitalization of the bank to 25,000,000 shares of a par value of $2 each from the present 5,000,000 shares worth $10 at par.

At present 3,000,000 shares are outstanding, held by about 15,000 shareholders. The shares traded at $69 on the Toronto Stock Exchange Thursday, down $1 from Wednesday.

FOR CONSUMER AFFAIRS

No Separate Department

The prime minister is not considering a separate ministry for consumer affairs, Victoria Chamber of Commerce learned Friday.

Having urged establishment of a consumer affairs department in the federal government, the chamber received a copy of a letter from Prime Minister Pearson to Canadian Chambers of Commerce president Roger De Serres.

It said:

"We expect that the registrar-general's department will be primarily responsible for developing and coordinating consumer policy for the government.

"There are no present plans to establish a new department solely for consumer matters.

"I can understand your concern about rising government expenditures and I agree that we should avoid if at all possible incurring the expenses involved in establishing a new government department," the letter read.

Chamber directors took no action.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Trading Light, Leadership Lack

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A lack of leadership, extremely light trading and disturbing world news added up to another dismal week for investors on Canada's major stock exchanges.

The markets have been in a slump for four consecutive weeks and the prospects for an immediate break appear dim.

The New York Stock Exchange, the traditional North American pace-setter, was rocked this week as tension increased in the Middle East.

The effect was felt on Canadian exchanges and Wednesday the Toronto exchange suffered its sharpest daily decline of 1967 when the industrial index slid 2.03 points.

RECOVER SOME LOSS

The markets recovered part of the loss Thursday but analysts attributed this to technical factors resulting from an oversold condition.

Also influencing investors is the fact that earnings appear to be advancing more slowly than in 1966.

At Toronto, the industrial index declined 2.09 to 164 and volume for the four-day week was only 9,113,000 shares compared with 13,116,000 shares last week. At Montreal, the index dropped 1.42 to 162.42 and volume fell to 3,634,000 shares compared with 4,481,000 last week.

Analysts said unless there is a sharp increase in trading figures there is little chance of any substained rally.

The Toronto exchange has been plagued by a sharp decline in trading and as of May 16 total industrial volume had tumbled to 45,689,000 shares compared with 94,438,000 for the same period last year.

BANKS SLIDE

Banks took it on the chin and at Toronto, Imperial-Commerce slid 4¼ to 68¼, Royal 3¾ to 79¾, Montreal 2⅞ to 65, Toronto-Dominion 2¼ to 68¾ and Nova Scotia ⅞ to 14¾.

Brokers could give no reason for the sharp drop in bank issues. However, since the beginning of the year the price of bank stocks has risen sharply.

Other losses went to Chrysler off 2½ to 44¼, Harding Carpets 2 to 15, ITL Industries 1½ to 34½, Consolidated Paper 1¼ to 39¾ and Stelco ⅞ to 22⅞.

On the plus side of the ledger, B.C. Sugar rose 2 to 34, CPR 1¼ to 69¾ and Canadian Breweries and Magna Electronics ⅜ each to 7¾ and 20¾.

Consolidated Marbenor highlighted speculative activity, jumping 2.55 to 4.80. The company holds a 21-per-cent interest in Bowden Lake Mines in Manitoba, which announced it has encountered nickel mineralization.

BASE METALS GAIN

Among base metals, Inco gained 1¾ to 99¼ and Denison 1½ to 69¾. Noranda declined 1¾ to 51¾.

Silver issues, which ran up sharp gains last week following a U.S. government announcement that it is restricting sales of the metal, were trimmed in profit-taking.

Siscoe dropped 65 cents to 5.20 and Silverfields 20 cents to 3.75. United Keno moved up 35 cents to 5.70.

Among western oils, Dome advanced 2 to 55 while Canadian Superior retreated 1¾ to 35⅛ and Pacific Pete ¾ to 13⅞.

On index, golds were down .90 to 167.01, base metals .01 to 95.97 and western oils 1.84 to 155.02.

At Montreal, utilities were up .13 to 146.86 while banks slid 6.02 to 129.53 and papers 3.02 to 113.97.

Man Gets 6 Months For Fraud

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 41-year-old man who pleaded guilty to fraud involving $258,000 was sentenced Friday to six months in jail and fined $15,000.

Walter Harvey Link of Vancouver pleaded guilty to defrauding several people between January 1962 and September 1963 by publishing literature containing false statements about mineral claims.

Link also admitted using the mails to send letters and circulars about a scheme intended to unlawfully defraud the public.

He received a second six-month concurrent sentence on the second charge.

Link committed the offences while he was manager of the now-defunct International Claim Brokers Co. Ltd.

Link testified he mailed everything "for the whole world to see on the advice of the finest mining lawyer in town."

"A copy of everything I did was improper they would have Commission so that if anything was improper the ywould have advised us."

Interest Higher

OTTAWA (CP) — New 91-day Government of Canada treasury bills auctioned Thursday: $110,000,000 at an average price and yield of 98.965 and 4.20 per cent. Last week, $105,000,000, same term, 98.974 and 4.16 per cent.

182-day: $30,000,000 at 97.881 and 4.34 per cent. Last week, same amount and term, 97.927 and 4.25 per cent.

City Must Build Centre: Savage

The importance of a convention centre to Victoria was laid on the line Friday by the city's centre study chairman Clyde Savage.

"I don't think we'll have any alternative but to build it," he told Chamber of Commerce directors.

He said his committee's report will be made public Wednesday when it is presented to city council.

He was confident it would be accepted.

Mr. Savage also was sure the entire concept of tourism and convention business in Victoria will change, that there will be intensive promotion to make them pay.

"We will have to spend a lot more money than is spent now," he told directors.

SECONDARY INDUSTRY

Mr. Savage, an ex-alderman and the chamber's industrial development commissioner, said:

"This city isn't going anywhere unless it has secondary industry as well as the tourist industry."

It is the commission's intention to draft a new submission to Saanich council, which recently opted out of the industrial commission to which the other Greater Victoria municipalities belong.

He said Saanich will be invited to reconsider its action, and a detailed picture of full area participation in the development of industry will be given.

Mr. Savage said the proposed 4 per cent tax on tourist accommodation is questionable at this point, even though the chamber tourist industry group is making a detailed investigation of revenues and expenses involved in the hotel business.

The tax, it was thought, would produce money to build a convention centre and provide for outside promotion.

But Mr. Savage said no one knew how much the tax would raise if it were accepted as a revenue-producing source.

Tourist group chairman Sam Lane said the tax is still under active discussion, although the "hotels and motels very flatly turned down the proposed 4 per cent tax as such."

By the end of the year he expected to provide positive figures showing the revenue raised from Victoria's 2,944 commercial bedrooms, the expenses in keeping them, the amount spent by private business on outside promotion, the taxes paid.

He said there is an area of agreement that some form of taxation might be used to increase promotion funds, but to apply it to rooms would make the hotelmen uncompetitive in this area, it is felt.

★ ★ ★

Directors agreed to spend about $200 to buy 50 copies of the pictorial book Vancouver Island for presentation to special guests of the chamber.

Still in a spending mood, they approved purchase of a Junior Achievement trophy for $42.50 and of 10,000 "welcome to Victoria" lapel badges for $500.

Wage Parity a 'Ticket to Bankruptcy'

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Delegates to the Northern Interior Lumberman's Association annual meeting were told Friday not to accept an unrealistic wage contract with Interior woodworkers.

Peter Bentley, executive vice-president of Canadian Forest Products Ltd., told the delegates that to award the workers wage parity with coastal workers would be the same as issuing a one-way ticket to bankruptcy.

"If the International Woodworkers of America wins parity for Interior workers its memmers will just be getting paper wages," he said, "because few if any companies could stay in business."

Mr. Bentley said the onus will be on the unions to bargain realistically if the industry adopts a realistic attitude.

Commenting on B.C. forest policies, Mr. Bentley said the industry can not be forced to adopt uneconomic measures.

"The closed utilization policy could lead to financial waste and could jeopardize a large segment of the industry," he said.

New Chapter In Mining Opens June 19

By AB KENT
Business Editor

A new chapter in development of the B.C. iron industry is set for formal opening by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes June 19 at isolated Tasu Sound.

KENT

The flying trip to Moresby Island in the Queen Charlottes will be right up the lieutenant-governor's alley, since he is a staunch supporter of the natives and other hardy folk in remote villages tucked into inlets up and down the west coast.

The opening means that a $40 million investment by Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. for its Wesfrob Mines Ltd. project has started to pay off.

A company spokesman said about half the concentrator mill is in operation and has been for a month. One form of iron sinter concentrate is being milled.

Installation of the remaining machinery is virtually complete, and when everything is switched on, two kinds of iron concentrate and one copper concentrate will be produced.

Wesfrob, wholly owned by Falconbridge, has a 10-year contract to supply the Japanese metals industry.

* * *

It aims at building up a 75,000-100,000 ton stockpile before making the first deep sea shipment of concentrates, tentatively set for Aug. 9.

Falconbridge had hoped to get its Tasu project under way early last year, but labor difficulties were blamed for much of the construction delay. At any rate, more than $38 million had been spent up to Dec. 31.

The company had hoped to make $11 million on its first year's production, based on an earlier estimate of when the first ship load would go. Currently, there is a two-month extension of that time.

* * *

Falconbridge president H. J. Fraser said recently the past year had been frustrating, but the company had been able to deal with problems, buoyed partly in the knowledge that free world demand for nickel exceeds its expectations.

Mr. Fraser was bitter about B.C., however.

"It is now common practice in many areas to provide a 60-hour week — 20 hours of it overtime — in order to get tradesmen on the job.

"The B.C. government tried to abolish this practice, but work promptly stopped on northern projects and the proposed regulations had to be amended.

"Evidently nothing but the economic stragulation of our northern and more remote areas and of our basic industries will drive home to certain of our governmental theorists, public servants and labor leaders some of the realities of business life," Mr. Fraser complained.

Despite this, Wesfrob has set up a community at Tasu consisting of row houses, apartments, a hotel, school, church, shopping centre and recreational facilities.

* * *

Its mill site is one of the most scenic in B.C. industry, perched on a sidehill overlooking the sound with snow-capped mountains of the Queen Charlotte range in the distance.

In all, a welcome addition to the mining industry, although from its very remoteness few people will ever see it.

Watch out for the opportunist magazine salesman who is part of a team of legitimate magazine pedlars working the Victoria area.

They are accredited salesmen for the Maclean-Hunter organization and work out of its Vancouver office.

But one of them has drawn the ire of a few citizens, the Better Business Bureau and his home office for his pressure techniques.

* * *

A 72-year-old Victoria woman, for example, was sold $37 worth of one magazine, which would have given her 370 issues, or about 10 years of reading if she hadn't come to her senses and stopped payment on her cheque.

"The company does not condone such sales techniques," the BBB said.

Sooke Chamber of Commerce is doing a business survey to augment an employment survey completed recently.

President John Slemko said the latter indicated clearly the declining importance of logging to the labor force around Sooke. This year it represents 60 per cent of the force compared with 65 per cent last year and 78 per cent the year before.

He said mining, manufacturing and assorted occupations make up the remaining 40 per cent of the labor total.

Electricians Favor Strike

VANCOUVER (CP)—City electricians Friday voted 39 to 1 in favor of strike action to back wage contract demands. Union officials said strike notice would be served as soon as possible on the city.

The electricians, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, seek wage parity with IBEW employees of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

They are also asking for a reduction in the work week from 40 hours to 37½ hours. The electricians service all the city's maintenance and construction work, such as street lighting and radio systems.

CANADIAN UNION WINS WORKER VOTE

VANCOUVER (CP)—The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Friday lost a certification battle with the Canadian Electrical Workers National Union at Phillips Cables Ltd.

A total of 114 employees of the company voted in favor of having the Canadian union as their bargaining agent in a government-supervised vote.

Spokesmen for the Canadian union described the vote as a major breakthrough. Officials of the international had no immediate comment.

The Canadian union spokesman said the CEWNU hopes to establish itself soon in other plants across the country.

$4.5 Million Loss Recorded

MONTREAL (CP)—Dominion Textile Co. Ltd. said Friday that net loss for the year ended March 31, 1967, amounted to $4,565,835, equivalent to $1.80 a common share, compared with a profit of $7,345,837 or $2.79 a common share the previous year. Sales dropped to $129,800,000 from $178,300,000.

Operating loss for the year was $11,900,000 against a profit of $11,500,000 the previous fiscal year.

The company in its annual report blamed last year's 5½-month strike against seven company plants for the results.

The company projects capital expenditures of $5,500,000 this year, against an estimated $22,000,000 last year, with the bulk of the expenditure at Iroquoi, Ont., and Drummondville, Que.

TAKING OFF FOR SHOT AT RECORD

Tires screech as Seattle driver Jerry Norton unleashes power of his Vidioliner, an AA fuel dragster that he will attempt to gun to new strip record Sunday in drag races at San Cobble Raceways at Mill Bay. He'll be in match race with Belleview, Wash., pilot Jim Crooke, who will drive dragster that set strip mark by hitting 187.10 mph in 8.11 seconds. Cars from California will also be featured in meet, which starts with time trials at 9 a.m. and has eliminations scheduled for 2 p.m.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Things haven't been the same for me since they pulled the red carpet on Nikita Khruschev. Breznev and Koscygin are fairiy bright boys but they don't go around giving people the old Nick like Khruschev did.

K's rapier wit always managed to assert itself. He liked tilting lances with anybody . . . Richard Nixon, a U.S. farmer ("we grow big corn") and the United Nations.

It didn't really matter who grew the biggest corn except that the American grew his because he chose to. He had the freedom to decide on corn or mushrooms or alligators. But one vital aspect of Nikita's approach was that he was throwing phrases rather than bullets. A little dialogue can go a long way.

If Nasser would gas with the Israelis the white heat in the Middle East might dwindle into controlled peace.

The apparently inherent Russian characteristic of slamming your point of view across was recalled last Saturday. Father David Bauer told the story at the Cowichan Minor Football Sportsman's dinner in Duncan.

"Remember the visit of the Russian hockey team to Newfoundland last winter? The Russians beat the poor little Newfies 28-0 on Christmas Eve.

★ ★ ★

"After the game the Russian manager said to the arena manager, 'We want to practice tomorrow.'

"The arena manager had no intention of opening the rink on Christmas Day. He said 'You can't practice tomorrow. It's Christmas Day.'

" 'We want to practice,' the Russian insisted.

" 'Look,' said the arena manager, 'We don't open our arenas on Christmas. It's a family day here.'

"'We're practicing,' the Russian exclaimed.

"'You're not,' the arena man said.

"'We've been world champions for four years,' the Russian said. 'We practice every day. And we're practicing tomorrow.'

"The arena manager looked at the Russian coldly and said, 'Tomorrow is the birthday of Jesus Christ and he's been world champion for a helluva lot longer than you and you are not practicing. . . . !'"

That saga accurately portrays the singlemindedness of the Russian way of life. It may be a way to win a world's hockey championship but is it the best way to develop the whole individual?

Father Bauer is one Canadian who is concerned with the present and future Canadian. He's concerned that in a changing world the Canadian's motivation and growth may take the wrong channel.

★ ★ ★

He quoted Walter Lippman's The Public Philosophy: "We are living in a time of massive counter-revolution against democracy — that is liberal democracy; it is a failure of the west to cop with the misery and anxiety of the 20th century.

"Liberal democracies have been tried and found wanting; found wanting not only in their capacity to govern successfully in this world of war and unheaval, but also in their ability to defend and maintain a political philosophy which underlies our different way of life." This, said Father Bauer, is behind his thinking in the training of your athletes.

Father Bauer said he was taken by Robert Kennedy's remark to a Toronto group: "I would like to talk about the current world-wide contest for the hearts and minds of youth."

Kennedy, seeking to redefine democracy, took a line from a speech by a Candian statesman and former Governor-General, the late Lord Tweedsmuir: "Democracy is primarily a spiritual testament from which logically flows all of our economic, political and social institutions."

What has this to do with sport? A great deal, says Father Bauer. . . .

"Particularly in the direction of our efforts and in which we hope and expect our young people will in some sense model as they see us as the abidement of their ideals.

★ ★ ★

"We're not only interested in hockey. We're interested in football, in drama, in music, in everything that can give a boy something which all of us as adults require.

"What is it that each one wants? Security. Not in the sense only of material things; that could ultimately be our undoing.

"What are those (hippies) in the parks seeking? Themselves. That's our most prized possession — ourself. We want to be wanted. We want to love and to be loved. And that in a sense to me is what the whole notion of sport is all about.

"We need educated people but most of all in this world today we need people who are psychologically secure.

"This is what sport does. If I can learn to master a technique — Joe Primeau used to say 'Make use of technique but let spirit prevail' — if a child can only make a sign for the school play that child is getting confidence. Instead of worrying about his lack of interior ability to handle growth at that time, his mind will be occupied with other things. And therefore he — or she — will go into the classroom not so conscious of his or her emotional problems but he will go there to do his educational tasks if God has given him the ability.

"If He hasn't given him the intellectual ability he will have gained a tremendous amount from the physical talents which he has developed. . . ."

★ ★ ★

"That is why I consider sport and music and drama co-curricular activities. They perform an educational function of relating a person's physical talents within the wholeness of the human being to his intellectual talents which make it possible that one day we will have the leaders intellectually to face the task outlined by Walter Lippmann; the task outlined by Lord Tweedsmuir, the task outlined by Lester Pearson in Washington to the World Council of Churches, the task Konrad Adenauer spoke about in his last papers.

"Through these (sports) programs we will give children, young adults, adults a sense of their own ability to control their interior development.

"In that way we won't seek in strange, far-out ways, the path that will ultimately be the undoing of our community and ultimately our country . . . that which underlies western philosophy which has been a philosophy based on the freedom of the individual."

ATHLETIC PARK . . . . . . FINDS POPULARITY

Facelift Does Wonders

There's nothing quite like a facelifting job to restore an old girl's popularity.

At least that's the way it appears today with Royal Athletic Park, the "old girl" of the city's athletic fields which has acquired a new face and figure since the old stands were razed by fire.

Except for days kept blank to rest the turf, the park has been booked solidly for the rest of the year, Jack Morgan, director of the city's recreation services, said Friday while guiding an inspection tour of the new facilities.

"We even have three bookings for 1969," said Morgan, who is justifiably proud of the massive facelifting chore that has transformed the park into an attractive and modern multi-use facility.

There is little about the new layout to remind athletes and fans of the former fields, rickety press box and often-damp dressing rooms.

Two new stands — one for baseball and the other for soccer, football or other attractions — heated dressing rooms and a host of other improvements have made the vast difference.

Close to 5,000 fans are expected to get a look at the dressed-up "old girl" Tuesday night when Victoria O'Keefe's trot out for a soccer match against Chelsea of the English League first division.

Others won't wait that long. The park will be open for public inspection Sunday at 2. It will be officially opened by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes prior to Tuesday's soccer shindig.

Baseballers will be the first regular tenants to move in. The Senior Amateur Baseball League opens its season Wednesday night with a game at 6:30.

Regardless of the day you pick to pay the old girl a visit, the chances are you won't recognize Royal Athletic Park.

Crusader Clips Cincy Reds; Juan Still a Dodger-Tamer

By Associated Press

When Juan Marichal entertains the Los Angeles Dodgers, it's a Candlestick Park breeze.

But whenever — and wherever — Roberto Clemente and Cincinnati Reds run into each other, it's a fight for survival.

Marichal became the major leagues' first eight-game winner Friday night by scattering six hits as San Francisco Giants trimmed the visiting Dodgers 4-1.

Clement, meanwhile, continued his one-man crusade against Cincinnati by stroking a bases-loaded single in the 12th inning that gave Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-5 nod over the National League leaders.

In other NL action, Philadelphia topped St. Louis 7-4 on Don Lock's three-run homer, New York nipped Atlanta 1-0 on Don Cardwell's three-hitter and Houston flattened Chicago 17-4 in a club-record scoring spree.

In taming the Dodgers for the 14th time in 14 Candlestick Park decisions, Marichal ran his winning string to eight after three setbacks at the start of the season. The Dominican dandy has beaten the Dodgers twice this year.

CLEMENTE GETS EVEN

Clemente, the league's leading hitter, settled an 11-day-old score with Cincinnati by breaking up the extra-inning struggle at Pittsburgh. When the clubs opened a three-game series at Cincinnati May 15, Clemente drove in seven runs with three homers and a double, only to come out on the short end of an 8-7, 10-inning decision.

Home runs by Jim Hart, in the second inning, and Ollie Brown, in the forth, made Marichal's job an easy fling. He blanked the Dodgers until the eighth, when Willie Davis' run-scoring single averted a shutout.

RUN FOR MONEY

The Reds gave Clemente a dizzy run for his money. He singled in the first inning, was robbed of an extra-base hit by rightfielder Tommy Harper in the third, and chopped a hard grounder in the fifth that got through shortstop Leo Cardenas for a two-run error.

With the score tied 2-2 in the seventh, the Pirates' superstar struck out. With the game deadlocked 4-4 in the ninth, he reached base on another error by Cardenas but was thrown out at the plate trying to score from second on a passed ball.

Finally, after Cincy reliever Darrell Osteen loaded the bases on a walk and hit two batters in the 12th, Clemente delivered the hit to left field that broke a 5-5 tangle.

MOLSONS WIN 16-2

Four Share Honors In Big Bat Barrage

Four batters shared the Men's Senior Open Softball League spotlight Friday at Central Park as Molsons blasted their way to a 16-2 victory over Red Lion Inn.

Molsons' Roy St. Denis connected for two hits, one a home run. Jim Wilson stroked four hits to drive home two runs, Ron Brousseau plated three runs with two hits and Bob Lowe drove home two runs while collecting three hits to pace the winners' 14-hit barrage.

Triples by Bud Livingstone and Dennis Beaulac in the second and seventh frames helped account for the losers' two runs off winning pitcher Wade Burns.

VICTORIA OPENS . . . . . . AT VANCOUVER

New Cricket League

Veteran cricketer Tom Brierley of Cowichan will pilot a Victoria side against Vancouver City at Brockton Point as the opening matches of the newly-formed inter-city cricket league are played Sunday.

The league, created in order to provide a basis for selection of provincial representative teams, contains clubs from North Shore and Vancouver Metro as well as the Victoria and Vancouver City squads. North Shore and Metros meet Sunday at Pitt Meadows. Each club will play six games, one home and away with each entry.

The Victoria side includes Peter Clarke and Mike Nightingale of Cowichan, John Brazier, Ian Blair, Barney Sheihk and Jack Adams of Oak Bay and John Moss, Stan Jackson and Joe Armstrong of Alcos.

Nick Walton of Albions rounds out the playing squad. Kevan Hull has been selected as the team's umpire.

One Thing Sure—Wayne Was Here

Robinson Victoria Visitor For Talks With Steelers

WAYNE ROBINSON
. . . will he return?

One visit to Victoria by Wayne Robinson was enough to fan the fires of rumor that suggest the former coach of B.C. Lions is considering the position of head coach with Victoria Steelers, who will play this season in the western division of the Continental Football League.

Two visits should be enough to get the flames dancing 10 feet high. Add a possible tie-up between our Steelers and Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League and you have the makings of a beautiful rumor bonfire.

Everything is made up of rumor and James Bond stuff so far, except for one thing. Robinson was in town Friday and left this morning for Houston, where he is assistant coach with the American League Oilers with a reported $24,000-per-year contract.

That contract figure was enough to make almost everybody doubt he would be interested in a switch to Victoria. However, he was talking to Steeler general-manager Bill Bowes Friday and this morning.

RETURN PLANNED?

Today, it is rumored he will return to the city within a couple of days.

Naturally, nobody is confirming anything.

"I am here. I guess you can write about that," was about all Robinson would say of his visit. He neither confirmed nor deniel he would make a return trip.

While it is difficult to comprehend Wayne moving from an established league to a Victoria team in a new circuit, a possible link with an NFL club could increase the chances.

PROPOSAL DISCUSSED

The NFL and AFL were scheduled to discuss this week a proposal to place players from their "taxi squads" with CFL teams.

No official word from the meeting has been heard but the rumor popped up Friday that Pittsburgh had been selected to place several players with the Victoria club.

All the cloak-and-dagger reports of the past couple of days have been surprising. Except for Wayne's visit, they are all rumors.

They are also very confusing.

Lansdowne Aces Crack Records, Keep Team Title

Lansdowne athletes set four of seven meet records while leading their team to its second straight inter-junior high school track and field championship Friday at Macdonald Park.

Lansdowne scored seven firsts in 19 track events while racking up 113½ points. Central scored 100 points to take runner-up honors. Gordon Head finished third with 80½, followed by Oak Bay at 74, Colquitz 68½, Esquimalt 25½ and S. J. Willis 14.

Lansdowne held a slight edge after Wednesday's field events before sending their pace-setting track unit into action. B. Fryer won the senior boys' 880-yard event in the record time of 2:07.8. C. Johnson set an intermediate girls' 60-yard mark of 7.5 seconds, G. Simpson won the senior girls' 60 yards in 7.4 seconds and A. Langdale sprinted the intermediate girls' 100 yards in 12.2 seconds.

Sid Chow of Gordon Head ran 100 yards in 11.2 seconds to set a junior boys' mark. B. Walker of Colquitz took the senior boys' 220 in a record-breaking 24.2 while Oak Bay's Mark Johnson set an intermediate boys' 220 record of 25.2 seconds.

Oak Bay and Colquitz each led two relay events. Lansdowne and Central won one relay apiece and Gordon Head shared honors with Colquitz in the junior boys' event.

Competitors were permitted to enter only one field event, one track event and one relay.

Early Eruption Helps Climb to Second Berth

Successive first-inning home runs by Pete Songhurst and Mike Cox set Kings Hotel off to an explosive start in a 10-7 Stuffy McGinnis Senior Men's Softball League win over Victoria Bottle Exchange at Heywood Avenue Park Friday.

Relief pitcher George Barker drove home three runs to help himself pick up the victory that moved the Hotelmen into a second place tie with Century Inn.

KNUDSON'S world of GOLF

Golf is unique in that a large group of men travel from city to city all year long playing in tournaments, being friendly one moment then absolutely for themselves once they step on a course.

The large group of men — the men who play this game for a living — is made up of many different personalities. Take Julius Boros, for instance. He's Mr. Leisure on a course and off it. Big Julie does everything at a slow, relaxed pace and on a course he has a slow, easy, fluid swing. There is nothing in the world that could make Julie hurry. A golfer's swing, believe it or not, often is a key to his personality.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, with his hot Latin blood, has a somewhat Latin swing. He plays almost the same way he is off a course — every move is a quick one, in direct contrast to Julie.

* * *

Here in Canada we have Moe Norman. Moe doesn't like to stand still on or off a course. Off a course he's scurrying around always on the move. In a game of golf, he walks up to a ball and WHAP! Then he's rushing along to the next shot.

Gene Littler, who won the Canadian Open two years ago, is a guiet guy. You hardly notice him in a crowd or on a course. He just keeps going at his own steady pace. Gene The Machine, they call him.

Take Arnold Palmer. On a course he's an aggressive, dynamic type of a guy. In business, he's the same. Arnie has a positiveness in him that makes him attempt shots no other golfer would try. He makes putts that no other golfer could make.

Jack Nicklaus? Well, the Bear lets his golfing ability speak for him. He just kind of moves along and says: "Yes, I play golf for a living," and leaves it at that. Just as soon as you see him hit a ball you know why he didn't have to explain or go into detail.

* * *

And, if I were going to call somebody Mr. Determination, it would be little Gary Player of South Africa. I played with Gary in 1961, my first full season on the tour, and his attitude was different than anyone I had met. Arnold Palmer made Player what he is today. It was simple. When Player came over here, he went into a tournament with one thing in mind — beat Palmer.

He had absolutely no interest in what the rest of the field was doing. He figured that if he kept trying to beat Palmer he was trying to beat the best and that is would pay off in the long run. That same year, he won the Masters. Now, of course, he has added Nicklaus to his list. Player started off with far less potential than either Palmer or Nicklaus. But, through concentration and training, he has proven himself.

George's Tip

PLAYING A SLICE

The procedure is exactly opposite to that used when playing a hook. Weaken the right hand on your grip so that it is placed farther to the left than usual. Open your stance by withdrawing the left foot back from the line of flight.

For the right-handed golfer, this should cause your ball to curve from left to right. Naturally, the situation is reversed for the southpaw. Manoeuvring a ball in this fashion takes considerable practice and skill but can be helpful in certain situations. Feel comfortable with it before trying it during a game.

DISTAFF DIVOTING

Holders of Buttons Stubborn Defenders

Button-holders are proving to be stubborn defenders on the Victoria-area women's golf scene.

Two of the more determined are Edna Hay and Daphne Dagg of Glen Meadows who won their third successive senior button contest by downing the Colwood pair of Edith Henderson and Eileen Avery at Cedar Hill.

They also grabbed the top prizes in a "ball and chain" event at the Meadows. Daphne and "Digger" Dagg finished in front, followed by Edna and Gordon Hay.

At Cedar Hill, Irene Bowe and Eileen Mann won a fourth straight button match by defeating Daima Mann and Ethel Wright at the 17th green.

May Cross and Pat Mitchell were the winners of a button-type tussle at Gorge Vale, topping Elsie Saunders and Barbara Ricketts in a double-pin match.

* * *

Other distaff divots:

Bea Lundgren won the Patterson Trophy when she defeated Mary Wakelin in the final of the three-day event at Gorge Vale, where Vi Yuen and Pearl Ott share the lead at the halfway point of the 36-hole Hodges Trophy competition . . . J. Chapman (A Division) and E. Brown (B Division) earned honors in a medal-and-pin event at Victoria Golf Club . . . Sheila Morgan, playing in B Division, won the Par Bowl at Royal Colwood. She was four up on regulation figures . . . Velda Skilling and Eileen Ewing tied for A Division laurels in the Colwood par test, Jessie Davis was the best C swinger and Leslie Thomson shared the C-plus lead with Evelyn Margerison.

Ardmore ladies held their first CLGA contest of the season with K. Vickerman grabbing the top award . . . C. Payne won a nine-hole medal event . . . honors in a medal round at Cedar Hill went to Anne Larson with a net 65.

Heat Waves Fan Fires As Parnelli Swooshes

Heat waves have fanned the fires of controversy over a turbine car Parnelli Jones expects to drive in Tuesday's 500-mile race at Indianapolis Tuesday.

Parnelli had his machine out on the Indianapolis Speedway track Friday during final shakedown runs and several drivers complained that shimmering waves of heat from the car, which had been unnoticed earlier in chilly weather, caused them trouble as the temperature climbed to about 80.

Jones didn't help the situation by swooshing past other cars, apparently at will, on the short chutes coming out of the front and back stretches. The four-wheel-drive turbine car has four 12.10 by 16-inch tires, each having about a 10-inch-wide "footprint" on the track and giving tremendous traction.

Elsewhere in the world of sport:

At Oklahoma City, balding Miller Barber and Dave Stockton shared a one-stroke lead after the second round of the $66,000 Oklahoma City Open golf tournament. They had both used up 142 strokes in the first 36 holes, one better than the scores posted by Gary Player, Billy Casper, George Archer, Rex Baxter and Jim Colbert. . . Flin Flon Bombers have been granted a franchise in the Canadian Major Junior Hockey League. Commissioner Frank Boucher said Friday that a Winnipeg franchise, held by Ben Hatskin, will become operational next season. . .

Former middleweight boxing contender, Rubin (Hurricane) Carter, and John Artis were found guilty of first-degree murder Friday for the tavern slaying of a bartender and two customers last June 17. The jury recommended life imprisonment. Superior Court Judge Samuel A. Larner set sentencing for June 29.

FISHING REPORT

Steelheaders Urged To Write of Catches

Fishermen have long been noted for their eagerness to talk about their catches.

Officials of the fish and wildlife branch wish some of them—the ones who chase steelhead trout—were as willing to write about their luck, or lack of it.

Some time ago the branch sent out questionnaires to all anglers who took out special steelhead licences. Now the wildlife people would like to have the forms returned to the Victoria office so information can be compiled to assist in fisheries management.

About half the forms have been returned. More are wanted, including those from steelheaders who weren't fortunate enough to land a fish from licencees who didn't get out fishing.

Few people are thinking about steelhead at this time of year but plenty of salmon anglers are thinking about those big white chinooks that have produced some limit catches at Saanich Inlet.

The white chinook (spring) salmon, which last week seemed to be bunched around Coles Bay, are now showing in many parts of the inlet, particularly around McKenzie Bay and the Goldstream section.

The big ones are deep and there are more like the 21-pounder caught by 16-year-old Bob Hall that could add interest to the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association members' derby Sunday. Also at the Inlet, the second week of the 10-week VSIAA ladder derby begins Sunday.

Some big chinooks and a few husky halibut have been landed by sportsmen working off Oak Bay and good fishing for bluebacks is still reported from Pedder Bay, where 100 boats last weekend returned with more than 300 fish.

Deep trolling has been producing a few big chinooks at Cowichan Bay and good returns on blues and jacksprings are reported from Sansum Narrows, Maple Bay, Porlier Pass, the Flat Tops and Snake Island.

Bluebacks averaging around four pounds have been keeping lines bouncing around Northwest Bay with the section between Gerald Island and Winchelsea Island considered the hottest area.

Big blues are also hitting well around Comox, Deep Bay and Oyster Bay but they have not yet shown in waters north of Campbell River.

However, chinooks are moving in the Campbell River area and Ron Francis hit the jackpot last week while spin-casting from government wharf, reeling in a 32-pounder.

Lakes and streams around Campbell River are giving up some excellent trout catches and fairly good trout fishing has been reported in the last few days from Cowichan River and Cowichan Lake. Trollers are doing fairly well in Shawnigan, Quamichan and Kemp lakes.

Closer to Victoria, a few good-sized trout are available in Thetis, Elk and Beaver Lakes.

Colquitz Band Eyes Win at '67 Festival

Spring activity of Colquitz Junior Secondary School Band will include participation in the Provincial Finals of the Canadian Centennial Music Festival in Vancouver, June 8-10.

The band, directed by Emil Michaux, had built a fine reputation in past years, taking top place in local and international festivals and this year climaxing its record by winning semi-final rounds to become Vancouver Island Class II (under 50 members) representative in the Provincial finals.

The 45 members of the band vary in age from 13 to 16.

Also in June the band will travel to North Vancouver to play at Balmoral Junior Secondary School. In exchange the Balmoral band will come to Victoria June 2, to perform at Colquitz Junior Secondary.

Mr. Michaux returned this week from Abbotsford where his other band, Gordon Head Junior Secondary, won first place in its class.

Cigarette Starts Coffee Shop Fire

A cigarette butt tossed into a plastic pail is blamed for starting a fire in a downtown coffee shop Thursday night.

Damage was estimated at $500 in the blaze at the Patio Cafe, 704 Johnson. The fire started beneath the lunch counter.

North Breezes

The four salesmen at the window table had finished breakfast but they hadn't finished swapping stories. When our Maitre d' Leslie personally refilled their coffee cups one asked him:

"What's behind the wall?"

Leslie said IMPERIAL is building a wing with conference rooms, ideal for sales meetings, club gatherings and private receptions. Removable walls can adapt the space to the size of the gathering. And it's handy to the kitchen for fast refreshment service.

"You won't be able to see the swimming pool," the salesman protested.

"And we'll get more work done," said the sales manager. He asked for a reservation three months from now.

* * *

And IMPERIAL congratulations to baton twirling champ Janet Beattie, to naval golf tourney winner Boyd Brooks and to city chess victor, Ray Kerr.

BUSY PERIOD

Between June 6 and 21 examiners from the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, will be in Victoria to conduct the series of 1967 practical examinations.

A vast number of piano students will occupy the full period and two examiners; Dr. George Brough, musicologist, CBC recitalist and accompanist, and Gordon Hallett, of the Conservatory's piano faculty.

Dorothy Allan Patk will examine singers on June 9, John Montague, strings June 12 and Florence Aymong, speech arts, June 17.

Organ, Strings, Soloists

An exceptionally interesting program that will combine organ, strings and vocal music, will conclude this season's fine series of sacred music concerts at Christ Church Cathedral next Wednesday.

Arranged by Richard Proudman in collaboration with University of Victoria's gifted musician and conductor, Bryan Gooch, the program will also feature several cathedral choir soloists.

Continuing his exploration of the great quantity of lovely music written for worship by the masters, Mr. Proudman has made an arrangement of three of Mozart's 17 one-movement sonatas for organ and strings.

FAST TEMPO

Selecting two in fast tempo and one slow, he will perform them as a miniature concerto.

These sonatas were composed by Mozart to fill in three-minute gaps in the ritual of the mass.

Mr. Gooch will conduct the string orchestra in St. Paul's Suite by Gustave Holst, and both the senior and boys' choirs will sing.

Among soloists with the senior choir will be Norma Selwood, William Broadhead and Madeleine Groos and with the boys' choir, Brian Groos.

Two contemporary English pieces, one by the brilliant Westminster Abbey organist Simon Preston, the other the only piece written for organ by Benjamin Britten, will be played by Mr. Proudman.

The concert begins at 8 p.m. A collection will be taken.

30 Candidates

Largest group of applicants from British Columbia since inauguration of the National Theatre School in Montreal in 1960 has registered for auditions in Vancouver June 1 and 2.

Interviewing more than 30 candidates will be William Davis, artistic director of the English acting course; David Peacock, director of the production course, and Andre Muller, artistic director of the French acting course.

Light-Hearted Comedy Fare To Close Guild's Season

A bubbling, light-hearted comedy is Victoria Theatre Guild's salute to Canada in the Centennial year.

George Blackburn's A Button is Missing will be staged as the season's final production at Langham Court Theatre, June 10-17.

★ ★ ★

The comedy is under the careful direction of Edna Kowalchuk with Ken Bostock, Lorraine Bowman, Nora Kellie, John Britt, Jennifer Wyatt and Helen Phillips in leading roles.

A Button is Missing was on the program of plays scheduled last fall by the 1966-67 production committee.

But it will also provide a preview of things to come when it opens on the new full-curtained stage, dimensions of which have been further extended by a deep apron.

The Guild's Langham Court Theatre now boasts one of the largest playing areas in the city.

★ ★ ★

Under the new executive headed by president Allan Purdy, the old workroom has also been developed into an attractive and confortable coffee bar.

Following the week's run of A Button is Missing, the theatre will be turned over to Jerry Gosley for rehersals prior to opening of the Smile Show there July 8.

★ ★ ★

Casting of the first two fall productions, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? and Charley's Aunt, will take place during the summer. Rehearsals will start when the Smile Show closes at the end of August.

All seats are reserved for Guild productions and the box office for A Button is Missing will open at Eaton's at the beginning of June.

Diamond in the Groove

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Record reviewers are usually constrained to write about newly released records of miscellaneous kinds and varying quality.

As an introductory review, the first in a new series, we decided to write on records we have enjoyed so much that we would, without reservation, recommend them to other music lovers.

Clifford Curzons' playing of Liszt's Sonata in B minor (on London CM 9371 Mono, CS 6371 Stereo) is outstanding in its excellence.

●

The only reasonable criticism of such playing that an intelligent listener might make, is that Curzon's interpretation differs from that of his favorite pianist.

In this scholarly playing the artist combines liquid melting runs and singing cantabile notes with dramatic pauses and crescendos which bring out the very essence of the music.

His dazzling technique reveals a control and restraint throughout which, while it does not prevent his ferreting out the fullest excitement from the dramatic parts, shows to perfection in his soft descending scale passages.

The technical skill with which the piano is recorded adds immeasurably to the listener's pleasure. The full, deep bass notes, the clear unblurred runs — in hearing these one forgets that this is a record and not a live performance.

A selection of pieces on the reverse side, equally well played and recorded, starts with Liebestraum No. 3.

The performance is beyond criticism and while some listeners might feel a touch of chagrin that such an excellent recording should include this rather overworn piece, others, regarding it as a prime favorite, will delight in hearing it so well played.

In Valse Oublie No. 1 there is a suggestion of the ballerina, such a ballerina as choreographers dream about; far too light and faery to be real, she floats and skims where other dancers tread.

Gnomenreigen, the dance of the gnomes is a series of movements between the high shrill notes at the upper end of the piano and the deep troll-like tones at the bottom of the piano.

●

The two tunes move together with stealthy steps then scamper back to their own ends. Sometimes they sould like shrill gnomic voices, sometimes like prancing stamping feet but always there is an echo of mocking laughter and a sense of mischief in the scurrying semitones.

An entirely different record which should delight those interested in traditional church music is Westminster Abbey's Famous Composers (CLP 1867 Mono CSD 1603 Stereo).

In this recorded miscellany there is fine co-ordination between the choristers — sweet-toned trebles, rich altos, strident tenors and resounding basses — and the magnificent organ superbly played by the young virtuoso, Simon Preston.

The highlight for many listeners would perhaps be Blow's Salvator Mundi. This shows both choir and organ at their best. Shafts of sound penetrate the echoes as each song-line enters. Soft, falling cadences, thrilling crescendos, interweave in a wide variety of chordal and contrapuntal nuances.

●

It is always difficult to record singing in a building like Westminster Abbey. The technicians have produced a fine balance of sound in this record for, though the echoes do swallow some of the clarity of diction usually associated with a first-class choir, they also in recompense, add an ethereal touch to the sound which lifts it above ordinary choral excellence.

In this series of record reviews we hope to discuss several records in each colum and next time a Leider Cycle, an organ recital and a humorous satire will probably be among the records reviewed.

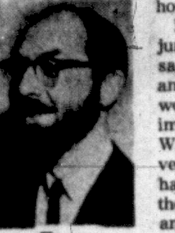
VOICE FROM THE GALLERY

Paintings in Stinkeroo Class Much Worse Than Last Year?

By TONY EMERY

Until June 4 you have an opportunity to see the 17th Vancouver Island Jury Exhibition at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.



Emery

For the benefit of those who have only recently learned that the shows in most public and private galleries change regularly — and you would be astonished what a large number of people fall in that category—I will explain that a jury exhibition is one for which the public at large is invited to submit entries.

Usually they are limited as to the number of works they are allowed to put in: commonly anything from two to four submissions in each of the usual categories of oils, watercolors, graphics-and-drawings, and sculpture. And as the name implies, our local show limits the right to enter to those resident on the Island.

●

The next step is to swear in a panel of painters, critics, out-of-town gallery officials or any four men selected at random from among the ranks of the unemployed to do the jurying. "In recent years," I quote from the May-June bulletin of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, "there has been a growing feeling among critics and gallery directors that, on the whole, the best-judged shows are those picked by one-man juries." I am sure this is true, though of course the eccentric choices of a poor judge are not to be valued above even the compromise decisions of a strife-torn committee of knowledgeable jurors.

In the one-man judge (my respect for the British system of justice is such that I cannot bring myself to call one man a jury) the gallery is entitled to expect consistency of criteria for selection, in addition to vast knowledge of media and techniques, perspicacity, toleration for both tradition and innovation, integrity and—perhaps the most necessary of all in the judge's kit—thickness of skin, fleetness of foot and remoteness of domicile. All this for $50, expenses and a decent lunch; and sometimes there's no honorarium.

How good a job a judge or jury does it is impossible to say unless you have also had an opportunity to look at the works rejected, but I get the impression that on the whole William Hixson's choice is very much what one would have expected to see, though the bad things in this show—and some of them are really rivetingly, stupefyingly terrible—seem to me to be worse than what I can remember of last year's award-winners in the stinkeroo category.

●

When it comes to picking the best things, it is not likely that any four experts will agree, so you might as well have one person's opinion. I agreed in general with the choice of the judge but I would like to persuade you to look closely at some works that didn't get an honorable mention, in case you assume that no mention means no merit.

Max Bates's "Bathers" and his watercolor of "Emily Carr Painting a Landscape," for instance, are good examples of two sides of Max's many-faceted personality as an artist.

●

I found Steve Ramos's sculpture much more interesting than Lloyd Tuck's and I spent some time enjoying Gail Bigsby's "View of Delft" with its sly allusions to paint-by-numbers, and E. Schleicher's "Wind and Waves," a tempestuous breath of Dresden in the era of "Die Brucke." Those who have succeeded in getting their pretty feeble water-colors hung should take a look at Brian Travers-Smith's "A Time of Waiting," if they want to see the kind of thing they want to do well done.

I was entranced by W. Holms's primitive "Ascension." What does the artist know of Blake? Or Rousseau le Douanier? Or Giotto's angel's? Who is the archangelic figure who in addition to the normal attributes has a couple that I do not remember to have seen before—in religious painting, that is? And don't miss the work of Paul Bishop, which is small but good, or the estampille print of Pat Martin Bates, or John Dobereiner's "Escutcheon." Jury shows are wonderful opportunities for the Monday morning quarterback to show his skill, and this one is no exception.

Berton Play Taken From Best Seller

Journalist Pierre Berton, renowned for his biting humor and outspoken opinions, has written book, lyrics and music of Paradise Hill, a musical to be premiered July 3 in the Charlottetown Summer Festival.

The story is based on real-life characters and actual incidents which first appeared in his best-selling book, Klondike.

Subtitled Canada's festival of music and laughter, the Charlottetown Festival in its third year is aided by a Canada Council grant of $101,000—which is $91,000 more than it received the first year.

A second musical is the revival of Anne of Green Gables, the smash success of both previous years. "Anne" goes on tour this fall and will be seen in Victoria in September.

VIET PLEA:

Just Wish We'd Be Left Alone

TEN VIETNAMESE by Susan Sheehan. Random House. $6.50.

Reviewed by R. C. Terry

Ten Vietnamese is a series of character sketches written last year by Susan Sheehan, when she and her husband, a foreign correspondent for The New York Times, were in Saigon.

Several of the portraits have appeared separately in journals. Collected here in one book they make up an eloquent account of the land and its people.

The book fulfils two functions. It makes us aware of the chief victims of the war at a time when, as author notes in her introduction, the conflict has become more of an American than a Vietnamese story. More importantly, it reveals the unlikelihood of total victory for the Americans, a conclusion which Arthur Schlesinger Jr. and other noted political commentators have reached in recent studies.

Mrs. Sheehan is no political pundit. Her concern here is with the spiritual and moral disaster which has befallen the Vietnamese in 20 years of domination, intrigue and bloodshed. What she needs to explain of historical events she does tersely and appropriately.

Her focus, however, is on the human beings involved—the peasant worried about the stray bullet from the Viet Cong rifle, the landlord speculating on longer tenancies for his American friends, the captive North Vietnamese banking on a Communist victory in the end. The style is suitably lucid and unemotional. Indeed, the lack of actual detail about the bombings only serves to increase the book's impact. As the picture emerges of a people tried to the utmost, one simply connects it with what the news media have already reported to us of air-strikes and more efficient napalm.

Can the Americans force a military solution? Not judging from this account. Tribal affiliations and prejudices provide one immense obstacle, barriers of caste and custom another.

•

But the greatest obstacle of all is religious diversity. Buddhism, Roman Catholicism, Taoism, Confucianism, divide the Vietnamese; some religious groups, the Buddhists particularly, are powerful influences in political affairs.

Mrs. Sheehan does not attempt to analyze the Buddhist involvement, as does Thich Nhat Hanh in Vietnam: The Lotus in the Sea of Fire, for example; instead she describes Hanh Duc—how he became a monk, how he spends his days, how he prays for the war to end:

"I don't care who wins, because I have no idea which side will turn out to be good or bad for Buddhism. I just wish we'd be left alone to practise our religion."

•

Throughout the book the complex nature of Vietnamese problems is always apparent. Take the case of the Montagnards. These are a mountain people comprising a dozen tribes. Almost a million Montagnards occupy North and South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos, a separate race ethnically and linguistically despised by the Vietnamese.

Harried by both sides the Montagnards survive, making sacrifices to their pantheon of spirits of earth and sky, and struggling to plant and harvest as they dodge the planes searching for Viet Cong, or, at other times, the Viet Cong effecting reprisals against them.

Their plight goes back to the early 20th century.

Once the French administered the highlands where the Montagnards lived separately from the rest of the country.

Before partition in 1954 the Viet Minh infiltrated and at the time of the Diem regime in 1955 the Viet Cong found the Montagnards indispensable as guides, porters and gatherers of intelligence.

To some extent the Viet Cong were their allies, whereas the Diem government trampled on Montagnard tribal patterns and made them subject to Vietnamese law. This led to a Montagnard movement for autonomy which the Viet Cong encouraged.

The efforts of the U.S., particularly CIA, to win the support of the Montagnards have included supplying arms, which the nationalist government has disliked intensely. Thus the Montagnard region seethes with unrest. Disaffection with Saigon has increased, and Communist power has grown. Can American diplomacy bring harmony out of this chaotic situation?

It seems unlikely, for as M. Jean Lacouture's Vietnam: Between Two Truces pointed out, America despite all its good intentions has merely repeated the mistakes of its predecessors in the area since 1945, through its failure, or perhaps more likely, its unwillingness, to recognize the social, political and economic strains within the country.

Unlike M. Lacouture, though, Mrs. Sheehan largely ignores the traditional hostility between North and South, and concentrates on the common people's ignorance of what is happening, and their natural inclination to side with whichever power is in the village at the time.

•

Duong Tam, a refugee in a camp 270 miles northeast of Saigon, seems to typify the ordinary man's plight. He is a Catholic with eight children brought up in the village of Gia Hoi in the central highlands. Like his parents he worked in the rice fields, eventually saving enough to buy four acres of riceland and build a brick house. The Viet Minh made their presence known in 1945. Duong Tam comments:

"I wouldn't want the French to return to Vietnam, but life under the French was better than under the Viet Minh. The French let us alone. The Viet Minh interfered too much in our lives, making us destroy bridges and making us listen to propaganda."

In the late fifties when the Viet Cong became active, Tam joined the government Self-Defence Corps, partly to protect his hamlet, but largely out of principle. Tam believed that some people co-operated with the Viet Cong because of a particular grievance against the government, that others sided with whichever force happened to be predominant. More wound up with the VC because the VC were "a much more constant presence, especially at night."

Captured by the VC he was sentenced to death, but somehow he and his family escaped. Now with some 200 other families Tam lives in the refugee camp on a stretch of treeless sandy land. There is only one well and no sanitary facilities of any kind. Always there is the fear that the VC will infiltrate the camp, or that the government will reclaim the land for its own uses.

Here in his ten-by-ten shack with walls of woven bamboo and paper cartons Tam sleeps on the second bed with the three children. His wife and the three youngest children occupy the other bed. There is no room for any other furniture.

Yet Tam is not beaten. He does not complain about working six days a week for a construction firm, carrying bricks and sand and breaking up stones. He sums up the Vietnam tragedy thus:

"There are so many families with relatives on both sides. I've seen government hamlet chiefs murdered by Viet Cong guerrillas led by their own nephews. It breaks your heart to see Vietnamese families killing each other like that."

His chief worry is whether he will ever see his own hamlet and his mother or mother-in-law again:

"I'd rather return to Gia Hoi than go anywhere in the world. . . . When the war is over, perhaps I'll be able to go home again, but perhaps it won't be possible. I don't like to think that I'll have to live in a refugee camp forever."

Ten Vietnamese does not analyze the Vietnam situation or offer political situations but it presents vividly the victims of a war which should be on everyone's conscience.

Artists Liked Him Sober But Friends Urged Drink

MODIGLIANI. Pierre Sichel. New York, Dutton, 1967. $12.00.

Reviewed by Tony Emery

Amedeo Modigliani was born in Livorono in 1884 into an Italian-Jewish family.

Delicate in health from childhood, he was spoiled by his mother, who encouraged him to follow his passion for art. When he was 22 she paid his fare to Paris, where he lived, loved, drank, drugged, carved and painted until he died at 36 in January 1920.

Paris in the decade and a half from 1906 to 1920 was the centre of 20th century European art, and Modigliani's gifts earned him the respect of fellow-artists as diverse as Picasso, Soutine and Utrillo. For years he could not engage the interest of a dealer, and when first Paul Guillaume and later Zborowski did try to sell his work they found few buyers.

Modigliani the man, however, was notorious throughout Montmartre and Montparnasse for his outrageously disordered life.

In a far from censorious environment, he was a byword for his drunkenness and truculent extravagance.

Serious artists who enjoyed his company when he was sober avoided him when hashish and brandy had transformed the handsome, charming, intelligent painter into a staggering madman. For the hangers-on, the beachcombers on the seacoast of Bohemia, the legendary excesses of Modigliani provided some justification for their own indulgences; they stood him drinks in exchange for those exquisite drawings which today fetch up to $3,500 at auction. The wonder is not that drink, drugs and tuberculosis destroyed him at 36, but that he should have lived so long.

•

Pierre Sichel has drawn on the innumerable accounts of those years by painters and writers (who have given us their memoirs on a scale only exceeded by Allied and German generals of World War Two and has ransacked every possible source of information about Modigliani. The fact is, as Sichel admits in his foreword, that "Modigliani left behind very little correspondence and almost none of the documents necessary for complete biography." There are "great gaps that invite speculation," and Sichel has eagerly accepted the invitation.

•

Seldom can a biographer have leaned more heavily on the "perhaps" and the "possibly," or more frequently have aroused the reader's suspicion that events and conversations were being invented to plug the holes in the historical record. (It is interesting to learn from the jacket that Sichel has previously written a best selling novel, a "fictionized biography of the fabulous Lillie Langtry" and another novel "about a freewheeling Vermont poet in the Dylan Thomas mold.")

The book is inordinately long and maddeningly repetitive. It could easily — and profitably — have been reduced to about a third of its present bulk of 600 pages.

It does however contain valuable photographs, some of which have hitherto been inaccessible to English-speaking readers; the early chapters throw interesting light on Modigliani's family background, youth and early manhood; and his stormy affaire with Beatrice Hastings and the tragic relationship with Jeanne Hebuterne are examined as fully as exiguous documentation permits.

There is little here for the reader primarily interested in Modigliani the painter.

Sichel quotes prestigious commentators on art but himself tends to keep off the grass of art criticism and history. Perhaps he is wise, in view of what happens when he does offer a technical comment of his own. "Modi evolved with the Cubist painters who were his friends," we are told in one memorable excursion. "They tended to give their pictures colors by giving them complementary tones in the seven fundamental colors. This produces pleasant harmonies and what Cezanne, among others, called unity."

The chief — and surely foreseeable — drawback to this fat and expensive biography of one of the minor masters of the 20th century is the paucity of illustrations of Modigliani's paintings and drawings. One faint self-portrait sketch in pencil is all we are offered of eighteen years of work. Can anyone think that this is enough?

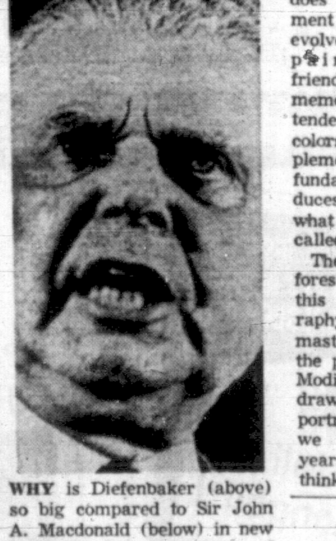
Reviewed by R. H. Roy

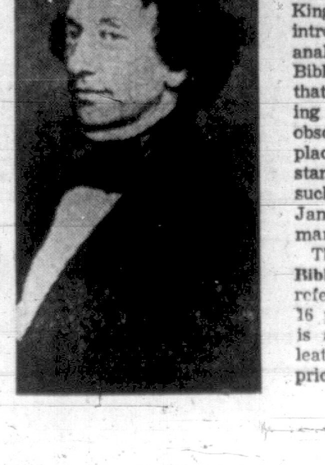
The idea of a slim volume giving a biographical sketch of Canada's prime ministers is a good one for this Centennial Year. Most of these men have had their biographies written by scholars, but off hand I cannot recollect any book wherein one can get a thumbnail sketch of each between the covers of one book.

Both authors are journalists, and this volume is aimed at the popular market. It is based on secondary sources, and does not attempt to be original or to offer any new analysis of the men who guided Canada. Actually it is not bad fare as a whole, but I cannot refrain from questioning the amount of space given to some of the prime ministers.

For example Sir John A. Macdonald gets 16 pages, Laurier and Mackenzie King get 12. Fair enough. But on this basis, why on earth devote 14 pages to Diefenbaker and 11 to Pearson? This imbalance might be due to the personal interests of the authors, but there are other textual weaknesses which detract from an otherwise brightly written if somewhat shallow view of the 14 men who guided our destinies in the past century.



WHY is Diefenbaker (above) so big compared to Sir John A. Macdonald (below) in new book, The Prime Ministers of Canada? asks reviewer Dr. R. H. Roy of University of Victoria. Total of 14 pages is devoted to Diefenbaker and 16 to Macdonald. See story above.



Anthology

It is not growing like a tree
In bulk, doth make men better be;
Or standing long an oak, three hundred year,
To fall a log at last, dry, bald, and sear:
A lily of a day
Is fairer far in May;
Although it fall and die that night,
It was the plant and flower of light.
In small proportions we just beauties see,
And in short measures life may perfect be.
—Ben Jonson, 1572-1637.

New Study Bible Out

The New Scofield Reference Bible, a completely revised edition of one of the most popular study Bibles ever published, has just been issued by Oxford University Press.

This new edition uses the King James Version, with introduction, outlines and analyses of every book of the Bible. Obsolete words, words that have altered their meaning since 1611, and certain obscure expressions are replaced for a better understanding of the scriptures. In such cases the orginal King James version is given in the margin.

The New Scofield Reference Bible includes footnotes, cross references, a concordance and 16 pages of colored maps. It is available in cloth or fine leather bindings at a range of prices from $7.95 to $31.50.

Knights of Charge Account Making Hay During Day

THE EFFECTIVE EXECUTIVE, by Peter F. Drucker. Fitzhenry and Whiteside Ltd. 1967. $6.25.

Reviewed by Sam Macey

The days when a man might dream of being a prince on a white charger are over, and this is in no small measure because the princes of today are valued in terms of the impressiveness of the charge account rather than the charger.

The most cursory glance at the paperback literature addressed to women from the racks of drugstores will show that the new type of princes into whose domains women aspire are frequently the "chief executives—in government, army, hospitals, business and so on" which Drucker's book claims that it can tell us—all of us—how to become. Moreover, the happy message is that "practices can always be learned."

The structure if not the logic of the book is cyclic.

Drucker opens with the statement that "effectiveness can be learned." Having spelled out the five practices for so doing at the close of his first chapter, he gives to each of the practices its respective place in the chapters which follow.

It is, indeed, his by no means uninteresting process of expansion through anecdote, example and reflection which forms the main body of Drucker's book before he closes with the chapter "Effective Decisions" and his conclusion that "Effectiveness Must Be Learned."

The five practices which Drucker feels that the effective executive must lean ad nauseam are: effective executives know where their time goes, effective executives focus on the results rather than on the work, effective executives build up from strength rather than from weakness, effective executives concentrate on the areas where outstanding results can be obtained, and "effective executives finally make effective decisions." Mr. Drucker claims that his book is a "first word" on the subject, though he admits in one place that what he has to say sounds to him "obvious, if not trite" and in another that some executives far from being taught are "naturals."

In view of such refreshing though spasmodic humility one hardly likes to point out that the fifth practice is virtually circular in its definition if not in its logic, while the fourth practice is already so well known to industrial engineers that it is referred to by the term: "creaming the business."

As I have said, Mr. Drucker, who is no outsider to the world of large corporations and high executives, claims that his book is a "first word" on the subject in respect of "knowledge workers.'

He puts it this way: "The imposing system for manual work—from industrial engineering to quality control—is not applicable to knowledge work."

It is true that industrial consultants (call the animal by whatever name you like) have, ever since the time of the almost mythical Bedaux, been remarkably coy about publishing their "knowledge." Since the Second World War, however, industrial engineering—first in the United States and more recently in Great Britain, where the practice is called work study—has become a force to be reckoned with.

Moreover, the Institute of Work Study Practitioners, which will almost certainly have wrested numerical leadership from its American rival within two years, stand in loco parentis not merely to technologists but also to the very consultants and senior engineers to whom Drucker appears to be addressing his "first word" under the admittedly new title of "knowledge workers." The point which I am making is clearly set out in the article entitled "A Work Study Engineer" which appears in the January, 1967, issue of the journal Work Study.

All this, of course, need not bother the readers of Mr. Drucker's book.

The people who are really going to become executives will be studying under the auspices of a university or a recognized professional body. Mr. Drucker's customers will for the most part be those who, in return for a few dollars, wish to visit a dream world where the modern equivalent of the prince is riding high on the modern equivalent of the white charger—for such readers Mr. Drucker provides admirably.

Talking to a fellow from Coquitlam the other day. Works in the water department for the municipality.
And he was grumbling about his job.
"Nobody ever sees what we do," he complained. "In public works when they build a road, everybody sees it. In the electrical department, if they put up new street lights, everybody knows about it.
"But all anyone ever notices about us is the holes and ditches we dig. They never see our new water mains, never see the effort and skill we put into a job. And when we're finished we cover the entire thing up.
"Sometimes it doesn't seem fair."
He needn't have worried.
It may be true that the general public doesn't fully appreciate the work of the men who make it possible for water to move from a remote watershed to the kitchen sink, but they know about skilled Journeymen Mechanics.
Not only know about them, but also appreciate the fact that without them progress would have ground to a halt long ago.

All-Canadian Look To Drama Winners In Sunday Feature

St. John's, Newfoundland, scene of the Centennial year Dominion Drama Festival, featuring all-Canadian plays, will also provide the setting for a one-hour CBC-TV special about the event, on Sunday, at 10 p.m., on Channels 2 and 6.

The prime television program, Dominion Drama Festival Awards, will centre on the awards presentations (to best actor and actress, best play, best director and so on) in an edited version of the actual presentations the evening before, on the final night of the festival.

Gordon Pinsent, star of CBC-TV's Quentin Durgens MP, will appear as master of ceremonies. The program will also feature Guy Beaulne, the DDF adjudicator, who comments on the festival and its winners.

Each award presentation will be accompanied by taped inserts of scenes from the play productions applicable to the winner. The play clips will be recorded each night of the festival, Monday through Friday, and integrated into the telecast to support the adjudicator in his references to plays and performers.

John F. Brook, of Simcoe, national president of the festival, will open the awards event. Guests of honor in attendance are expected to include Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland, the Hon. Fabian O'Dea, Chief Justice R. S. Furlong, MBE, and John C. Perlin, all of St. John's.

Festival adjudicator Guy Beaulne, of Quebec City, is well known to DDF and regional festival participants as one of Canada's most experienced adjudicators. A former CBC drama producer and a veteran stage director, he is now director of the theatre division of the Quebec ministry of cultural affairs.

Best of Bowling

The finals of the men's and women's 26th annual World Series of Bowling will be presented in color on Channel 12 Sunday at 1:30 p.m.

The exclusive broadcast will originate at Skylark Lanes, St. Louis.

Defending champion Dick Weber of St. Louis, men's division winner four of the last five years, heads the tournament's 288-man field. Joy Abel, 1966 women's winner from Chicago, tops the distaff roster of 144. The starters represent the survivors of local, city and state eliminations, in which 20,000 bowlers from the United States, Japan, Canada and Australia participated.

The broadcast will cover the final three-game total-pins match in each division, between the two men and two women remaining after seven days of eliminations. The winner in the men's division will receive $15,000 and in the women's division $5,000.

Meet The Press

Cyrus R. Vance, deputy secretary of defence, will be the guest on "Meet the Press" Sunday at 1 p.m. on Channel 5, originating live from Washington, D.C.

Newsmen interviewing Mr. Vance will be, Charles W. Corddry, of the Baltimore Sun; Rowland Evans, of the Chicago Sun-Times; Lloyd Norman, of Newsweek, and Robert Goralski, NBC News correspondent.

Lawrence E. Spivak, producer and permanent panel member of "Meet the Press," will be the moderator.

Legal Services

Seattle's Legal Services Centre and their efforts to provide legal help to the poor will be the focal point of KING-TV's Face to Face at 4:30 p.m. Sunday in color on Channel 5.

Charles Ehlert, Seattle lawyer and assistant director of the local centre, and Edmund Wood, staff lawyer at the Pioneer Square-office, will participate in the discussion with program moderator Roberta Byrd.

The program will include a discussion of the reasons why the centre is needed and how it operates.

Falcons, Spartans

The Toronto Falcons face the Philadelphia Spartans at Varsity Stadium, Toronto, in a National Professional Soccer League game to be broadcast on Channel 12 Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Jack Whitaker describes the play-by-play and Danny Blanchflower provides the analysis.

In their only meeting this season—on opening day—the Spartans defeated the Falcons 9-2.

The Spartans have one of the strongest defences in the league; only two goals have been scored against them this season. Ruben (the Hammer) Navarro is one of their key defencemen, operating as a rover to break up the opposition attack.

John Borodiak and John Best at the fullback positions also are strong defenders. Borodiak originally played in Argentina, while Best played in England before joining the Spartans.

Face the Nation

Two critics of President Johnson's Vietnam policy discuss their new plea to Hanoi on "Face the Nation."

Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R — Ky., and George S. McGovern, D—S.D., outspoken critics of President Johnson's Vietnam policy who have joined with 14 other solons to tell Ho Chi Minh they are steadfastly opposed to any unilateral American withdrawal from that country will be guests on "Face the Nation Sunday, at 12:30 on Channel 7.

The interview will orginate in Washington, taped just before air time.

TONIGHT

6:00: Channel 2: 20-20. The Swinging Priest. A look at the priest who has in his congregation artists and actors.

9:30: Channel 4: Piccadilly Palace. England's rock 'n' rollers, the Hollies, and Tom Jones are the guests tonight.

11:00: Channel 11: Naked City. Tonight's show is entitled "The Day It Rained Mink."

SUNDAY

1:30: Channel 12: Bowling Tournament. The All-Star tournament from St. Louis, with $70,000 at stake.

2:00: Channel 5: Indianapolis Parade. Actor James Garner is the host for the Indianapolis 500 parade.

3:30: Channel 2: Rare Ones. The Norwegian north is visited in search of the musk ox.

4:00: Channel 4: War in the Skies. Actor James Stewart narrates this story of the fighter pilots in Vietnam.

5:00: Channel 5: Film Highlights of the Daytona 500 are seen at this time.

6:00: Channel 2: The Boy Who Flew with Condors is the title of tonight's showing on the Walt Disney Hour.

HELPING to launch a new Vancouver production, "As Times Goes By", will be special guests Lorraine Foreman and Ed Kenney. Host of the series is Tony Thomas, with music provided by the Martin Slavin Orchestra. It will be presented over Channel 2 at 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

Preoccupied With Finding 'A Meaning'

When William Shatner was a boy he made believe he was Buck Rogers flying through space.

Now that William Shatner is a man, he makes believe he is Capt. James T. Kirk, commander of the United Space Ship Enterprise on "Star Trek," over the NBC Television Network Thursdays.

"As boys, we played a lot on rooftops, especially in winter," said the Canadian-born actor. "We dared each other to jump into space and land on a snow drift."

Buck Rogers, Tom Mix and the Lone Ranger constituted the galaxy of Shatner's heroes. Today, he has no factual or fictional heroes.

"As we get older we see that our idealistic heroes are human beings whose failings and sorrows are the same as ours," he mused. "What I find admirable today is the person who sacrifices himself for an ideal. I admire those people most of all and I almost envy them — like the kid who has the courage and the passion to go to jail for a cause, the scientist in a garret, the artist who struggles without recognition."

MEANING OF LIFE

Like Capt. Kirk, Shatner is vitally concerned with the universe.

"I've been preoccupied of late with the meaning of life and our existence," he said. "I've been thinking about the destruction of religious ideals that gave our lives larger meaning. Maybe the problem which faces many of us today is that we have no cause to live, or die, for."

Shatner, who is also a writer and finds the combination valuable, added: "I've learned a great deal about acting from writing. An actor interprets a writer's work just as a musician interprets a composer's work. The criterion of a good actor is how well he interprets the work of the writer. Even the writer may not know exactly what he has written — this is the nebulous area in which the actor works."

Shatner has achieved public and critical acclaim as an actor. He played the aide-de-camp to Spencer Tracy in "Judgment at Nuermberg," and starred in "The Explosive Generation" and "The Outrage." TV viewers have seen him in most of the top dramatic series.

Ivanov: Drama or Comedy

90-Minute Special On First Play Telecast Tuesday

Eighty years ago, an ailing young Russian author named Anton Chekhov turned his hand to writing full-length plays. Virtually all of his dramas have come to be considered classics of the theatre.

That first play, "Ivanov," starring Sir John Gielgud in the title role and co-starring Claire Bloom, Roland Culver, Yvonne Mitchell, Angela Baddeley, Richard Pasco and Ronald Radd, will be broadcast as a 90-minute drama special in color Tuesday at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 7 and 12.

"Ivanov" came at a time when Chekhov's short stories were going through a period of transition from humor to stark drama. This transition is reflected in the play, with its juxtaposition of tragedy and contrasting large sections of comedy. This has caused a difference of opinion among critics: Some regard the play as a drama; others insist on referring to it as a comedy.

Nikolai Ivanov, the central figure of the play, is a moody, introspective and essentially ineffective man. Unable to cope with his desperatly ill wife, Anna Petrovna (Yvonne Mitchell), he reacts to the fact of her approaching death by preparing to marry a second wife (Sasha, played by Claire Bloom). Interspersed in this melancholy tale are scenes of Russian provincial life that continually lighten the atmosphere.

The play is set against the background of the Russian provincial gentry of the late 19th century. Roland Culver and Angela Baddeley portray the Lebedevs, parents of Sasha, and Edward Atienza plays an old count who is in constant pursuit of the gay widow Babakina, played by Helen Christie.

Welcome Mr. Bond

What do 200 miles of tubular steel, 700 tons of structural steel, 200 tons of plaster, 8,000 railway ties and 250,000 square yards of canvas add up to? Answer: A man-made volcano that is the "biggest and most complex interior film set ever built."

The volcano, towering 126 feet and enclosing a 66-foot rocket and launching pad, a movable helicopter platform and monorail, presents one of the ingenious sights in the NBC Television Network's entertainment special, "Welcome to Japan, Mr. Bond," a program devoted to the explosive exploits of the incredible British Secret Agent 007, to be colorcast Friday at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 5 (pre-empting "The Man from U.N.C.L.E.")

The volcano plays a prominent role in the yet-to-be released "You Only Live Twice," the fifth James Bond adventure thriller starring Sean Connery.

In the film, it houses the secret Japanese headquarters of the international crime syndicate known as Spectre. Naturally, it receives Bond's devastating attention.

The volcano complex was devised by Ken Adam. Built at a cost of $1,000,000—almost as much as the budget for the first Bond film, "Dr. No"—the volcano set occupied two new sound stages at London's Pinewood Studios.

"Welcome to Japan, Mr. Bond," will include other highlights of "You Only Live Twice," scenes from Connery's four previous Bond movies, and sequences filmed expressly for the program. The special will provide an insight into the glamour, the gadgetry and global activities of 007.

Great Challenge

Variety, the showbusiness "bible", has called her: "a vast talent". The Los Angeles Times said her performance of the Fanny Brice role in Funny Girl was a "real bellringer". The San Francisco Examiner called her "utterly beguiling".

She's Sandra O'Neill, a 25-year-old Torontonian who many showbusiness experts are predicting may become an international star of musical comedy. Sandra rises to the great challenge of doing an hour-long television special when CBC-TV's Show of the Week presents Sandy, a story musical written especially for her, on Monday at 9 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

With a script by Chris Beard and featuring songs from shows in which Miss O'Neill has toured the continent (Funny Girl, How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying), Sandy tells the story of a waitress who longs to be a singing star, and, after being disastrously mishandled by an unscrupulous agent, finally finds success with the help of an understanding businessman.

JAPANESE actress Mie Hama portrays a girl attracted to James Bond (Sean Connery), in the NBC television network color special, "Welcome to Japan, Mr. Bond", Friday, at 8:30 p.m., on Channels 2 and 5.

Helsinki and Back

An 18-year-old high school senior wins a graduation reward for an outstanding academic record from her parents in a round trip from the Pacific Northwest to Helsinki, Finland, returning to narrate her true color adventure on KOMO-TV's "Northwest Traveller" Wednesday at 7 p.m. over Channel 4.

Sharon Rose Portin of Seattle's Shoreline High School is the lucky "Young Lady in Helsinki" traveller who was accompanied by her photographer-father on the 10,600-mile round trip to the Finnish capital on the Baltic Sea.

Highlighted in her comprehensive half-hour visit to a country which was a province of Russia until 1917 are:

Helsinki's mid-town Senate Square with its high-domed, impressive Lutheran Cathedral; Parliament Building; University of Helsinki with a student enrollment of 22,000; Olympic Stadium; National Museum Building; National Bank of Finland; the country's only stock exchange; Embassy Row and the President's Palace; Market Square, where busy, intent shoppers buzz with activity; Stockmen's huge department store; planned communities of Tapiola Centre and Dipoli; a style show of Finnish women's fashions.

Events include a specially arranged visit to a Finnish high school for the American teenager and a tour inside a small Eastern Orthodox Church.

The young traveller exhibits her treasures from Helsinki in an in-studio interview with host George Carlson.

Card Shark

Self-defence killing of a card shark by Chance Reynolds (Glenn Corbett) makes him the target for the dead man's revenge-hungry brother, in "The Lean Years," NBC television network colorcast on "The Road West" Monday at 9 p.m. on Channel 2.

Charlie Aidman guest-stars in the dual roles of Lucius and Lloyd Franklin, and singing sensation Mrs. Elva Miller appears as a saloon chanteuse, and sings "Why Won't the Men Propose?"

Lucius Franklin confronts Chance outside the saloon after Chance catches him cheating Tim (Andrew Prine). In the ensuing gun battle, Chance is wounded, and is taken to the Pride farm, where Ben (Barry Sullivan) tells him Lucius is dead. Lloyd Franklin arrives at the farm, demanding to see his brother's killer.

Brenda Scott, Charles Seel and Kelly Corcoran also star as Midge, Grandpa and Kip Pride. Willard Sage appears as lawyer Sykes.

TV TID-BITS

Don Hastings, who plays Dr. Bob Hughes on "As the World Turns," appeared as one of the Day boys in the national company of "Life With Father."

Open Nuclear Plants, Canada Urges Soviet

GENEVA (Reuters) — Canada has challenged the Soviet Union at the disarmament conference to open its nuclear plants to international inspection.

Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canadian delegate to the 17-nation conference, demanded Thursday that all states including the nuclear powers accept inspection teams under a treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Safeguards should not apply just to countries which have no nuclear weapons and agree not to acquire them, he said. Original proposals for the planned treaty as worked out by the United States and the Soviet Union provide for inspection only of non-nuclear nations.

INSPECTION

The United States and Britain were understood to be ready to offer to open their peaceful nuclear plants to inspection. Some sources said they will make the offer as soon as a much-delayed draft of the treaty is put before the conference.

Such an offer by the U.S. and Britain would put the Russians in a difficult position.

Of the two other powers with nuclear weapons, France has boycotted the conference for years and China is not a member.

Wild Storm Pelts Boston

BOSTON (AP)—New Englanders looked hopefully for clearing skies today in the wake of a wild storm that pelted the area for two days and wrecked more than a 100 pleasure boats before moving out to sea.

Estimates of property damage ranged in the millions of dollars.

Hurricane winds, wild seas and heavy rains lashed the Massachusetts coast, making it one of the worst May storms in memory in that area. Farther north, there was heavy unseasonable snow, with rangers at the White Mountain National Forest in New Hampshire reporting a new accumulation of more than 18 inches. Other parts of New Hampshire and Vermont got up to eight inches.

'Party Needs Wider Appeal'

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Vancouver MLA Tom Berger Friday denied charges that he would turn the New Democratic Party's platform into "egghead socialism" if he is elected party leader at a convention next week.

Mr. Berger, who seeks to replace Robert Strachan as party leader, said the party should appeal to a wider scope of politically interested people, while retaining its traditional values.

"We must seek the support of people from all walks of life, but this does not mean that the working man will have any less say in party affairs," he told an NDP meeting. "Our party should not be dominated by any single group whatsoever."

He said that as long as the NDP has an identity as a "working man's party" only, it will never get a majority.

Asked if he felt that Mr. Strachan's image as perennial opposition leader has hamstrung the party's chance to form a government, Mr. Berger said the party highly appreciated the contributions made by Mr. Strachan, but to achieve a majority more must be done.

"If I should be chosen as leader, I hope Mr. Strachan will stay on as MLA," he said.

Local Members Favor Strachan For Leadership

Victoria and Oak Bay constituency members of the New Democratic Party will send six delegates to the annual provincial convention in Burnaby next weekend.

At the same time, members voted 50-to-1 in favor of supporting Robert Strachan to retain the party leadership in B.C. He will be challenged at the convention by MLA Tom Berger.

Delegates from Victoria are Phillip Fawcett, Harry Fanthorpe, Magnus Bruce and Earl Allen. Oak Bay will be represented by Mira Yarwood and John Nicol.

Rev. Harold Allen will be delegate to the national party convention in Toronto this summer.

Schools Featured In Band Concert

Two Victoria schools will be featured in a band concert Sunday in Beacon Hill Park.

Forty-seven musicians from Mount Douglas Senior Secondary and 65 from Lansdowne Junior Secondary will perform in the Cameron Bandshell under the direction of John Boel, starting at 2:30 p.m.

New Window Frame Made With Vinyl Covering Wood

When you build or remodel, choosing the right window can make a big difference.

It can give you more comfort and save you money by insulating your home against cold in winter and heat in summer.

It can add to the beauty and decor of your home.

It can save you time, labor and money through minimum upkeep.

When a homeowner has had to decide which one or two of these three factors he wants most, he faced a real problem since all three have not been available in any one window.

Metal windows, particularly aluminum, are thought to require little maintenance. But metal has its drawbacks. It is a natural conductor of heat. Heating and air conditioning costs can run higher as a result.

Wood is 1,800 times more resistant to heat transfer than aluminum, and glass set in a wood window frame is approximately 20 per cent more resistant to heat transfer than it is with aluminum.

●

Wood windows rate high in comfort and economy because wood is a natural insulator. But wood, being wood eventually will require repainting when exposed to the elements.

A third kind of window that combines the advantages of the others has been developed by Andersen Corporation of Bayport, Minnesota.

After eight years of research, Andersen has produced a wood window with a protective outer layer of rigid vinyl. Marketed under the name Perma-Shield, it comes in casement, awning and fixed styles — as well as in gliding doors.

Its treated wood core gives it insulating advantages. On the exterior, it has the look of wood with a low-gloss white finish. But inside, the trim is left uncovered so the natural beauty of wood can be used for interior decor.

Its rigid vinyl surface requires little maintenance. It is immune to the elements. It will not rust, corrode or pit under severest weather conditions. It never needs paint although it will take paint readily.

These windows come standard with double-paned, welded insulating glass to eliminate the need for storm windows.

NOTHING MATCHES BUT IDEA

By PAULINE GRAVES

We are all so accustomed to buying dining sets in groups of a table and at least four chairs, that we forget to try some originality.

In this room, decorated by Raymond Piatti not only do the seating pieces not match, but there are not even four. Instead, a bench, styles after the table, stands next to the wall, and on the opposite side are two metal chairs with heavy rush backs and seats. It is a refreshing change from a table surrounded by identical chairs.

Note that the heaviest pieces, the bench, is away from the traffic area, and that the two lighter pieces, the chairs, are on the outside edges of the table, where they are passed by when the sliding door to the outdoors is used. To have reversed these positions would look awkward.

Although the chairs do not match the table and bench either in style or material and finish, they are compatible because all are reminiscent of Spanish design.

The black metal of the chairs is an typical as are the heavy carved legs of the other pieces. When you group assorted pieces together, they must have something in common to create a harmonious whole.

Another interesting facet of this room is the turned post in the corner. It is pure decoration and gives a finish to the sliding doors and the draperies.

Establish a Mood or Theme In Every Room of House

Leading interior designers suggest establishing a mood or theme when decorating the rooms of your home.

Today's handsomely fashionable man-made materials make this type of decorating possible and practical in the formerly overlooked utility areas.

The bathroom, long neglected as a room for exciting decoration, is fast becoming one of the most important areas for theme decorating. That cold clinical look can easily be replaced with a very formal mood in powder and master-bedroom bathrooms. Real or imitation marble counters, damask, medallion or striped pattern walls, carpeted floors and gilt accessories, formulate the formal mood.

A casual, rustic theme might be created by using walnut woodgrain wallcoverings, vinyl brick floors, shuttered windows and wrough iron towel bars.

The fashion conscious woman can choose the sophistication of boldly colored floral wall patterns complemented by an array of harmonizing towels. A mirror, ornately surrounded by a picture frame picked up at a local auction, hanging over her vanity counter, adds flair.

The trend to the family kitchen, suggests that this utility area is another important place for theme decorating.

Appliances are color-toned to match fashionable cupboards in grainy woods or antique painted finishes. Patterened walls, such as gingham checks, stylized flowers, hanging ropes of beads or the more conventional kitchen motifs, strengthen the mood giving the kitchen a look of total decoration.

Pattern, say the designers, is still the easiest way to set a color scheme and a decorating theme — and today, its made easy with practical and economical wallcoverings in patterns to please any taste, establish any mood.

FRESH AND PRETTY describe the floral wall decoration in this attractive bathroom. Fresh and pretty it will remain too, due to the fact that it is protected by a solid sheet of vinyl. This makes it waterproof, grease-proof and stain-proof.

APARTMENT DWELLERS MISS LIFTS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The building service employees' strike that has turned more than 1,000 fashionable apartment buildings in Manhattan into leg-straining staircase mountains entered its second day today with prospects of spreading.

The walkout by nearly 7,000 elevator operators, custodians, porters and handymen at 5 a.m. Friday left some 150,000 apartment dwellers in rent-controlled buildings huffing up many flights of stairs, carrying out their garbage, and shivering under cold showers.

A spokesman for the owners of the rent-controlled buildings who refuse to meet union demands until the city "overhauls" its rent restrictions said Friday the strike could spread to 15,000 buildings housing more than a million tenants if not settled soon.

'END NARROW THINKING'

TORONTO (CP)—A British economist urged Friday that Western countries abandon their "narrow thinking" based on nationalism and social classes and devote themselevs to helping countries.

Barbara Ward, a centennial speaker at the University of Toronto, called for world-wide co-operation by industrialized nations to apply what they know to helping the other two-thirds of the world's people gain a better standard of living.

TIPS FOR HOME GARDENERS

Toddlers Deserve Privilege

By JACK BEASTALL

We are all agreed that a child is entitled to a home and loving care, but sometimes we forget that a garden is also a birthright.

Parents often try to convince me that children, right from toddlers up, have no interest in gardens or gardening, but my experiences are the opposite. I have yet to meet a child that did not show a great interest in plants, soil, and insects, when these were drawn to its attention.

Jack

I feel that a child brought up in a garden and allowed to take its part in the making, the changing, and the routine jobs, goes out into the world better equipped to meet reverses than a child that is denied this privilege.

JOY ON FACES

If you could see the joy on the face of a gardener who recognizes a plant that Mother grew, or that Dad had in his greenhouse — if you could meet the gardeners from all walks of life, and in every age group, looking for a plant they remember in a parent's garden — you would realize how much these early memories mean.

Many of us who shared a garden with our parents have in later life had to face troubles too heavy to bear. When our little world has fallen apart, the only unchanged thing seemed to be the garden. Turning to it, we have found strength to go on and we know now it was the garden that saved us.

As parents we can easily take the wrong attitude in guiding our children. We forget that all children imitate. The first word a child utters is the imitation of a sound it has heard. The first step is an imitation of what we do.

EXPLAIN ACTIONS

When we take the toddler into the garden we must be very careful not to do anything the child might imitate and cause us to regret. Picking off spent flower heads and pulling up weeds will be imitated but the effort will not be confined to dead flowers and weeds unless our actions are carefully explained.

Children not only love to copy their elders, they also want to share in what their elders are doing, and they want to do it with the tool the parent is using.

Knowing this, you can encourage them from a tender age by giving them tools with which to work not useless toys, but a stainless steel hand trowel and hand fork, something you will appreciate using yourself.

Set the example of what you would like done by starting the job yourself and using the tools they will want to use. Soon they will take the job away from you. This is much easier than trying to make them use what we call "their own tools" and expecting them to work in another part of the garden.

ACCEPT COMPANY

A separate garden may suit a teen-ager, but not a five-year-old. The little ones want to be with mummy and daddy and we might just as well accept their company and guide their efforts.

Too often we expect them to do the jobs we so heartily dislike and we expect them to like it. A dreary, distasteful job is hardly likely to hold their interest and is certainly not the job to offer one who wishes to help.

An intelligent youngster can be given interesting work to do and will take genuine interest in what is being done if the task is performed in the company of an adult who is willing to explain the why and wherefore.

If your boy spends most of his spare time in the garden of a neighbor, pulling weeds and trundling a wheelbarrow, yet refuses to pull weeds at home, you can be sure it is because the neighbor has the art of making the work interesting.

When a child reaches the age of asking for its own garden, see that it is given a piece of the best soil in a prominent part of the garden.

COMPLIMENTS

No child can maintain interest and achieve any measure of success on a piece of useless soil in a neglected corner that would tax the ability of a professional.

Once the child's garden is started, draw it to the attention of all visitors, for the little ones are just as susceptible to compliments and praise as you and I.

Remember, too, the impatience of youth. Give the child plants to start with and seeds later. Divisions of perennials, a few annuals, and above all a shrub or two that can be seen the year around, will make a garden just like yours, the garden the child wants to imitate.

I know it is exceptional to find a child with an ingrained love of plants strong enough to induce perseverance in the care of a garden, however small, but I still feel that every child should be given the opportunity to develop a love for gardening.

Even if the interest fades, the seed, has been sown, and in later years it may germinate at a time when it is most needed, all the stronger because of its early start.

THE WEEK'S WORK

The spring-blooming heathers must be lightly cut back as soon as most of the flowers are fading.

Divide the polyanthus primulas after blooming, and replant in humusy soil where they get dappled sun and shade for the summer. Keep the plants watered throughout the summer.

Zinnias, salvias, ageratum and dwarf dahlias are the last bedding plants to be set into the garden.

When working to a bedding annual color or design scheme, set out a few extras into a reserve bed as fillers. They may be needed later in season as replacements.

The main sowing of beans can go in, bush and runner types, also a few lima beans which can be eaten fresh or dried.

Squash, marrow and cucumber plants raised indoors can be put out into garden now.

Sow sweet corn outdoors, or put out started plants. Use a square or block planting system to be sure of maximum pollination by wind. A single row will bear few cobs.

Continue weeding and thinning of early sown vegetables and make succession sowings of everything.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. Last year I had some lovely plants of the Blue-poppy. They have not grown this spring, although I understood they were perennials. Since the winter was mild, can you suggest any cause for their failure?—T. G., Beach Drive.

A. The Blue-poppy of Tibet (Meconopsis baileyi) is a biennial if allowed to bloom in the first spring after being grown from seed.

The method practised to overcome this biennial tendency is to remove the flower stems on first year plants as soon as they are visible among the basal leaves. This induces the plants to make many crowns, some of which will bloom the second year. The plants then continue to produce new growths each year, and each year some will bloom. Cold weather will not harm them if under a blanket of snow, but hard frost without snow covering will sometimes cause the meconopsis to die out. It is a good plan to always have a few seedlings coming along in a cold frame.

Q. Is it too late to plant shrubs?—O. D., Esquimalt.

A. Shrubs which are sold in any kind of container may be planted at practically any time of the year, if they are given the attention of watering at their roots and water spray over the foliage during hot weather.

Those which must be dug from a nursery are usually not lifted for planting after hot weather commences. From the end of September through October to November will be the next good period for planting these.

Arthur Mayse

Yesterday evening, I looked in on some young men who have gone about as far as anyone can go toward perfecting wingless flight. They are members of the gymnastic team that is wowing Canadian Armed Forces Tattoo audiences with their vaulting and trampoline act; and if you have the bad luck to miss their performance, you may catch it later on the Ed Sullivan show.

The four I met at the Kindersley Street home of Petty Officer and Mrs. Louis Delesalle were relaxing in civvies. Out on the blacktop, under the spotlights, they wear two-way stretch gymnasts' uniforms of German manufacture, in colors that run through the spectrum and considerably beyond.

Also, though their flights appear to be effortless, they are the result of a rigorous training program that began last October and was eased only when they took to the road five months later.

"Buck's Bandits," they and the 72 other volunteers of the troupe call themselves, taking their name from Flight-Lieutenant William Buck, chief coordinator of a scene six to eight minutes long which is paced by a song from the Mary Poppins movie.

They have had their casualties, some resulting from mid-air collisions when a luckless vaulter missed the split-second timing that fills the air with soaring bodies.

But so intense is their enthusiasm that more than one team member has wept when he learned that he couldn't continue with the act.

★

The gymnastic display is tri-service; it just happens that the men taking it easy on Naden bandsman Delesalle's back lawn belong to the RCAF.

Three—crew chief Sgt. Les White, Cpl. Fred Wooster and LAC Dave Coffin are from Ontario. LAC Bruce Sayers, whose specialty is a fantastic somersault made at the height of a 15-foot leap, comes from Red Deer, Alberta.

From them, I got a participant's picture of the display that has engaged Mr. Sullivan's attention.

They feel the cold at this their first outdoor stand, especially when it stiffens their thin landing mats. Wind is also their enemy, since it can affect their balance.

They are not pampered prima donnas; they pack, set up and take down equipment, and have doubled in eight other Tattoo scenes.

The little ramp the vaulters take off from is a trampolet; and until they commenced training at Camp Borden, 60 per cent of the volunteers had never set eyes on either this miniature version of the bouncy trampoline, or the six-foot box horse over which they swoop in flight.

I asked about those color-coded costumes, and got a grin.

"When we first set out, we thought, 'Oh, brother, is this going to look sick!' Not now, though: we realize how much they add to the scene."

And anything that will improve the scene is seized on. They will work for hours to perfect a sequence, and much of their discipline is administered by the men themselves.

★

By this time, the evening was wearing on. It would soon be time to leave for the Tattoo with PO Delesalle—the bearded navy musician who handles his cymbals with such authority that he has been know to turn a set inside out.

On our way around front, the gymnasts spoke of Victoria in superlatives. They like this city, and hope some day to return.

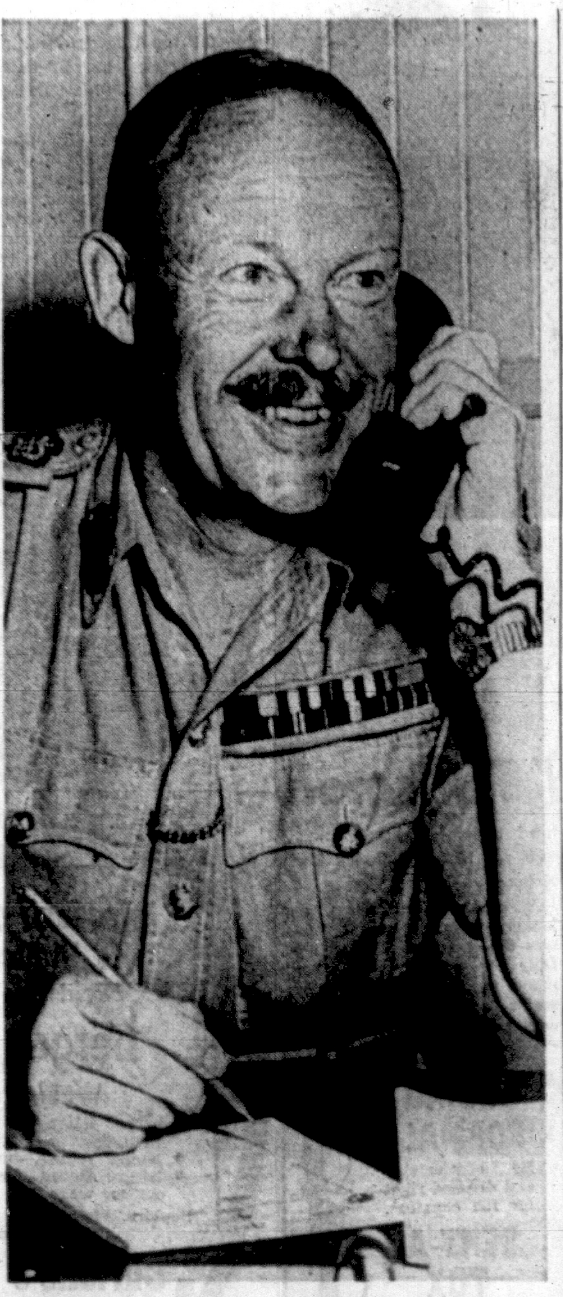
But a Vancouver engagement is waiting, and with that over, the Tattoo will load itself on board 135 transport aircraft for a flight to Montreal and Expo.

And later, when October brings an end to the Canadian tour?

England and the Continent, perhaps; but nobody knows for sure.

Meanwhile, tonight, in the capital of a province that bestowed the first sunshine of their trip, the young men in the many-colored garb take to the air in their wind-up showing.

If you're there, give them the hand they deserve.



DESK-BOUND artilleryman, Col. G. P. Marriott still manages to get a bang out of life in his post as Tattoo commander—several bangs. In fact, it's unlikely any gunnery officer in Canada will fire as many barrages as his command during the centennial year.

Talent Is Ammunition For Artillery Colonel

By TED GASKELL

Canadian Armed Forces Centennial Tattoo is a blaze of glory that started as a glimmer three years ago.

That was when the planners first met to organize the show — really three shows — as the armed forces' contribution to the Centennial.

It's not the only Centennial participation, said Col. G. P Marriott, Tattoo commander. A staff division has been set up under Brigadier Arnold Peck whose job it is to coordinate naval shows, air force fly pasts; appearances at Expo and in provincial celebrations.

Planning started in 1964, he said, with detailed research into the Tattoo and its organization.

A year ago units were selected and given details of the scenes and instructions for rehearsal.

IDENTICAL SHOWS

Last February 800 men and women concentrated at Camp Picton to produce two identical shows known as Red and Blue. Each had 350 players. In March this year they went on the road playing in arenas all across Canada.

While the shows were on the road another 800 men gathered in Victoria to rehearse the tattoo and when the "little" shows ended, the three groups teamed up.

Victoria's performance was the first big outdoor show.

Col. Marriott is pleased with the show's success.

"People say there's nothing like it anywhere, not even in the United Kindgom."

It's difficult to assess the cost.

MULTI-MILLION

"All I can say is that it's a multi-million dollar show."

The gate won't approach expenses: equipment, retraining of technicians to operate lighting and sound equipment, plus professional fees paid for expert assistance.

It was hard work, particularly in Victoria, where practice with lighting couldn't start until 9:30 p.m.

"It's the most exciting thing I've had to do in my life," said Col. Marriott of his job. "It's hard work but I've loved it."

The Tattoo's production was done on military lines, but, "sometimes we came across problems which called for the book to be thrown away, and we threw it."

Big problem was the late arrival of props, costumes and other items.

"This meant we couldn't keep to the rehearsal schedule and we found ourselves doing more last minute work."

Col. Marriott has a headquarters staff of 25 of all service branches to administer the show. It puts 1,100 to 1,200 "on stage" with four or five hundred behind the scenes.

Headquarters are situated at Naden where many of the personnel are housed.

From Victoria the show goes to Empire Stadium, Vancouver, then to Expo.

Then it will be broken down into two smaller units to play Quebec City and Niagara Falls in old Fort George. The troops get three weeks leave, then re-assemble to play Ottawa, the CNE in Toronto, and in Hamilton.

One trained group will be reconstituted to play Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, and four cities in Quebec before ending the tour Oct. 14.

SOLDIER WOUNDED AT TATTOO

Powder in a musket exploded prematurely and sent a member of the Royal 22nd Regiment to hospital from the Centennial Tattoo Friday night.

The accident occurred in the opening scene when soldiers load their flintlock muskets, pouring powder in. The powder exploded and blew upwards driving powder grains into the face of a soldier whose name was not released.

He will be in hospital for a few days and will rejoin the Tattoo in Vancouver early next week.

Carpenter Jailed 7 Years For Pizza Parlor Slaying

Shows No Emotion But Friends Weep

Orlando Trozzo, 46-year-old carpenter, was sentenced to seven years imprisonment in B.C. Assize Court early today for the slaying of 18-year-old Mario Fata.

After five hours' deliberation, the 12-man jury returned a verdict of guilty of manslaughter. Trozzo was originally charged with capital murder.

THANKS FRIENDS

Mr. Justice P. D. Seaton then sentenced Trozzo to seven years.

Trozzo turned to the public benches, which were filled with men and women of Victoria's Italian community, and said;

"Thank you all very much."

He also thanked his defence counsel, Lloyd McKenzie, QC, and Kenneth Murphy. Crown prosecutor Louis Lindholm was assisted by Robert C. Simson.

Trozzo kissed his daughter, his wife and some friends as he was led from the courtroom by two RCMP officers.

He could serve as little as two years of the sentence under Canada's parole system.

WOMEN WEPT

Mr. McKenzie described Trozzo to the jury as "a pathetic little man, rather like Charlie Chaplin."

Trozzo showed no emotion in the dock but several women in the public benches wept openly.

A number of witnesses described him as an honest, hard-working man, a good friend and a good neighbor.

"Everyone thinks of him as a really great guy," said dark-haired Mrs. Norman Pimlott, a character witness called by Mr. McKenzie.

Johann Amering said he had known Trozzo for some years and had always found him very reliable.

"Would you say he was a hot-tempered person?" asked crown prosecutor Lindholm.

"No, I wouldn't," Mr. Amering replied.

Earlier in the trial, Dr. J. C. Thomas of Vancouver said Trozzo was in a prisoner-of-war camp from 1943 until the end of the war in Europe.

"At that time he weighed only 81 pounds," the doctor said.

"He received a big reception from the citizens of his home town in Italy. But it was almost two years before he could face the people of his community because of the depressed state of his mind."

ASKED DIRECTION

After hearing addresses from counsel, the jury retired at 5:30 p.m. and took a 1½-hour supper recess at 7 p.m.

At 9 p.m. the jury asked Mr. Justice Seaton to direct them on the law defining capital murder, non-capital murder, and manslaughter.

Eric Wilkinson, Victoria county sheriff, ordered coffee for the jury at 11:30 p.m. At 12:05 a.m. the 12 jurymen filed back to deliver their verdict.

Earlier in the trial Trozzo said he didn't remember firing the shot which killed Mario Fata.

"I wanted to scare him into paying me," Trozzo said. "I said: 'Mario, I don't want to hurt your. I don't want to do you any harm.'"

Trozzo said Mario simply laughed at him and said: "I don't owe you any money."

ARGUMENT

Trozzo claimed that Fata owed him about $3,000 for construction work on his pizza establishment. He said he waited in his car outside the pizza restaurant.

A car drove up and Fata got out. He went into the restaurant and came out with a pizza pie which he seemed about to deliver.

It was then that the argument over the debt took place.

Young Driver Sent to Jail

A young driver caught for the second time driving while his licence was under suspension was jailed for two months today.

John Charles Andrew, 20, of 3184 Millgrove, pleaded guilty and also admitted to being a minor driving without car insurance.

He was stopped by police Friday night after his car was spotted driving erratically on Yates Street.

Andrew was fined $10 on the second charge.

MURRAY DREW
. . . 'nothing official'

IWA Man Defies Ouster Threat

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Labor Reporter

The president of the Victoria local of the International Woodworkers of America struck back at the B.C. Federation of Labour today.

Murray Drew was making his first public comment since the federation's executive voted 10-to-2 Wednesday to suspend four IWA locals on June 9 unless public apologies are made for public criticism by their presidents of a Canadian Labour Congress vice-president.

NOT NOTIFIED

"We have never been officially notified by the B.C. Federation of Labour of their intention to expel this union local and others from the federation," said Mr. Drew.

"It appears some people can go to the press when it pleases them but others cannot, depending on whose bull is being gored.

"The B.C. Federation of Labour officers have notified the four local unions through press, radio and TV of their intentions — something they say should not be done."

(The federation said earlier it revealed the ultimatum after Doug Evans of the Vancouver IWA made a public statement.)

STRONG CRITICISM

The federation said the presidents of the Victoria, Duncan, Vancouver and lumber inspector locals violated convention policy by taking internal matters to the public via the press.

The presidents had stongly criticized CLC vice-president Joe Morris in a public statement last month for his role in the Gold River certification battle.

All four presidents have said they will not apologize. Their union locals represent 10 per cent of the federations's membership.

Mr. Drew said he will never agree to keep anything from his union's membership, that the members are entitled to know what is going on in their union.

"I don't believe in hiding matters concerning the membership from them as is happening in some unions," he said.

The philosophy of federation leaders seemed to be "it's all right to talk behind a closed door but don't let their membership hear. I don't operate that way, nor does our union."

OBJECTS

He objected to the interference of federation president E. T. Staley in IWA affairs "the same way I'm sure the carpenters union (of which Mr. Staley is an official) would object if the IWA interfered in their internal affairs."

He recalled that the Victoria local, at a membership meeting, had endorsed his actions.

He said some officers of the federation don't want the four IWA locals at the October convention because "they, the officers of the federation, bungled the handling of the Pat O'Neal bugging affair."

Friday, Mr. Staley said the federation is not interfering with IWA affairs but trying to achieve responsibility in public statements.

CALLED SLANDEROUS

He called last month's criticism of Mr. Morris "slanderous" and that the four IWA locals members should "have a good look at what is going on."

Mr. Drew said he agreed with the "good look" comment and added that the suspension ultimatum was taken to deny a place at the October convention and "for no other reason."

The federation's action was opposed by Wyman Trineer of New Westminster IWA and Mr. Evans of Vancouver IWA. The latter said he will resign from the federation executive.

It was learned that regional IWA president Jack Moore, who is first vice-president of the federation, did not attend Wednesday's meeting.

Uvic Names Review Committee

Four University of Victoria professors have been appointed to a committee to investigate the institution's contract reviewing procedures.

The committee was proposed by university president Dr. Malcolm Taylor as a result of student and faculty unrest after the non-renewal of the contracts of Professors Charles Tarlton, Jerry Schwartz and Alan MacKenzie this spring.

Professors appointed are Dr. Harry Scargill, chairman of the school of graduate studies; Dr. Roy Watson, chairman of the department of sociology; Dr. John McInerney, an assistant professor of biology, and Gerald Auchinachie, an instructor in the department of English.

Dr. Taylor, who will act as chairman, said the committee will review terms and conditions of employment as well as procedures for recommending renewal or non-renewal of contracts.

After the committee reports, negotiations aimed at producing mutually acceptable procedures will take place between the university and the faculty association.

Dr. Taylor said he hopes the new procedures will be approved by mid-September.

Defence Chief Here Next Week On Inspection

General J. V. Allard, chief of defence staff for the Canadian Armed Forces, will visit Victoria Wednesday.

The general will be in the area for three days during which he will tour facilities and speak informally to large groups of servicemen.

After being met at the airport by Pacific Maritime Commander, Rear-Admiral John A. Charles, the general will attend briefings related to operations, personnel and training at HMCS Dockyard.

On Thursday he will visit the Queen's Own Rifles at Work Point barracks, followed by lunch aboard the destroyer-escort HMCS Mackenzie. He will then visit the underwater weapons range at Nanoose Bay.

On Friday he will be inspecting officer at graduation ceremonies at Royal Roads.

Student Omitted

A Victoria student was inadvertently omitted from the Vancouver and Gulf Islands list of University of British Columbia graduates published in Friday's Times.

David W. Morrow, 2592 Bowker, received an honors bachelor of science degree in geology.

OVERHEARD TALK FOILS ROBBERY

City police have charged an 18-year-old soldier with assault with intent to rob, after a taxi driver reported he was threatened and forced to hand over $7 early today.

Bernard Giovannini, a member of the First Battalion, Canadian Guards, had his case remanded to Monday for plea when he appeared in central court this morning. His bail was set at $2,500.

His arrest followed an incident at Douglas and Superior shortly after 3 a.m.

Cabbie Gordon Galloway, 50, of 2981 Craigowan, told officers one of two men he had picked up as fares threatened him and made him hand over some money.

The taxi's radio microphone was on during the exchange and fellow drivers converged on the scene to assist in capturing a man.

Knights Donate $500 for Indians' Trip

The fund to send the Kuper Island Indian Band to Expo got a boost this morning when the Knights of Columbus, in convention here, donated $500.

State deputy Alan F. Ritz presented the cheque to Mayor Hugh Stephen at the official opening of the B.C. convention at the Empress Hotel.

NICKELS ADD UP

Also this morning Wolf Cubs of the 1st Douglas B pack gave $5.45 in nickels and dimes.

The donations bring the total up to $2,727.29.

The Indians themselves have collected $500, the Rotary Club of Nanaimo $500 and the Daily Colonist $200.

The fund was set up 10 days ago after students at S. J. Willis School decided to help the drum and fife band. A trip to Expo had ben planned but was called off when it was found there was to be no official backing.

The students council immediately put up $50. The Times added $200 and set up collecting centres at the newspaper office and the Bank of Nova Scotia at Yates and Douglas.

LITTLE TIME LEFT

Mayor Stephen gave $100. Donations received at the bank total $225.98. The S. J. Willis collections amount to $446.86 including $150 from the Kiwanis Club of Saanich and $51 from St. Joseph's Parish.

It is estimated that $10,000 will be required to take the band to Montreal and there's little time left. The band is scheduled to leave June 28,

More donations are being sought from individuals and business firms but the students themselves aren't waiting. They are going to work.

CONCERT HERE PLANNED

The band is scheduled to play concerts at Chemainus and Cowichan Lake and arrangements are being made to hold a concert in Victoria.

S. J. Willis students have a busy time ahead.

They are planning bottle drives, sales, a car wash, dog wash, a slave day, a tag day and a shoe-shining project to raise funds for the band and to draw public attention to the need for support.

'PLEASE SEND BACK MUSIC' —COMPOSER

A briefcase containing several pieces of original music was taken from the Empress Hotel Friday night while the composer played for a convention.

The briefcase belongs to pianist Peter Williams and contained a number of compositions he had written specially to use in the Jerry Gosley Smile Show and the Butchart Gardens show this summer.

"I don't mind too much about the briefcase," he said, "but the music represents a lot of work and I'd like it back."

He hopes whoever took the case will return the music and his prescription sun glasses by mailing them to him at Victoria Studio of Theatrical Arts at 1318 Broad Street or 4162 Kensington.

NICKELS AND DIMES all help say Wolf Cubs of the 1st Douglas B Pack who collected $5.45 to help send Indian Band from Kuper Island to Expo. Bob Young, 10; James Lott, 11; Brent Keene, 10, and Jim Wright, 10, are four of the 18 boys of the pack who raised the money.

Take Area Measurements When Fitting Shorts, Slacks

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I think I've met my Waterloo! I'm making shorts and according to the pattern measurements, I didn't have to make any allowance in the hips. I must be more rounded in the hips than the pattern allowed for because my shorts don't have enough room and pull through the crotch. Can I change my pattern to allow for this?—Mrs. L. C.

Dear Mrs. L. C.:

Yes, this is something we must all learn to do. The overall measurement is never as important as area measurements. Because you are more rounded, you are probably narrow through the hips but thicker from front to back. Try adding ½-inch to the inner leg seam, front and back, gradually tapering this into the regular seam.

Girls, this is the beginning of the season for lots and lots of shorts for the whole family. If you have difficulty finding a pattern that fits you, you'll welcome a special pattern designed by a European patternmaker. This pattern can be used for 11 different styles of shorts and slacks, and the same pattern can be used to fit every size possible. Each and every pattern adjustment is explained in detail.

This pattern is not made by one of the popular pattern companies. It is more expensive and takes time to work out, but I can guarantee it's worth it! I have had nothing but rave reports from our readers who have tried it.

If you can't find this pattern in your area, send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and I shall send you the information immediately.

Yachtsmen competing in this weekend's Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca classics took time to relax from pre-race preparations and gathered in the Royal Victoria Yacht Club Friday evening for the club's annual no-host Swiftsure cocktail party. Among special guests at the event were those who have helped race officials organize and patrol the two races. Above, from left to right, are guests Mrs. David Maryott, California, whose husband is crewing for Courageous; Mr. Stan Martin, secretary of the Pacific International Yachting Association, West Vancouver; Mrs. A. R. Huntington and Mr. Huntington, commodore of West Vancouver Yacht Club, who are being welcomed by Mrs. Alex James and Mr. James, measurer for RVYC. (Bill Halkett)

FOR TODAY'S BRIDE ELLEN DALE

Cameo Pendant Is 'Something Old' Talisman

A cameo pendant encircled with seed pearls, originally worn by her mother for her wedding, was the "something old" talisman for Ellen Margarette Cooke when she became the bride of Stuart Lawrence Michell Dale this afternoon. For "luck" she wore a sixpence, sent from England by Miss Valerie Willis, in her shoe.

Chantilly lace formed the empire line bodice of the silk organza over taffeta gown, which featured a scalloped neckline and sleeves to the elbow. Pearl embroidery was an added accent. Lace appliques starred the skirt and the overskirt which was styled en train. Her veil of silk illusion net misted to shoulder-length from a headpiece of floral lace studded with seed pearls and aurora borealis. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and caladuim leaves.

Dr. N. S. Noel officiated at the ceremony which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce A. Cooke, 3540 Henderson Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh M. Dale, 3941 Cherrilee Crescent. St. George the Martyr Church was decorated with standard baskets of gladioli, stocks and chrysanthemums for the service. Mr. Cooke gave his daughter in marriage.

During the signing of the register, organist Jim Furmston played "Ave Maria" and "O Perfect Love."

The bride's attendants were dressed alike in floor-length gowns of crystal charm in an apricot tone. Bands of white lace accented the empire waistlines. Their headpieces were fashioned of self-fabric bows and apricot tulle, and they carried crescent bouquets of white carnations.

Maid of honor was Miss Diane Cooke, the bride's sister, and bridesmaids were the Misses Bonnie MacKay, cousin of the bride, and Dorothy Dale, the groom's sister.

The flower girl, little Kim Sutton, wore a frock similar to the senior attendants' gowns, and carried a miniature crescent bouquet of white carnations.

Best man was Wayne Anderson, and ushering the guests were Ron Griffis and Stewart East.

Cliff MacKay proposed the toast to his niece at the reception following in Holyrood House. A three-tier wedding cake, flanked with silver vases of apricot roses, centred the head table. Background music was provided by pianist Dave Napper.

A cream wool dress and jacket, trimmed with sequins, was the choice of the new Mrs. Dale for travelling on honeymoon to Seattle. White accessories and a Talisman rose corsage completed the outfit.

Gift of $2,300 Presented By Lady Minto Hospital WA

The Women's Auxiliary of Lady Minto Gulf Islands Hospital voted to contribute a sum of approximately $2,300 for buying hospital furnishings and equipment at a recent meeting. Part of this sum, $1,000, will go to the cost of a wall-to-wall carpet for the sunroom, and fibreglass drapes throughout the hospital.

Other major contributions are $600 for an oxygen tent; $239 for X-ray timing cassettes; and $458 for a special table to keep meals hot for serving. An infant blood pressure cuff, silent utility ward cart, and stainless steel food blender will also be bought.

Hospital administrator Harold Hoffman said the money voted, plus a government grant, will buy equipment worth approximately $3,000.

Mrs. Douglas Wilson presided at the meeting. Mrs. A. M. Brown was appointed convener for the bargain sale to be held in September. This annual event is the only fund-raising project of the auxiliary.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

Mad, Mod, Colorful Are Cutout Fill-Ups

By Nona Damaske

Fashion seems, at times, to be a delightful series of contradictions.

CUTOUTS are now making the summer scene teamed with PASTE-ONS. Beach and patio wear have holes in the most unexpected places and on these little oases of exposed flesh, the fashion pundits are suggesting the pasting on of cut-outs in various colors and designs.

Damaske

The swing to brilliant solid shades and wild op art prints has now become more mad with circles, stars, hearts and all manner of paste-on shapes.

When dancing in the dark or swimming by moonlight the fluorescent paste-on designs glimmer like glowworms on bare shoulders and arms.

Water-resistant and applied with a non-harmful medicated adhesive, your carefully created design will stay in place for a number of days.

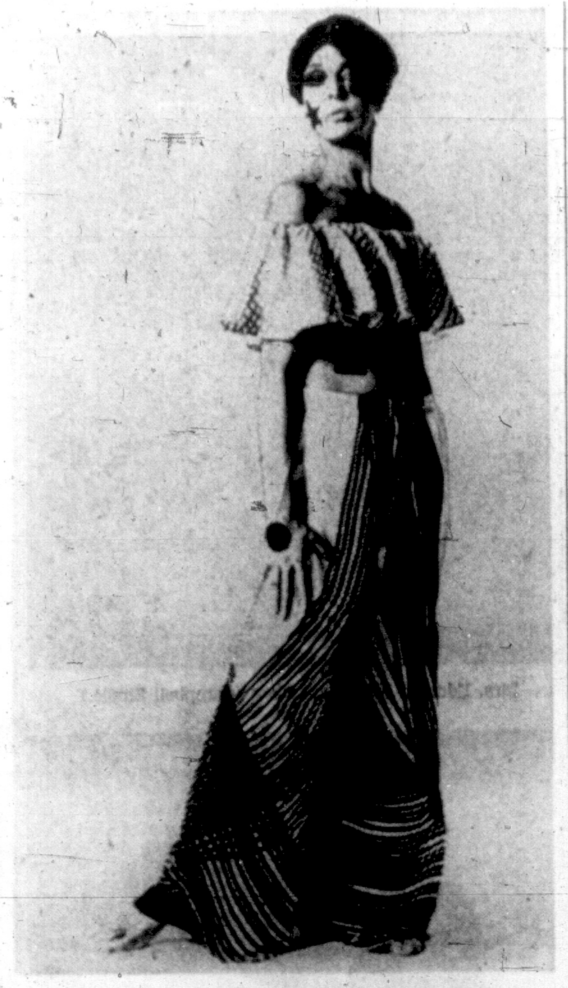
The bikini beach belles will be able to spend a fun hour or two decorating each other's bare backs as they bask in the sunshine. You may even join the art nouveau set without pasting anything on your skin . . . fingernails and toenails are suggested as "in" spots for dots.

Watchbands, sunglasses, crash helmets, boots and handbags may also lend background for this new craze.

Along with all the zany suggestions comes a really sensible use for paste-on pretties . . . they make terrific stocking run stoppers.

Shiny gold and metallic silver pasties are suggested for evening hours. Avant garde for the most sophisticated lady is the sharply contrasting pals of black and white.

The season ahead promises great fun for the young in heart. Who knows? A Willows Beach Paste On may soon take the place of a Beacon Hill Park Love In.



Body Art . . . a star on the cheek . . . a triangle at the waistline and a perfect circle on the back of the hand add to the gay psychedelic appearance of the brilliant patio pyjamas designed by Rudi Gernreich.

Party Trio To Honor Lianne Catt

June bride-elect Miss Lianne Catt is being feted with a series of parties.

Mrs. F. Smith entertained at a recent shower, arranging the gifts in a decorated umbrella. She was assisted by Miss Lorna Stuart and Miss Flora Lemire. Others attending included the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Alan Catt; Mrs. George Lemire, Mrs. Harold Burnell, Mrs. W. Hunter, Mrs. R. Holford and Mrs. V. Noon.

A recipe box, filled with the favorite recipes of the guests, was presented to Miss Catt when she was honored at a shower, given by Miss Rosemary Hay and Mrs. Alice Hay. Pink and white carnation corsages were presented to the honor guest and her mother. Gifts were in a pink and white wishing well.

Others attending were Mrs. S. Kemp, Miss Ann Kemp, Mrs. P. Lamond, Mrs. R. Holford, Mrs. V. Smith, Mrs. J. Norton, Mrs. Noon, Mrs. B. Good, Mrs. B. Thompson, Miss Rosiline Frees, Mrs. L. Frees, Mrs. F. Hunter and Mrs. P. Taylor.

Mrs. George Lemire used a centennial theme when she gave a shower in her Burdett Avenue home. Guests were dressed in old-time costumes and gifts were arranged around a decorated teepee.

Those attending included the bride-to-be's mother, Mrs. E. Shirley, Miss Flora Lemire, Mrs. S. O'Brien, Mrs. M. Murdock, Mrs. G. Durdle and Mrs. L. Humphrey.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Farmer's Daughter Is No Heifer!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our 15-year-old, 6-foot, 200-pound son got a girl from a neighboring farm into trouble. She is also 15. We gave him strict orders to stay away from her, but it seems he didn't. Her people claim it's our fault.

I talked with a judge in the city, and he said there is a law that says if a man owns a bull he is responsible for keeping the bull locked up. And if the bull gets loose and goes into a neighbor's pasture and breeds his dairy heifers, the owners of the heifers can't sue for damages because they should have kept their heifers locked up. My friend, the judge, says the same law applies to people. Have we a case?

OHIO FARMER.

DEAR FARMER: A man's son is not a bull, neither is his neighbor's daughter a heifer. I can't practise law, but I think your friend, the judge, gave you a bum steer.

DEAR ABBY: I am only the grandmother, but I want to know if I have to sit around and keep my mouth shut when my son-in-law abuses my four-year-old grandson until it about tears my heart out?

I wouldn't mind if the kid had it coming, but his father watches him like a hawk, just waiting to pounce on him for any little thing.

I have seen that man knock the boy right off his chair with one slap in the face for "reaching" at the table. And he has raised welts half an inch high on the boy's back with a leather belt for leaving the bathroom water running. I am so afraid he will cripple the child for life. My daughter is afraid to say anything to him. He reads your column. Please say something. Maybe he will take the hint.

GRANDMA.

DEAR GRANDMA: Hint? The big bully should be hauled into court. They will order him to submit to a mental examination because no healthy, normal man behaves this way. If he refuses to voluntarily see a doctor, you should report him to your local police or sheriff. He needs desperately to have his head examined. And so should your daughter if she puts up with it.

DEAR ABBY: Recently one of my mother's friends told my mother that she saw me smoking. It was true; she did see me. When my mother asked me about it, I lied and told her I wasn't. My mother believed me. Now she isn't speaking to her friend because she thinks her friend lied about me.

I feel just awful, Abby. How can I get my mother and her friend back together again and get them both to trust me?

GUILTY CONSCIENCE.

DEAR GUILTY: Tell your mother you lied, and don't worry about being "trusted." You will show more character for having reconsidered and wanting to set the record straight than to perpetuate the lie for fear of losing face.

Confidential to "Fashion Conscious": The smartest thing a woman who wants to be "smartly" dressed can do is to throw all the fashion magazines in the trash can and dress to please her man.

SHOPPING GUIDE

'Gold Mine' of Gifts —Local and Imported

By Penny Saver

Penny's done it again. A couple of weeks ago, a friend presented me with a beautiful set of wooden coasters. I was thrilled with them, so the first time we had guests I took the opportunity to show them off. After a late evening we were too tired to tackle the dishes, and the next morning I volunteered the junior set to do the job. They had a great clean-up campaign . . . they even threw out my "disposable" coasters. Frantically I chased around until I found the box they had come in, and then I headed for the store to buy duplicates.

I was in luck. Not only was I able to replace my coasters, but I nearly "bought out the store." This little gift shop specializes in items that are locally made, and in European imports . . . the combination provides a fabulous selection.

The coasters, I learned, are hand-made here in Victoria. A retired naval officer who enjoys painting produces not only coasters but very handsome warming pads for table use—even hasty notes. Warming pads and coasters are made of wood, have a felt backing and can be sponged clean. There are five different sets of mats available, and they may be ordered with edgings of ivory, blue, green, brown or yellow, according to your dining room decor.

Paintings on these mats can be of old-time Victoria scenes, modern-day Victoria scenes, ships, native flowers or naval uniforms. These beautifully finished pads are priced at $1.75 each, or $10.95 for a set of six. A perfect gift item!

Imported greeting cards were another thing that caught my eye. Coming mainly from England, but many from the Continent, too, these cards feature reproductions of famous paintings, abstract paintings, photographs and floral designs. These distinctive cards are priced from 35 cents.

June weddings are just around the corner, and I saw many gifts to delight the young bride. Hand-painted Italian coffee mugs, decorated with splashy floral designs, are priced at $1.25 each. White kitchen canisters with yellow trim, decorated with gaily-painted sunflowers, come in sets of four. Made in graduated sizes, a set is priced at $10.95.

Another item that intrigued me was a ceramic owl lamp. The owl is hollow so that it may be fitted with a candle or electric fixture. Standing about a foot high, this lantern has a handle attached so that it can be hung in the garden, or on the patio. It's a novel gift idea, priced at $4.95.

If you'd like to know where I shopped for these unusual gifts and imported cards, please give me a call at 382-3131.

Weds Derek MacGregor-Greer in Oak Bay Church

DAPHNE BORRIS MARRIED TODAY

Delicate Venetian lace formed the bodice of the dainty sonesta gown worn by Daphne Gay Borris, this afternoon, when she became the bride of Sub-Lt. Derek MacGregor-Greer, RCN. The sleeves of the bodice gently tipped her elbow.

The gown was fashioned on princess lines and featured a full detachable court train sweeping back from the shoulders. A coronet of white rosebuds held her softly misted cathedral veil of silk illusion net. Her bouquet was a sunburst of lily of the valley and stephanotis.

As a "something old" talisman, the bride chose a gold horseshoe brooch which had belonged to her great-grandmother, and "for luck" she had a silver sixpence belonging to the groom's grandmother in her shoe. Pearl earrings were an added jewelry accent.

St. Mary's Anglican Church, Oak Bay, was decorated in an attractive all-white theme when Canon Hywel Jones, assisted by Rev. R. O. Wilkes, heard marriage vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Borris, 2411 Lincoln Road, and the son of Major and Mrs. S. W. M. MacGregor-Greer, 2434 Windsor Road. Mr. Borris gave his daughter in marriage.

During the service, organist David Palmer played Purcell's "Trumpet Voluntary," and Bach's "Prelude in G Major" as the couple signed the register. The groom's fellow officers from HMCS Columbia formed a guard of honor as the couple left the church.

Matching gowns of ash rose silk, fashioned on empire lines and featuring belled sleeves of dainty lace, were worn by the bride's attendants. Their Juliet caps were of the same lace and were studded with tiny pearls. They carried colonial bouquets of hydrangea and lilac in mauve and purple tones.

Miss Cheryl Borris was maid of honor for her sister; the groom's sister, Mrs. Aldert Dykstra, Ottawa, was bridesmatron, and Miss Lesley Thomas, bridesmaid.

Little flower girl Jocelyn Alder was in a frock of mauve organdy over rose peau de soie. Her sash and hairbow echoed the tones of her dress.

Sub-Lt. George S. Ploughman, RCN, was best man and ushering the guests were Sub-Lt. W. J. Rupka and Lieut. C. D. Gordon.

The newlyweds used the groom's sword to cut the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception following in the wardroom of Canadian Forces Base Esquimalt. Judge Harold Alder proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

A couturier-designed suit of white imported silk wool, highlighted with embroidery, was worn by the new Mrs. MacGregor-Greer for travelling on honeymoon touring the Olympic Peninsula. She topped the dress with a navy blue wool coat and chose accessories en tone. A white orchid corsage completed the outfit.

SOUTH SEA TRIP

Their Food Refused To Stay for Dinner

By JO DREWRY

When the food walks off the plate it's difficult to finish dinner — or so the Bettison family found on their recent trip to the South Pacific.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee J. Bettison and their daughters, Edith and Cherie, accompanied by Miss Delia Wehle of Cornwall, Ont., were treated to a Samoan feast during their stay in West Samoa. The dinner featured raw seafoods — raw crab, raw fish, stuffed octopus cooked in coconut cream, and raw sea urchin. The sea urchin, however, eluded the dinner party. Mr. Bettison watched as it wriggled its spines and walked off the plate.

This is one of the curious incidents which the Bettison family, 4511 Eva Road, remembers from its 2½ month vacation on the islands of Tahiti, Samoa and Fiji. Staying in native hotels, and beach huts or cabanas, they adapted to the native cultures and made many friends during their stay.

CEREMONY ON FILM

One friendship brought Mr. Bettison the opportunity to take part in a Samoan cava ceremony. Cava, a drink made from the powdered root of the pepper plant, is usually served only to royalty and to men of great distinction. During the Bettisons' visit the rite was performed for an Australian television company filming a documentary. Two residents of the island and Mr. Bettison were the only persons distinguished by the receiving of cava.

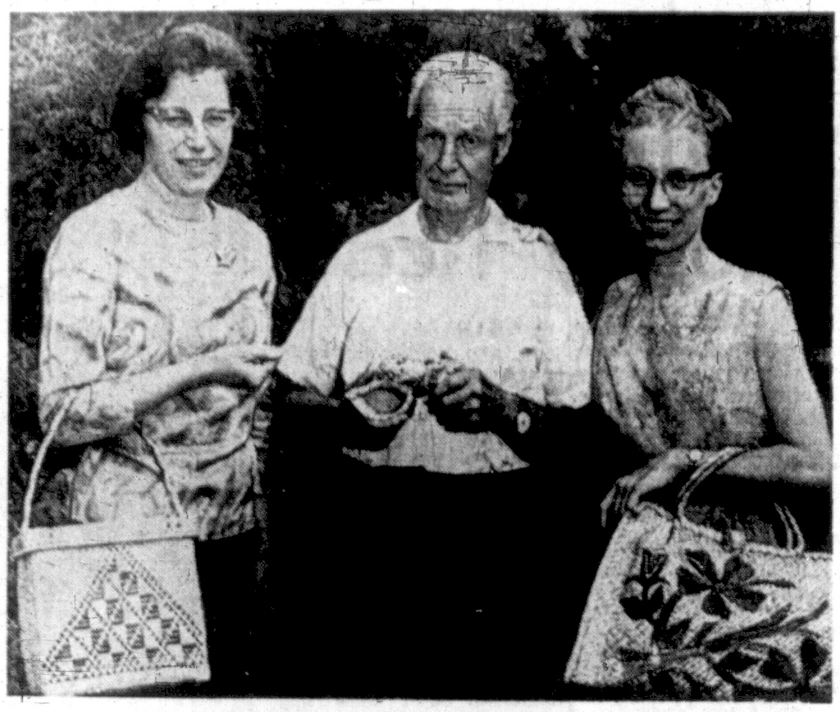
In Tahiti the Bettisons found their most difficult adjustment was to the natives' disregard for time. After numerous false starts on a boat trip, they learned the reason for the ship's delayed departure. They were informed that the boat, its engine lost or stolen, was on time if it reached Samoa within twenty-six days of its expected arrival.

Bus systems in Fiji were equally erratic. The bus had a definite route but rarely stayed on it, and it had no time schedule. Usually avoided by visitors, its primary function was livestock transport, carrying the natives' live chickens and freshly-caught fish to market. The destination of a journey became unimportant compared to the fight for survival with the chickens squabbling in the aisle.

SOGGY BOAT TRIP

While staying in Fiji the Bettisons did make one boat trip up-river into the interior of the country. At one point the boat stopped to land two men. Further downstream the two men re-boarded, accompanied by a goat. The passengers were left no time to speculate on the goat's ownership or origin. For the remainder of the trip the passengers were forced to bail the boat, rapidly being deluged by a tropical rainstorm.

The Bettisons had another encounter with tropical rain when they made a six-mile hike to visit a Samoan waterfall. The heat of the climate, usually around 100 degrees, had dried up the fall. If the family had waited a couple of hours they would undoubtedly have had a spectacular view of the falls, for they had scarcely begun to walk back when the rain began. Within only a few minutes, clothing and shoes ruined, they were wading in a knee-high stream, unable to see more than a few feet before them. They never did see the waterfall.



Mr. and Mrs. Lee J. Bettison and their daughter, Edith, are showing just a few of the souvenirs they found during their two and a half month trip to the South Pacific islands of Fiji, Samoa and Tahiti. The basket purses are handwoven from a type of straw and Edith's features a design of softened bark which is lacquered, then stitched onto the bag.

Christmas and New Year in the tropical region, the Bettisons found most unusual. Christmas is the more quiet celebration, and is predominantly a religious festival. Creches are placed in the large cathedrals, which are the focal points of every Samoan town. Pictures of untanned Santa Clauses were in some stores though, and just before Christmas many of the shop windows were decorated.

New Year in Samoa is a major festival. The natives, wearing tinsel in their hair and festooning themselves with twisted ropes of colorful baloons, walk and ride through the streets all day and far into the night, banging on washtubs and singing.

The Bettisons brought back many beautiful mementos of their visit, among them numerous gifts which were given them by friends they made on the islands. Intricate shell leis, hand-woven baskets, carvings of wood and bone, and tapa clothes are only a few of these. Tapa cloth, made from the bark of the flowerless mulberry and glued with raw tapioca, has the appearance of felt. Tapa is made on most of the islands, and each individual has his own design which is painted on the cloth after it has dried. This is the fabric from which the native girls fashion their bridal dresses.

After this memorable visit in the islands, Miss Edith Bettison travelled alone to Australia, the Phillipines, Hong Kong, Japan, and Hawaii. She now lives with her parents at 4511 Eva Road. Miss Cherie Bettison and Miss Delia Wehle are nursing in Cornwall, Ont.

The forthcoming marriage has been announced of Miss Susan J. Linggard, daughter of Capt. J. H. Linggard and Mrs. Linggard, Suite 407, 240 Douglas Street, to Mr. John C. Davis, son of Mrs. J. M. Davis, 2537 Estevan Avenue. The wedding will take place on Saturday, June 3 at 2 p.m. in St. Patrick's Church. Fr. A. E. Leonard will officiate. (J. Barnard)

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Tiny Parasols

The shower cake was flanked by arrangements of tiny parasols when Mrs. Robert Morrison gave a shower in her Cordova Bay waterfront home in honor of her niece, bride-elect Miss Lorayne Hicks of Vancouver. Spring blossoms and blue iris decorated the rooms. Mrs. Marjorie Goodwin presented corsages to the honor guest, her mother, Mrs. Nelson Hicks; her grandmother, Mrs. David Sheret, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. Ronald Harris. Thirty guests were invited. Gifts were in a gaily decorated pink box.

Kitchen Shower

A large nurse's cap fashioned from cardboard contained the gifts at a recent kitchen shower given in honor of bride-elect Miss Irene Hilliard, by the Misses Barbara Hebden and Marion Denton, in Miss Hebden's San Juan Avenue home. The bride-elect is a graduate of St. Joseph's Hospital school of nursing. Behind the honor guest's chair was a mop decorated as an operating room lamp. Buffet refreshments were served. The refreshment table was decorated with a pink cake topped by silver wedding bells. Among the guests were Mrs. M. Barnes, Mrs. P. Dally, Mrs. J. Burley, Mrs. S. Simpson, Mrs. J. Moody, Mrs. P. Hebden, Mrs. J. Hilliard, Mrs. M. Simpson, Mrs. D. Bertram, the Misses Sylvia Hebden, Jan Eaton, Elsie Huber, Colleen Campbell, Donna McKay and Sheila Yip.

MANY VISITORS FOR HOLIDAY WEEKEND

Busy Days for Salt Spring Island Hosts

These last few weeks have been busy ones for Salt Spring Island residents who have been entertaining a number of off-Island visitors.

Guests in the Ganges home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Saunders were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Herman of Castlegar. The couple manage the Christmas Seal campaign in their district and attended the British Columbia Tuberculosis Society annual meeting in Victoria before crossing to Ganges.

Spending a month visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hart Bradley, in their Booth Bay home is Mrs. Robert Wiebe with her small daughters, Leah and Sarah. They are visiting from Powell River. The Misses Doreen Davidson and Elizabeth Rolfe crossed from Vancouver to spend the holiday weedend with Miss Davidson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Davidson of Ganges. Miss Davidson has now left on a trip to England and Miss Rolfe is leaving shortly for India.

Lt.-Cmdr. R. E. Stone, Halifax was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. Graham Shove at "Gailee" for the holiday weekend. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bousfield of Shawnigan Lake were also on the island for the weekend. Visiting with Mrs. Bousfield's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morris, Ganges, they stayed in Col. D. G. Crofton's summer home on Sunset Drive.

Victorians who spent the holiday weekend on the island at Harbor House were Mr. and Mrs. W. Lindsay, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Patterson, Mrs. Elsie Radford, Mrs. Daphne Ludlow, Mrs. Margaret Dewdney, Mrs. Barbara Baker, Mrs. Irene Hicks, George McMinn, Sid Hick Ted Smythe, the Misses Wendy Harris, Janet Chapman, Joan Griffiths and J. M. Skellern.

Other holiday visitors were Mr. and Mrs. G. McGavin, R. Weeks, Ernie Milgram, Frank Holmes, Harry Harwood, H. Drivenach of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Moxon and Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Foreman of West Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. John Frankland of Langley-Miss Hazel Frankland, Ladysmith; the Misses Helen Stratta and Patricia McNulty of Shawnigan Lake; John W. Lee and Miss Mary Lee of Williams Lake.

On Saturday evening, 22 members of the Seattle Yacht Club gathered in the hotel for a dinner party.

FOR INDIA

Faith, Votes Closely Tied

By RAM SUNDAR

BOMBAY (CP)—Religion and politics in India, the world's most populous democracy, have always been intermixed and still are.

More than 30,000,000 Hindus from across the country ceremonially bathed recently in the Ganges, Yamuna, Godavari, Cauveri and other sacred rivers.

It was one of those auspicious occasions in which the Hindu religious calendar seems to abound. Men, women and children travelled by train, bus and bullock cart to reach the rivers.

The next week the same people were trooping to the polling booths to vote in the general election. Some of them confessed that while they bathed they prayed for the success of their favorite candidates.

Observers conclude that after 20 years of independence — a period in which literacy has made the biggest strides in Indian history and the people have become perceptibly scientific-minded — Indians remain as deeply religious as ever.

Some sociologists think that the influence of religion is growing.

TRAFFIC HALTED

Traffic on many of Bombay's roads came to a standstill for two hours not long ago. The Hindus of one of Asia's most westernized cities were welcoming His Holiness Jagadguru Sankaracharya, Hindu leader who lives in a monastery in Orissa state on India's east coast.

Every month, a new temple or mosque is being opened somewhere in India. Newspapers speak of a revival of temple architecture in southern India, famous for its 1,000-year-old shrines.

Some two dozen ancient Hindu temples and an equal number of Roman Catholic churches and Moslem mosques have been renovated with government and private help during the last two years.

Every provincial government has a minister for religious endowments. His job is to ensure that managements of religious institutions spend their funds properly. There have been charges that in some of them unscrupulous monks have embezzled the funds.

Indian politicians are finding that disrespect to religious sentiments does not pay.

There were allegations recently that the minister of religious endowments of Madras state in southern India was carrying his atheistic tendencies a little too far. The state administration is in the hands of the Dravidian Progressive Association, a left-wing group.

VISITED SHRINE

Sensing a threat to the party's following, the minister assured the estate legislature that "whatever my own personal views about religion I will not offend the religious sentiments of anyone."

He followed this up with a visit to a nearby shrine.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi is also taking care to ensure that she is not suspected of being an agnostic — a confession often made by the late Jawaharlal Nehru, her distinguished father.

When the chief monk of a southern Hindu monastery visited New Delhi, Mrs. Gandhi called on him, touched his feet reverently and asked for his blessing.

Photographs of the event published in the major newspapers seem to have convinced most Indians that Nehru's daughter is no agnostic.

Most of the members of the Gandhi cabinet are deeply religious. Some of them pray twice a day, take part in religious festivals and resent suggestions that religion should be a private affair.

SEE NO CONFLICT

Deputy Prime Minister Morarji Desai is so pious that he retires to his pooja-worship-room for an hour every morning. Home Affairs Minister Yeshwantrao Chavan is said to attach much importance to a daily 10-minute meditation in front of a gold-and-silver image of the godess Bhavani.

Apparently, the more educated an Indian the more religious he becomes.

Mercy Upon Him

"Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him." This text from Isaiah is part of the responsive reading in this week's Christian Science lesson-sermon titled "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced."

NEWS FROM CITY CHURCHES

Congregations to Inspect New Location for Building

Emmanuel and Stevenson Baptist Churches will celebrate C-Day this Sunday.

There will be a cavalcade of cars at 4:15 p.m. from the parking lot at 1792 Townley Street, proceeding to the corner of Henderson and Cedar Hill Cross Roads, where the church has secured 2.3 acres for new site.

"Walks have been cut through the property, and it has been colorfully decorated says Bernice Brodersen, pastor's secretary.

The choir will sing The Lord Is My Shepherd.

A short worship service will follow.

* * *

In First United Church Sunday morning, Rev. Robert Morris will preach on Holy Spirit, the Who and Wholeness of Life.

Rev. Marvin G. Fowler will preach in the evening on Victor or Victim of Circumstance.

The choir will sing the anthem Lord For Thy Tender Mercies Sake and O Lord My God, while W. H. Gregory, soloist, will sing The Publican.

* * *

Pastor Arthur Toms will preach on the possibility of a Third World War developing from the present situation in the Middle East.

The service will begin at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the Apostollic Church.

* * *

Eerne Ratcliffe will be the soloist in Metropolitan Church on Sunday morning when she singe Come Ye Blessed, while William McNeil will be at the organ.

Rev. Albert E. King will preach at both services. His subjects will be Beauty, Utility and Eternity in the morning and It Doesn't Depend on You at the evening service.

* * *

A report on the United Church conference, held earlier this month in New Westminister, will be given Sunday by Rev. H. R. Whitmore in both Garden City and Wilkinson Road United Churches.

At the 10 a.m. service in Garden City, Mrs. S. Hayhurst, Mrs. A. A. Campion and Mrs. E. B. Hackett will sing Consecration.

MARKING his 60th year in the ministry this Sunday will be Rev. Dr. E. Frank Salmon, who will speak at St. John's Church. He will receive a gift from the congregation.

At Wilkinson Road, at 11:15, the anthem will be Great and Marvelous.

* * *

A team of experts in the field of religious education who are associated with the fellowship of Evangelical Baptist churches across Canada will be guests at Central Baptist Church this week.

Rev. William Hiltz, who is the pastor of the Bramalea Baptist Church, Toronto, and chairman of the Christian education board of the fellowship will be speaking at both services on Sunday.

He will be joined by Rev. Ed Mitchell, Christian education director, of the Wortley Baptist Church, London, Ontario, when on Friday, June 2 they will conduct a Christian education conference in Central Baptist Church at 8 p.m.

* * *

Three persons were added to the membership of the Seventh-day Adventist Church morning service, by baptism and receiving the hand of fellowship.

Pastor John Mustard officiated with the support of the elders of the church.

* * *

The morning service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will be conducted by Dr. J. L. W. McLean who will preach and preside at the ordination and induction of eight newly-elected elders.

Evening worship will b econducted by Rev. Bruce J. Molloy, who will have as his sermon subject: Between The Thunder and The Sun — the Fledgling's Flip and LSD. This topic will deal with: The concern of young people; do not dismiss all this as a fad; and the actual danger of using or being sympathetic to the use of drugs.

Inter-Faith Service Cancelled in Britain

LONDON (AP) — Plans for a multi-religious service to mark Commonwealth Day June 10 have been dropped because the Archbishop of Canterbury, as spiritual head of the Church of England, has not given his approval.

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip attended a similar service at St. Martin-in-the-Fields, Trafalgar Square, last year.

This time the Duke of Kent, her cousin, had provisionally agreed to be present with the Duchess of Kent.

The service, intended to bring together Christians of most denominations with Moslems, Buddhists and Hindus, is arranged by the joint Commonwealth Societies Council.

Plans for it to be held again in St. Martin's were far advanced when word came from Lambeth Palace, the archbishop's official residence, that approval had not been given.

Dr. Robert Stopford, bishop of London, in whose diocese the church lies, took a similar line.

CHURCHMEN CRITICAL

There was a storm of criticism from some Anglican churchmen about the service being held at St. Martins's last year. The main objection was that Christians, believing their faith to be the true one, were compromising it by joining in a service with Moslems, Buddhists and Hindus.

Graham at Winnipeg Crusade Sees North American Revival

WINNIPEG (CP)—A religious revival is quietly sweeping North America despite apparent moral deterioration, evangelist Billy Graham said here.

The world-known evangelist, in Winnipeg for an eight-day crusade, told a press conference there is a revolt against the institution of the church but "people are finding spiritual help in other ways." He said there are a growing number of people participating in Bible study groups.

He said there has been a trend in history of moral decay increasing at the same time interest in religion grows.

Mr. Graham, holding his first Canadian crusade in a decade, answered questions for more than an hour during a press conference shortly nursing a sore right arm.

after his arrival for the meetings which open Sunday.

The outspoken clergyman said the ecumenical movements throughout the world are hopeful signs for Christendom, adding he receives almost as much support from Roman Catholics as he does from Protestants.

"This could not have happened before Pope John," said Mr. Graham, saying a growing degree of unity has been evident in the last five years.

He added that he feels closer, theologically, to some Cathoics than he does to many Protestants.

Mr. Graham, who will meet with church leaders before the crusade opens as well as attend a reception scheduled by Lieutenant-Governor R. S. Bowles, arrived in Winnipeg

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

Farce!

That's about the only single epithet suitable to describe the recent Battle of the Bands in Nanaimo, at which the title of "Number One Band on Vancouver Island" was up for grabs.

You've no doubt heard the results: Victoria's Mixed Emotions were defeated by Nanaimo's Cry for Justice.

Justice! That's one commodity that was in short supply in Nanaimo's Legion Hall, where four up-Island judges gave the nod to the local favorites rather than the obviously superior Victoria band.

In every respect the Mixed Emotions showed themselves to be the better band. Man for man they proved they were more talented musicians, and as a group their sound was considerably stronger than the Nanaimo five.

●

The vocal work of the Cry for Justice lacked the harmony and maturity of the Mixed Emotions.

As for showmanship and stage appearance, the Cry for Justice just weren't in the same league as the Mixed Emotions, whose well-rehearsed and neatly executed steps made the Cry for Justice's crude efforts appear ludicrous.

Crowd reaction was perhaps the decisive factor in the judge's decision. The crowd was decidedly hostile towards the Victoria "intruders," and refused to acknowledge with even polite applause the Mixed Emotions' fine show.

●

But, when the singer of the local band fell to the floor in a vulgar display of suggestive gestures, the audience responded with a tremendous ovation.

As far as I am concerned until they are defeated in a fairly judged contest, the Mixed Emotions can still be rightfully called Vancouver Island's Number One Band.

BITS AND PIECES

What gives? Only a handful of patrons turned out for Seattle's Statesmen's second dance effort in Victoria last Sunday night. After Victorians asked to have them back after their first show in town it makes one wonder where everyone was. Maybe that week of sunshine we had was too much for them. Keep your ears open for a new group, Gulliver's Travels. After a couple of shows at the Jaycee Fair last week they showed about five thousand Victorians what a couple of weeks' solid practice can do for a group. Already they are the favorites of countless locals and up-Island bookings are waiting for their nod.

Musical History Made; Symphony Visits Ganges

By AUDREY JOHNSON

GANGES — A bit of musical history in this area was made Friday night.

The visit to Salt Spring Island by the Victoria Symphony Concert Orchestra was unprecedented.

It was also the first concert conducted by Maestro Laszlo Gati since his recent appointment as resident conductor of the symphony.

And that, as one member of the audience remarked, made the occasion all the more distinguished.

About 400 people filled the Ganges secondary school auditorium and their enthusiasm was such that already tentative plans are being outlined for a second visit by enlarged orchestra in the fall.

Friday's concert was the result of a special grant from the B.C. Centennial Commission. It was organized and sponsored locally by the Lion's Club.

CHAMBER MUSIC

Eighteen of the symphony's leading string players comprised the concert orchestra for which Mr. Gati had chosen a delightful program of mostly familiar chamber music — Mozart's Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, the Boccherini Menuett, Strauss' Pizzicato Polka, and from Tschaikowsky's Serenade for Strings the Valse and Elegie.

The program opened animatedly with two movements from a Mozart Divertimento. It also included a Vivaldi Violin Concerto which was artistically one of the most successful, as well as best received numbers of the evening.

Jean Angers was the soloist, playing with authority and verve and in the brief slow movement, with warm beauty of tone and fine sensitivity.

It is clear that Mr. Gati, himself a violinist, will do much to enhance the overall quality of string playing within the symphnoy.

At the same time he has humor and charm, and the effect of this on the audience as well as on the players, is to relax everyone.

HUMOR AND CHARM

In a situation such as Friday's with orchestra, maestro and audience in close proximity, he immediately establishes an aura of enjoyment and informality.

The program lasted just short of two hours but the audience would probably have sat there happily for at least another half hour.

"It was over too soon," sighed one woman.

"I certainly hope they can come again. It makes you realize what you've been missing," commented a man.

And another said, "I don't know anything about music and some people thought this would be too highbrow but it wasn't. I enjoyed every note and especially being able to watch the players and the conductor."

ADVANTAGES

Some Salt Spring Islanders were admitting that now they could see where life in Victoria had certain advantages over their gulf paradise.

During the afternoon, as an overture to Salt Spring's first symphony concert, the School of Music Trio — Robin Wood, Jean Angers and Hans Siegrist — performed for students in both the elementary and secondary schools.

Parents and teachers reported that the youngsters were all enthusiastic about the experience and, like their elders, are clamoring for more.

Brethrens Look to Merger With United

HAMILTON (CP) — A bishop of the Evangelical United Brethren Church says he looks forward to the day when his church will be united with the United Church of Canada and the Methodist Church in the U.S.

Bishop Reuben H. Mueller of Indianapolis, one of seven bishops of the church, is presiding over the Canada conference which opened here Wednesday and ends today.

Delegates represent 62 churches in eastern Canada with membership of 10,000.

Invitations to discuss nunion were extended to the EUB last year by the United and Methodist churches. All conferences of the EUB church are voting on the issues, with results to be known about mid-July.

Fifty-one EUB churches in western Canada with membership of about 4,000 are not involved.

Anglicans Note 65,259 Dropouts From Schools

HALIFAX (CP) — A report presented to the Anglican synod here says present trends indicate the extinction of the church school in the next decade.

A national survey by the church's department of information and stewardship showed a decline of 65,259 pupils in Anglican Church schools since 1960.

The report added that national income of the church dropped by $1,500,000 last year from the previous year.

Rev. A. C. Snow, in the report, called for "intensified pastoral concern for the unchurched and more significant interpretation of the church life to the faithful."

He added that parish priests spend too much time in parish administration and not enough in looking after the needs of the parish. Anglican priests needed retraining because of lack of managerial skills in many complex parish organizations.

'The Broken Jug' Example to Writers

By DON McLEOD

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The Broken Jug, fifth play of the 1967 Dominion Drama Festival, is an example of adaptation to which Canadian playwrights should devote more attention, adjudicator Guy Beaulne said Friday night.

"I've always thought that an adaptation as cleverly done as this one is just as important to understand why Canadians perform the works of Chekhov or other classic artists using a translation or an adaptation made in London, Paris or New York.

". . . We are not an English people, nor a French people, nor an American people but a Canadian people."

The Broken Jug, performed by the Guelph Little Theatre, was adapted from a German classic by Donald Harron, Toronto actor and writer.

STRESSES AUTHORS

Mr. Beaulne said at the start of the week-long festival, which ends tonight, that he would devote more time than usual each night to analyzing the authors and their plays.

Guelph's entry drew a mixture of praise and criticism from Mr. Beaulne who said the play was "a well balanced performance, with good acting." But it was often underplayed and "missed much of the juice of comedy."

Mr. Beaulne said the set, costumes, makeup, grouping and other aspects of the performance were generally good. The actors seemed initially to be a bit shy on voice projection.

He mentioned Terry Doyle, in the leading role as Judge Adam, whom Mr. Beaulne said "underplayed the character too much."

Mr. Doyle lacked the build, the age, the "loudness and the peasant quality that definitely establish the judge."

His warmest praise was for Phyllis Dodson, as Jessie, whom he described as "very good, definitely in character and very interesting."

The French-language play Le Pendu by Montrealer Robert Gurk winds up the festival tonight.

"A STRONGHOLD OF PRIVATE ENTERPRISE"

If interested in a newspaper route for your son, call or write the circulation manager of the

VICTORIA DAILY TIMES

It's hard to start a business of your own these days. Takes a lot of capital . . . the right breaks. Still's it's a shame everyone can't have the experience because there's a lot to learn from it.

When a boy takes charge of a newspaper route he's going into business for himself. He learns to budget his time, to keep accurate records; he learns the self-reliance that comes through responsibility. And his profits give him a head start on saving a bit of capital.

If your son comes up to you someday and asks whether he can have a paper route, don't give him the brush-off. He's showing a little initiative. And after all, that's how private enterprise is built.

9 IN MEMORIAM

FENNELL—In loving memory of a dear father, grandfather, Leslie P., who passed away May 27, 1955.

We cannot clasp your hand
Father Dear,
Your face we cannot see,
But let this little token
Tell that we still remember thee.

—Ever remembered by his son Bob, daughter-in-law Muriel and grandchildren Bob, Barb and Brad.

PARKS—In loving memory of Carman W. Parks, who passed away May 28, 1965.

"Loving and kind in al his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind."

—Ever remembered by his wife, Ethel, son, Garth and family.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

North and South might well have gone to four spades with their cards. South would have no trouble making four spades if he could find East with the king of spades because he would be able to draw trumps and eventually discard one diamond on dummy's fourth club.

Opening lead—♥8

Three spades was a far better contract but South did not make that either. East's defence was too good.

West opened the eight of hearts. East looked things over carefully and saw that his partner was sure to hold the king of hearts. West would have led the jack from jack-ten-nine-eight. East also saw that he needed to get the lead twice and played his queen of hearts. Then he led back the eight of diamonds. South played the ten and West the jack. Dummy's ace won the trick and the spade finesse was lost. West put East in with the ace of hearts and the second diamond lead gave West two diamond tricks.

"Beautiful defence," said West. "Glad you didn't put me to the test."

"What test?" asked East.

"A real test," said West. "A bad player would have won the first heart with the ace and played the queen immediately. This would have given South his contract automatically. A fair player would have won the first heart with the ace and led the diamond. This play would have given me a chance to underlead my king of hearts when I got in with the king of spades. I'm happy you didn't give me that problem."

"THE HOTEL WITH A BEACH FOR A DOORSTEP"
ISLAND HALL HOTEL
PARKSVILLE, V.I., B.C.

There is so much at Island Hall to make it the favorite resort of many people. Situated on one of the most beautiful white, sandy beaches in well-known resort village on main Island Highway. Ideal place for summer vacations, weekends, or just any relaxing holiday.

- INDOOR HEATED SALT WATER SWIMMING POOL
- HOT TURBULENT POOL
- SAUNA BATH
- EXERCISE ROOM
- SHUFFLE BOARD
- TABLE TENNIS
- BILLIARDS, ETC.

So rain or shine, fair weather or foul — there is something to do.

Rooms in main hotel are refurbished and refurnished, nearly all with bathrooms, some de luxe rooms with sea view balconies. Annex rooms are large and commodious inviting family groups.

Excellent food, superior facilities for conventions and group meetings. Mid-day every Saturday and Sunday our famous hot and cold smorgasbord. For a day, a week, a weekend, you will find this is the ideal place.

20 new bedrooms all on ground floor, all facing the sea, and all with private bathrooms are under construction and are expected to be ready for occupancy June 15.

SECLUSION, TREES
Suitable for VLA. $21,000

An almost brand new home nearly surrounded by fir and pine trees, situated in an excellent rural area off Interurban Rd. Main floor features include a step-saver kitchen with de luxe cabinets and huge eating area, family room overlooking secluded rear yard. 20x18' living room has a beautiful bleach white brick raised hearth fireplace—and features No. 1 Oak floor. Both bedrooms on main floor are a good size and feature large double closets. Five-piece vanity bathroom is the luxury point in the home with beautiful floors and a huge vanity with double sinks. Carpeted Cathedral entrance also leads to basement, where there is room for a 3rd bedroom. Recreation room in basement is roughed in and features finished fireplace across one wall with built-in wood box. Finished utility area has cabinets and roughed bath has fixtures (not installed). Also space for workshop and den. Well is a good producer year round on this property. Phone for appointment.

LARGE FAIRFIELD HOME CLOSE TO PARK AND SEA
$17,500

A frustrated vendor must sell this spacious Fairfield residence after nearly completing extensive renovations. Over 1900 sq. ft. of home with three bedrooms upstairs plus a den or nursery overlooking the quiet street. Vestibule is really attractive with a provincial paper and open staircase. Large living room with 4' fireplace and dining room are divided by a square white arch and both measure 18' square. Galley kitchen is fully modernized with arborite counters, a real step saver and has a large family breakfast area with built-in nook. Full basement has finished utility area with 2 pce bath and finished recreation room with built-in bar and TV—also space for 4th big bedroom down here. New OOM heat, 100 Amp Loomex wiring and guaranteed hot water tank. Very reasonable vendors coupled with excellent terms make this a must see — NO DRIVE-BYS.

GRACEFUL TUDOR

Situated in a good residential area, close to all schools and services on a one-third acre of flowered beds, fish pooled rockeries, and acorned oaks in this 27-year-old home built in the 1½ storey Tudor fashion with the exterior charm of the steep pitched gables. The interior is a surprise as it is far above par for this vintage. The living room is smallish, comparatively, with a matched granite fireplace, quite masculine, and inlaid oak floors. Big family area and dining room are across through hall and have a small vine covered le nigh off. Semi-modern kitchen has lots of countertop and long breakfast bar built-in with chairs and overlooks treed rear yard. One huge bedroom on main floor has a closet through which you can enter the 4 pce bathroom. Three or four bedrooms upstairs by way of the open staircase are average or better all with large closets and share 2 pce bathroom. Basement is full height and has a party room and small den. Large double garage, drive-in garage and port provides shelter for 4 cars. See this Tudor.

ESQUIMALT PARKLANDS

My owners love me, but wish to settle in the country. My misses is an atrist and enhances my sunny interior with her lovely paintings. I let the sunshine into my living room and dining room through large windows. Oh yes! Insist upon the lovely drapes staying with me as they match my floor-to-ceiling fireplace. Forget your old stove and fridge. Mine has a wall oven, countertop range and spacious fridge, all the same color. No one fights in my bathroom as I have wall-to-wall vanity with his and hers basin and wall-to-wall mirror. My 3 large sleeping lounges have super size closets to keep me neat (one has a desk). The floor-to-ceiling white fireplace really sets off my mahogany rumpus room. I could go on bragging about me forever, but why not come in and see me. You'll love me and I'm sure I'll love you if you keep me as nice as my present owners. I'm only $21,900 so why not call my agent now?

Near First Sight of U.K.

PLYMOUTH, England (AP)—Lone sailor Sir Francis Chichester was reported early today approaching the Scilly Islands and his first sight of Britain in nine months.

With about 200 miles to go to his finish line in Plymouth harbor, the 65-year-old, round-the-world sailor in Gipsy Moth IV was rolling gently in a light swell.

"If it's clear tonight, he will be able to see the lights of Land's End," an RAF spokesman said at St. Mawgain.

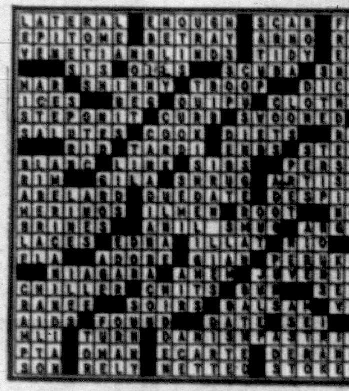
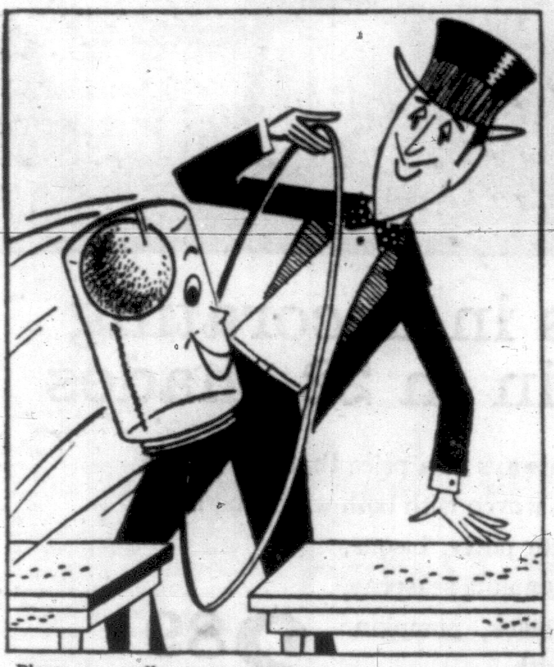
Answers to Previous Puzzle



SMART GALLERY



Place a small orange (or rubber ball) before you on the table and cover it with a glass fruit jar, such as is used for home canning. Then invite one of your friends to remove the sphere from this location to another table across the room—without touching it, of course!

Perhaps your friend will try to scoop up the ball with the jar. This is not permitted. The mouth of the jar must be held down at all times.

Can you figure out how it's done?

Answer: Grasping the jar firmly, move it around in a circle, thus causing the orange to spin inside. As the orange whirls within it, carry the jar to the other table. The orange will remain in the jar as long as the whirling motion continues in effect.

FAMOUS NAMES

First names of many famous persons are derived from the Bible. Put on your thinking cap and see how many of the following you can identify:

1. Lincoln, U.S. president.
2. Tschaikovsky, composer.
3. Bernhardt, actress.
4. Webster, lexicographer.
5. Whitney, inventor.
6. Fahrenheit, physicist.
7. Ericsson, inventor.
8. Aquinas, theologian.
9. Haydn, composer.
10. Newton, mathematician.

Answers: 1. Abraham; 2. Peter; 3. Sarah; 4. Noah; 5. Eli; 6. Gabriel; 7. John; 8. Thomas; 9. Joseph; 10. Isaac.

MINI-TEST

On October 17, 1492, Christopher Columbus noted in his diary a device used by Indians which subsequently became a standard sleeping facility for sailors. Can you name this device?

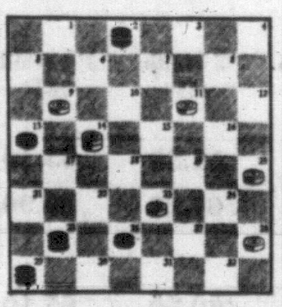
Answer: The hammock.

GIVE YOUR TONGUE A TEST

Repeat the following aloud as rapidly as possible:

Slim Jim grinned a grim grin that gave Sally Swift's sick sister Hester hysteria.

CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST



Keep in mind the adage that the longest way 'round is often the shortest way home. It can lead to a successful solution of the checker problem at right. White side, moving up the board, to move first and win in eight moves is the challenge. How's it done?

Long-time checker champ Millard Hopper gives his answer below, if needed.

P.S.: Black's king on square 2 plays a vital role in White's strategy.

Solution: White 11-7, Black 2-11, White 30-16, Black 11-20, White 28-24, Black 20-27-18, White 14-23-30-21, Black 13-17, White 21-14, Black 29-25, White 14-18, 25-30, 18-22, etc.

THEY'RE COLORFUL BUNCH

All the persons who played at a two-table card party the other day had colorful names and wore colorful dresses. Those present were four women and their four unmarried daughters. Of the dresses they wore, two were brown, two were blue, two were grey and two were rose.

Mrs. Grey wore brown, but Mrs. Brown didn't wear Grey.

Mrs. Rose wore blue, but Miss Blue didn't wear rose.

No woman wore a color corresponding to her name; no mother wore the same color as her daughter; and no two daughters wore the same color.

The question is, what was the color of Miss Rose's dress?

Solution: By a process of trial and error, it can be deduced that she wore grey.

CAN YOU DO IT?

At your next party exhibit a marble and a baseball and announce that you can place the marble on the floor without any obstruction in front of it but in such a position that no one can roll the ball and touch the agate. How is it done?

Answer: Place the marble in a corner of the room in the triangle where the baseboard meets. There will be no obstruction in front of it, but the baseball's size will prevent it from touching the marble.

SEVEN HIDDEN TREES

Names of seven common trees are to be found in the following sentences by putting together consecutive letters in two or more words. For example: the second of two concealed tree names in the first sentence is oak, as indicated in words "to a kiln." Another tree is concealed in the same sentence.

1. The damp lumber was sent to a kiln to be dried.
2. When the rain began, my wife wanted to cancel my arrangements.
3. You can expect a samaritan to help in every way.
4. The careless surveyor's map left much to be guessed.
5. Ned did not wish to dump his problem on his father.
6. Dad was not pleased to learn Will Owens would be his son-in-law.

How quickly can you name the seven trees?

Answers: 1. Oak, plum; 2. Elm; 3. Pine; 4. Maple; 5. Lemon; 6. Willow.

THUMB EXERCISE

Grasp the thumb of one hand with the other fingers, put the fist into the armpit of the same hand. Release the thumb. Now, remaining in the same position, attempt to grasp the thumb in the same manner again.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

The forthcoming visit of Queen Elizabeth II to participate in the Centennial celebrations will be honored by a special 5c stamp on June 30. The design, in purple and gold, features her portrait taken from a photo by Anthony Buckley of London, and also includes the official Centennial symbol.

Two plates will be used to print the 27,000,000 stamps which have been ordered.

The Queen first made her appearance on a Royal Visit stamp as far back as 1939—the year of the first visit of a reigning monarch to this country. As Elizabeth was then only a young girl she did not accompany her parents, but the 1c value of the set of three showed her portrait along with that of Princess Margaret.

The next Royal Visit took place in 1951, when, as Princess Elizabeth, she toured Canada with Prince Philip. The occasion was marked philatelically by a 4c stamp in voilet, showing their likenesses in two medallions.

•

In 1957 Elizabeth, now as Queen, paid her second visit to the Dominion, accompanied as before by Prince Philip; and once again a stamp honored the event, this time featuring their portraits by Karsh.

Another visit was made in 1959 at the time of the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway; and a very handsome stamp in lake-red featuring the Annigoni portrait was issued in her honor.

The last time Canada greeted Her Majesty was in the fall of 1964, and as before a special stamp commemorated the Anthony Buckley, printed in reddish purple, was featured. (This photo is not the same one that will be used for the forthcoming stamp, of course.)

•

Strange to say, the first Royal Visit series of 1939 resulted in Canada's greatest rarities. Although the stamps themselves are still very common, there are certain plate number combinations to be found on both the 1c and 3c values which are absolutely unique. There are no less than 11 plate blocks (known as the "impossibles") which catalogue $1,000 each. The original cost, at the P.O., was, of course, 4c and 12c each, respectively.

Merger May Be 'Dead Issue'

A Sidney alderman today charged the town council with "dragging its feet" on amalgamating Sidney and North Saanich — a move which would effect 6,000 people.

Ald. Wilkie Gardner said council has taken no action towards appointing an expert to conduct a study on amalgamation.

North Saanich proposed the study and is presently awaiting a reply from Sidney.

"I recommended a study to council but nothing was done about it," he said. "There was no vote taken. The matter was dropped."

Mr. Gardner supports amalgamation on the grounds it would avoid duplication of services.

Sidney businessmen seem to share Mr. Gardner's views that council is showing a lack of initiative.

Some people think the majority of council pay only lip-service to the proposal.

William Larnick, president of Sidney Chamber of Commerce, said he has requested a meeting with Mayor Arthur Freeman to discuss the amalgamation issue.

Walter M. Bloxham, a former vice-president of the chamber, said council's lack of initiative indicated it was not interested in bringing about the change.

"Members of council fear a loss of prestige if there is amalgamation," he said.

Mr. Boxham said it should be obvious to everyone that amalgamation was the answer to curbing costs of services and for carrying out improvements to the north end of the peninsula.

Don Ruffle, a well-known Sidney businessman, was concerned at the lack of action in promoting an amalgamation study.

Council doesn't seem to know what to do," he said. "It's hard to know what's going on."

Coun. Nellie Horth of North Saanich, is also concerned at the state of affairs. She fears if a study is not undertaken soon, amalgamation may become a "dead issue."

"There doesn't appear to be any move towards a sound and co-operative study," she said.

'No Pressure Used' On Sewer Proposal

Central Saanich acting reeve Charles Mollard today denied that land developers may have pressured council to institute a $500,000 sewage project for Brentwood.

The suggestion is made in a brief signed by 15 property-owners condemning Central Saanich's plans to dump treated sewage into Saanich Inlet.

Spokesman for the group is Tom Denny, owner of Daphne Island, which is situated about 500 feet from the proposed outlet of the sewage outfall.

A public hearing has been called by Pollution Control Board director C. J. Keenan to hear complaints against the dumping of treated sewage in the bay.

It will be held in the Brentwood Women's Institute Hall on Tuesday, at 10 a.m.

Coun. Mollard said there has never been pressure from business for a sewage system for Brentwood.

He said the proposed system is the result of a request from the Metropolitan Board of Health to clear up the pollution in the inlet caused by untreated sewage.

"In 1963 the board asked us to do something about it," he said.

In 1964, he pointed out, Central Saanich presented a sewerage plan to the pollution control board for approval. It was turned down because the scheme called for a single phase treatment plant.

"Present plans call for a secondary treatment plant which will result in no odors or pollution," he said.

Coun. Mollard agreed that the sewerage system would result in the expansion and development of Brentwood.

"But this is bound to follow the installation of the sewerage system," he said.

He noted that the proposed project is the first step towards installation for the whole municipality.

The Brentwood system would only serve a population of 4,000 people, he said.

Polling Day Set June 17 On Sewers

NORTH COWICHAN—Saturday, June 17, was confirmed by municipal council Friday as the date for a poll on the sewer bylaw for the south end.

Coun. Margaret Robertson, at a special meeting, said: "The need for passage of this bylaw is urgent.

"At present there is raw sewage running in ditches and septic tanks are connected to storm drains.

UN Chief Fears General War

Who Is Fleetest in Fleet? Only Breezes Know

Now is the hour and the largest fleet of yachts ever to compete in Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca contests have spread their wings. The first swarm of racing craft began their journey in light winds and haze, at 9:30 a.m. This Vancouver Island Helicopter view shows vessels hovering like gulls about HMCS Beacon Hill, their official guardian. This week-end culminates a year of tension for the 120 skippers. Time limit is 50 hours. Then the tension builds again for next year's Swiftsure over the same 136-mile course. City of Victoria Trophy is top prize. (Times photo by Strickland.)

RACE STARTS SLOWLY

By TERRY IZZARD

It could go down in history as "THE RACE THAT NEVER WAS."

The 26th annual Swiftsure classic will go down in history anyway because it got off to such a slow start.

For the first time since 1930, boats sailed over the starting line with spinnakers set to catch every ounce of wind. They barely billowed.

And 136 miles stretched ahead.

Last year several yachts were damaged by heavy winds. The 1967 start lacked this peril.

Winds were east to southeast at a mere four to five miles an hour.

To make matters worse, one of the heaviest flood tides this year greeted the record number of boats shortly after noon.

Unless the wind strengthens, the boats will have to sit out the worst of the tide for up to eight hours at William Head or Pedder Bay.

●

If the worst comes to the worst—and it's never happened to date—the winner may never make it in the 50-hour time limit.

In this case the first boat to the turning point 68 miles out would be declared the winner.

In the case of the shorter Juan de Fuca race, it would be the first boat to Clallam Bay, in Washington, 38 miles away.

When the starter's gun boomed from the decks of the Beacon Hill, off Brotchie Ledge at 9:30, the 49-foot sloop Mary Bower—first over the finish line last year—nipped into the lead.

Hot on her heels was the 47-foot sloop Hussy skippered by R. Page of Seattle, with the 26-foot sloop Moea of West Vancouver in third place.

At press time the Mary Bower, skippered by John Long of Vancouver, was still in first place.

McGUGAN
. . . second in year

LIQUOR PRICES TAKE JUMP —SO DOES McGUGAN SALARY

The provincial cabinet Friday approved a completely new liquor price list which will add about a dime on the average to a bottle of spirits or wine.

The new list goes into effect June 1 and will replace thousands of printed copies of a consolidation issued to LCB stores in April.

The cabinet also raised LCB chairman Col. Donald McGugan's salary to $19,500 by giving him his second $1,000 increase within a year.

The price increases are scattershot rather than uniform, with no apparent reasons for increases of from five to 55 cents, decreases in a very few lines of up to 10 cents and no change in a minority of the 1,500 items on the list.

On the whole, rye whisky has gone up about 15 cents a bottle but there are wide variations among individual brands. Rums went up a nickel a bottle in the majority of cases as did gins.

Many imported Scotch lines escaped increases—they were boosted heavily during the past year—but a few were raised 10 cents.

Canadian wines showed numerous increases although a Port Moody winery's products were almost untouched while those of an Okanagan winery were raised in most lines, ranging from five cents for the pints to 25 cents for the gallon sizes.

Some imported wines were raised from five to 40 cents but many were unchanged. Imported beer and ale was untouched and there were no changes in Canadian brews.

Aldous Issues Denial Ferry Buy Bad Deal

B.C. Ferry Authority manager M. F. Aldous today denied a suggestion the crown corporation was "slickered" in purchasing a second-hand ship in Quebec.

Mr. Aldous denied reports that it is paying more than the ferry cost five years ago, when it was sold at a second-hand price.

And he denied it was sold by its last owners becuse it proved too costly to operate.

CONTRADICTION

"That isn't so," said Mr. Aldous in replying to a Canadian Press report quoting a spokesman for North-South Company, the last owners.

The company spokesman said the ship cost the company $1.2 million five years ago when acquired from a Lake Michigan service. Now it has been sold to the B.C. ferry authority for $1.69 million.

The company spokesman also stated in Montreal, according to the CP report, the ferry had been sold because operation of the vessel had proven too expensive.

He said the expense was involved in the annual replacement of rivets which was necessary after operation in salt water between Rimouski and Baie Comeau for five years.

"That also isn't factual," said Mr. Aldous. He said the ferry was sold because it was too large for winter traffic on the former service.

CALLED SCANDAL

The Canadian Press report also stated that Maurice Tessier, Liberal member of the Quebec Legislature for Rimouski, charged the sale of the ferry was a scandal.

Mr. Tessier said the ship had been paid for with public funds and he criticized the Quebec government for letting North-South Company pocket the $1.69 million received from B.C.

Mr. Tessier, mayor of Rimouski, and a former secretary-treasurer of the North-South firm, said the law required the government to name an administrator to take charge of the ferry company when it entered Quebec public service.

Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson said his government could not have intervened because the law did not apply.

The North-South Company spokesman said the ferry purchase had been paid for out of federal subsidies of $300,000 paid annually. And since 1962 the provincial government had paid $2000,000 toward the original cost.

Mr. Aldous said he could not comment at length but after reading the CP account, he discounted the whole story. He said none of the details listed were in accord with the information the B.C. negotiators had received.

Last May 5, Premier Bennett said the ferry, presently named the Pere Nouvel, was worth $5 to $6 million.

"This was a tremendous bargain," he said. "This is a business government. Anytime we can get a value like this, we will take it. We are the trustees of the peoples' money and it is our responsibility to make the best possible deal."

Exchange Gunfire

SEOUL (AP)—South Korean naval vessels exchanged fire with North Korean shore batteries and patrol craft for 20 minutes today off Korea's west coast, the South Korean navy said. The South Korean side claimed it suffered no casualties.

4 Africans Killed

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesian government security men shot and killed four Negroes in a gunfight about 140 miles west of here Friday night, the government announced today. It said one of the government men was wounded.

War Tempo Up Across Viet In U.S. Drive

SAIGON (AP)—The U.S. command reported powerful new assaults on North Vietnamese troops today in the northern border provinces of South Vietnam. American jets smashed again at North Vietnam's MiG airfields and a power plant inside Haiphong.

The raids cost the United States one navy Skyhawk jet Friday, the 561st plane downed over North Vietnam. Returning pilots said one surface-to-air missiles exploded 2,500 feet over the Kua Kam River and showered debris on a merchant ship moored in Haiphong. The nationality of the ship was not known.

Both on the ground and in the air, the war appeared to be mounting in tempo.

U.S. marines and North Vietnamese soldiers were locked in a fierce fight for Hill 117 just inside the demilitarized zone.

Heavy fighting was reported in the three northernmost provinces of South Vietnam.

The South Vietnamese sent more than 1,000 soldiers, supported by armored vehicles, on a sweep today just outside the ancient city of Hue, capital of Thua Thien province.

Within three miles, the South Vietnamese hit about 500 Viet Cong guerrillas and fought a three-hour battle, with air and artillery support. Sixty guerrillas were reported killed.

Breathing Spell Asked by Thant

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—UN Secretary-General U Thant reported to the Security Council today that he feared a clash between Israel and Egypt over Israeli shipping through the Strait of Tiran would "inevitably set off a general conflict" in the Middle East.

THANT
. . . reports to council

He gave that estimate in a six-page report to the 15-country council, of which Canada is a member.

The report followed his talk with President Nasser in Cairo early this week.

Thant called for "a breathing spell which will allow tension to subside from its present explosive level." He urged all parties to exercise restraint to let the Security Council deal with the underlying causes of the situation.

The secretary-general said that in his talk with Nasser Wednesday night, Nasser repeated the Egyptian position "substantially as set forth" in his Monday night speech, in which Nasser announced a blockade of Israeli shipping through the Strait of Tiran connecting with the Gulf of Aqaba and the Israeli port of Elath.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The United Arab Republic today requested an urgent meeting of the security council on the Middle East. It did not specify when the council should meet.

COULD MEAN WAR

Thant told the council Israel had declared that it would regard the closing of the straits to Israel ships as a casus belli, or cause for war.

"The decision of the government of the United Arab Republic to restrict shipping in the Strait of Tiran, of which I learned while en route to Cairo, has created a new situation . . ., he said.

"While in Cairo, I called to the attention of the United Arab Republic the dangerous consequences which could ensue from restricting innocent passage of ships in the Strait of Tiran.

"I expressed my deep concern

'We Will Destroy Israel'

CAIRO (CP) — Tension in the Middle East was at the crisis point again today after a declaration by President Gamal Abdel Nasser that Egypt will wage a war of annihilation against Israel if fighting breaks out.

Nasser said there would be a full-scale battle if Israel made any aggressive move against Syria or Egypt.

"Our aim will be to destroy Israel . . . If we entered into battle, we would be confident of victory," he said in a speech broadcast throughout the Middle East by Radio Cairo.

Israeli foreign ministry officials said in Jerusalem Friday night that the Gulf of Aqaba barred by Egypt to vessels carrying strategic supplies to Israel, must be reopened and that the time for this is running out.

They said Israel is not delivering an ultimatum or setting a time limit, but time is crucial in the matter.

Nasser's close friend, editor Mohammed Hassen Haykal, wrote in his Cairo newspaper Al Ahram Friday that war with Israel is inevitable.

Heykal said Israel is bound to start fighting because it is vital to it that ships be able to pass through the gulf.

Nasser said he knows his blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba could lead to war with Israel and, if war does come, the

7 Israelis Wounded

BEERSHEBA, Israel (UPI)—An official communique said tonight an Israeli halftrack truck was blown up by an Egyptian anti-vehicle mine on the southern Gaza Strip border.

Seven or eight Israeli soldiers were believed wounded in the incident which the military communique said occurred at 11:15 a.m.

According to the communique, the explosion occurred near Kere-Shalom, a settlement on the southern Gaza Strip border opposite Rafa.

It was the first incident in the Gaza Strip reported by Israel since evacuation more than a week ago by UN emergency forces touched off the crisis.

DIPLOMATS DOUBT NARROW STRAIT MINED

War of Nerves: Let Other Side Guess

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. experts say Egyptian mines in the narrow opening to the Gulf of Aqaba could be used selectively against Israeli ships while permitting routine passage of other vessels.

Officials who have studied the history and technique of naval blockades give that assessment amid a multitude of rumors here over whether Egypt has mined the Strait of Tiran, as claimed by a Cairo newspaper.

U.S. officials said they don't know whether the strait has been mined. Egyptian diplomats privately expressed their doubts, but some Israeli diplomats claimed to have intelligence reports confirming partial mining of the strait.

Egyptian diplomats decline to confirm or deny the reported mining.

This, it is acknowledged, is part of the war of nerves: Let the other side guess. The same tactic was used by both Egyptians and Israelis several years ago when the question came up as to whether the two were secretly making nuclear weapons.

Privately, Egyptian diplomats said they doubt mines were placed in the strait.

There is no need for them, they said, because it would be easy to control the narrow, 300-yard-wide navigable passage by deploying a few warships or with a few guns mounted on the plateau of Ras Nasrani, a hilly peninsula dominating the mouth of the strait.

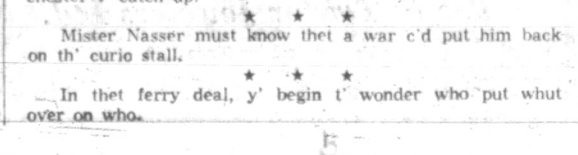
Experts say there are two ways of using mines to achieve a selective blockade. One is to lay mines according to a predetermined pattern with only the country that placed them knowing the zigzag route through the minefield. The same country then would provide pilots to guide any vessel that received permission to pass through.

Such a minefield could easily be deployed in the Red Sea at the mouth of the strait, but not in the narrow strait.

The other method would be to use mines that can be set off electrically from some observation point on the mainland.

Egypt is understood to have place artillery on Ras Nasranj when its troops moved in after the departure of the United Nations force earlier this week.

They can be trained on the navigation lane about 1,000 yards from the shore.



Some o' them Swiftsure boats must be waitin' fer Chichester t' catch up.

The Long-Term Policy

IN A SPEECH AT WHITEhorse, Mr. Jack Davis, the Liberal member of parliament for Coast-Capilano, reviewed Canada's enviable position as a possessor of natural resources and came out with some striking advice as to how we should develop and sell these great assets. His words make a lot of sense to anyone concerned about the future of our country and its emergence as one of the outstanding producers of the world.

Mr. Davis rightly feels, for instance, that among our trade goals two considerations should be kept in mind. One, in selling raw materials we should always charge as much as the traffic will bear; and secondly, that the ultimate objective of our trading policy should be to ensure that Canadian processing is developed to its maximum so that we export finished products wherever possible, rather than raw materials for the plants and workers of other countries.

These concepts are not advanced in an isolationist sense: they should not be followed except in so far as they contribute to the general Canadian good—and this is to be achieved through as wide and diversified a trade as possible with the countries of the world. One facet of the policy would be that we do not, as a nation, remain merely a source of raw materials for United States industry, but press forward as a manufacturing power in our own right.

That is not an easy assignment for a country lying in the shadow of the American industrial and commercial colossus. But we have certain strengths which make it a feasible national long-term policy. We cannot do otherwise, in fact, if we are to reach eventual maturity as a nation.

Mr. Davis mentions such comparisons as that, with only one half of one per cent of the world's population, Canada controls six per cent of the non-ferrous metals in use and contains at least 17 per cent of mankind's softwood resources.

With development of the Alberta tar sands—a recently solved problem—this country could claim a quarter of the world's available oil resources; we have natural gas and coal in great abundance, and the world's largest reserves of uranium.

With this and other backing, Mr. Davis urges that "certainly we must deal, and deal more freely, with the United States. But we must go all out after markets for more highly processed goods in other countries as well."

"Continentalism," he adds, "has its advantages. But narrow continentalism is like narrow nationalism . . . Canadians must paint their picture of our nation's future on the broadest possible canvas if they are to prosper as they should."

A few basic principles are offered toward this end. We must assess our own requirements for decades to come, rather than on any shorter basis. We should export only those resources which are surplus to Canada's ultimate needs—the treasure house of riches is not to be drained as quickly as possible merely for short-term gain. The export selling price of our resources should cover not only cost of supply but should be equated to alternative sources, and there should be no bargain-basement approach to sales. Finally, the export flow of raw materials should be viewed as a movement which ultimately will develop into a trade in processed goods.

These will not be easy principles to apply in all cases. Obviously our export trade must be governed by world prices and sometimes special considerations, and we cannot sit on our treasure trove demanding impossible conditions of sale. But equally, we are not obliged to shovel out our natural wealth as quickly as possible and on a basis of major advantage for others.

The freer the trade situation and the more competition for our goods, the better. And the corollary of this, of course, is that we must provide equally open trading facilities for foreign producers. A step forward in this direction has been made in the Kennedy Round, but there is still a long way to go.

Nuremburg and Vietnam

THE COURT MARTIAL OF AN American army doctor, Captain Howard B. Levy, for refusing to give medical training to Special Forces first aid men destined for Vietnam has taken several odd turns. For one thing his defence counsel, Mr. Charles Morgan of the American Civil Liberties Union, has invoked the spirit of the Nuremburg war crimes trials at which the principle was established that the Nazi leaders in the dock could not claim immunity for their actions simply because they were obeying orders. As Mr. Morgan put it, since Nuremburg "all people are now responsible for their acts."

Countering this defence, Captain R. M. Shusterman, chief counsel for the army, maintained that "a man who would rather not kill can be made to kill regardless of his personal beliefs. The accused's personal ethics, his personal beliefs, would have no effect on an otherwise lawful order."

Captain Levy has admitted that he refused to train the Special Forces first aid men because they carried weapons into battle and were not recognized under the Geneva Convention as Red Cross personnel, and because of a conviction that the war was wrong. His counsel has called as witnesses soldiers who have been in Vietnam and elicited from them testimony which could be interpreted as supporting the charge that American troops have committed atrocities — either directly, or indirectly through Vietnamese under their control.

Without hesitation, the military court seems to have welcomed this testimony and the prosecutor observed: "That's what this trial is all about—Nuremburg. I expect it will come up several times more." He argued that "The military society, with its recognized, demonstrated need for uniformity and discipline is not unfamiliar with the notion that not even truth can be used to bring about a palpable injury to good order and discipline."

Finally, on Thursday the trial officer of the court, Colonel Earl V. Brown, ruled that the defence had failed to make a prima facie case of American war crimes in Vietnam.

But in thus ruling out this aspect of the defence so far as guilt or innocence of the accused is concerned, Colonel Brown added that it could be taken into account in mitigation of sentence. The Nuremburg trials door was opened up by the army only so it could be slammed shut again, at least so far as Vietnam is concerned. Individual conscience, the court has ruled, cannot be the criterion of whether or not an American citizen will serve as he is directed by the government.

Breath of Life

A SPOKESMAN FOR THE ST. John Ambulance Victoria branch points out that some of the 186 deaths from drowning in British Columbia last year might have been avoided if someone had been able to apply artificial respiration.

The comment is timely. In the days ahead thousands of our people will be seeking recreation in or on the water. Accidents will occur, some of them fatal. Their number might be reduced, however, if citizens accept the branch's offer of instruction in methods of resuscitation—instruction that is given without charge in lectures by the St. John experts.

Correction

I think you should correct the error in your editorial "The nose count in Alberta" when you state "the NDP which dropped almost half of its 1963 popular vote, lost its single provincial member."

In actual fact the NDP more than doubled its popular vote from 38,133 in 1963 to 77,525 in 1967 although it did lose the Pincher Creek seat. It seems a blot on our system that a party which procures 16 per cent of the popular vote has no voice in the Provincial Legislature whereas the Liberals with only 11 per cent of the popular vote retained three seats in the Legislature. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 2530 Lansdowne.

(Editor's note: The error Mr. Wrixon has pointed out in the editorial has been noted by other subscribers. An inadvertent transposition of the popular vote percentages, which actually showed 16 per cent in 1967 and 9 per cent in 1963, resulted in a misstatement of the NDP's position.

LSD Regrets

A thought for those who may contemplate trying LSD.

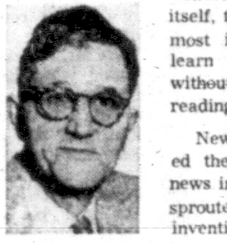
A considerable number of healthy people who have tried it must seriously regret having done so — if they have sufficient wits left to regret anything.

On the other hand we have yet to hear of healthy people who seriously regret NOT having tried it. — R. Morris Wilson, 235 Cook.

MIRACLE OF THE SEED

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Reliability in a Doubtful Contemporary World



Hutchison

THE old gardener was out today, in a chilly coastal spring, to plant his forty-fifth and possibly his last vegetable garden. His doctor (who never sowed a seed and cultivated only a golf course with inferior tools like mashies and putters) had recommended the gentle exercise of gardening but the gardener paid no attention to this advice. He was not planting for exercise. He was not planting for reasons of economy, either, to obtain cheap food. He was not even planting for reasons of pleasure exactly. He was planting for other reasons that no doctor, only a philosopher, or a child, would be likely to understand.

What interested him as he crouched over the damp earth with aching back was the seed in his numb fingers. The seed interested him because it was one of the few reliable things left in the contemporary world. All the reformers of the Great Society, he reflected, have been unable to change the seed. It alone defied the general revolution and stubbornly remained itself, sprouting infallibly into life and growth by its own changeless methods. This he found reassuring and, at his age, he needed all the reasurance he could get.

For about $5 he had purchased a lot of reassurance, enough to plant half an acre. It now cost twice as much as in his early days but was still the best bargain on the market, each package holding ten cents worth of mystery beyond price. At the cost of a bottle of whisky, soon consumed, he would reap enough food to nourish his household for an entire year.

That was the least part of the bargain. With a handful of seeds he had purchased admission to a spectacle more astounding than Expo 67, to the greatest wonder in creation, to the act of creation itself, the genuine article. From seed the most ignorant man like himself could learn the only things worth knowing without turning on the television or reading the newspaper.

Newspapers, of course, never reported these vital matters. There was no news in the sprouting of seeds. They had sprouted regularly aeons before the invention of printing and would sprout long after the last newspaper came off the press recording, perhaps, the sudden end of man's civilization.

No news in seeds and yet the most casehardened reporter, he guessed, would have the biggest scoop of all time to write if, in some future spring, the seeds refused to sprout. The black headlines were easily imagined — Nature Goes on Strike. Mankind to Starve within a Week.

Stuff of Life

Century after century all men and other animals lived on the ability of a dry, inert globule to surge instantly into life at the touch of earth and moisture and they could live on nothing else. Yet the public seldom gave a thought to this one essential business while concentrating its attention on such minor concerns as war and politics, careless of the unending, decisive war inside the soil, the ruthless struggle, the realpolitik of survival.

Men debated their superficial affairs with pathetic anxiety, though there would be nothing at all to debate if the seed failed for a single season. In Canada especially they debated their national identity but the seed had solved that problem in the first dawn of life. A Canadian might become an American, for example, but no radish seed ever turned into a lettuce, no pumpkin ever became a cabbage since the first living cell first appeared on the planet. Only among men was there any question of identity.

Worth the Trouble

It seemed odd to the old gardener that men took so little interest in seeds when every man began as a seed himself, germinating and taking his awkward, ugly shape like the humblest vegetable. Admittedly, however, there was a difference between a human and vegetable seed more profound than shape and this difference in itself made gardening worth all the time and trouble.

A radish remained a radish through countless generations, no matter how you cultivated, fertilized and pampered it; whereas the most innocent human baby might turn into a monster like Hitler or Stalin, who probably were delightful in infancy. The healthy, care-free boy became a broken old gardener at last.

With human seed you never knew what might happen, for better or worse, but with any vegatable seed you always knew precisely what to expect. You could bet all your savings on the unvarying cycle of the radish but no such bet could be safely placed even on your own son or daughter, no matter how well you fed, housed and educated them.

So the gardener held the lifeless-looking globules in his fingers for a moment and sprinkled them slowly on the earth, knowing that each contained its sure explosion of life which, in combination with all the other seeds now sprouting across the northern hemisphere, was more powerful than the hydrogen bomb, man's explosion of death.

Evidently man preferred his poor parody of nature since he spent so much work and money on it. He sought the meaning of things in empty space when he could find the answer much more clearly in a square foot of garden if he looked closely enough. Doubtless he would shortly alight on the barren moon before he had truly explored the rich, teeming substance under his feet. He could invent almost anything and might carry himself past the remote stars but with all his cunning he had never made even the most primitive sort of seed.

Still Hope

Well, the gardener hoped he never would. For if he did, if seeds ever came out of the laboratory, then the fun of gardening would be finished in question of a purposeful, intelligent universe would be answered in the negative. So long as seeds alone could make other seeds there was still some hope of a positive answer.

Anyway, the old gardener had found a cheap, simple way to survey the whole complex process reduced, for quick reading and plain demonstration, to a sphere no larger than a pin's head but more extraordinary than all human achievements — a speck of immortality for ten cents and a little digging. Pleasantly exhausted at the day's end, he allowed himself a discreet drop of alcohol, apparently a man-made product but, in fact, like all valuable things, only the distillation of seeds.

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

Frye

HISTORIANS are likely to debate for a very long time the wisdom of U Thant's decision to acquiesce when UAR President Nasser ordered UNEF, the UN peace army, out of Egypt. Could not Thant have refused? Or at least, dragged his heels? Did not the interests of world peace override the technicalities of international law? If the Secretary-General did not feel he could hold out against Nasser alone, could he not have tossed the matter into the lap of the General Assembly or Security Council, and let the membership decide?

These and related questions are already being debated intensely here. Every alarming news bulletin from the Mideast gives new impetus to the criticism.

Answers offered by Thant's aides boil down to this: the UN is not a world government. It must, and does, respect the sovereignty of member states.

Excepting Rhodesia

With the exception of Rhodesia, where economic force is being applied, the UN has never sought to impose its will on any political entity more significant than the Congolese province of Katanga — and Katanga was not recognized as a sovereignty by anyone. Korea was a special case in which the United States, with UN approval, repelled an aggression.

The UN does not have even theoretical power to undertake an enforcement action, that is, to require compliance from a sovereign state, unless that state goes to war or otherwise threatens the peace. Nasser was threatening Israel. But he was doing so, ostensibly at least, in an effort to deter an Israeli attack on Syria.

Whether in such circumstances he could legally have been adjudged an aggressor, and subjected to enforcement action, is highly controversial.

From a practical point of view, it is obvious he could not have been put on the carpet by the Security Council. The Soviet Union would certainly have vetoed such a finding.

The veto-free General Assembly might theoretically have decided to defy Nasser and order UNEF to stay on. But given the political balance in the Assembly, this is extremely doubtful. The most it would have been likely to have done would have been to appeal to Nasser for a reprieve.

This he would clearly have refused. Egyptian artillery was already lobbing shells near UNEF observation posts. Tank columns had taken positions between UNEF and the frontier.

The only way UNEF could have held its ground would have been for it to have gone to war with the U.A.R. — and in such an event, it would have been crushed in hours, if not minutes. UNEF was an armed observer corps, not a fighting army.

Quite apart from the impracticality of defying Nasser, Thant's aides argue, it would have been unwise to do so.

UNEF was admitted onto Egyptian soil with Egypt's consent. The late Dag Hammarksjold never was able to make any substantial inroads into the proposition that it could stay there only so long as the consent continued. If, having been told to get out, UNEF had refused, the UN could have been accused of double-dealing.

The next time a UN force was needed in some trouble spot, it might have been very hard indeed to get the consent of the prospective host state.

The case for Thant's decision to pull out is thus, in a nutshell, that it would have been at once unconstitutional, under the UN Charter, and impractical, politically and militarily, to do anything else.

This argument does not fully come to grips with another contention of Thant's critics, namely that he could have dragged his heels and played for time.

One method of stalling might have been to refer the eviction order to the General Assembly, which had originally created UNEF. The Assembly could then have debated what to do.

Might Have Succeeded

The eventual outcome might not have been very different from the one Thant produced. But there is an outside chance that the Assembly, by stalling and pressure, might have succeeded in changing Nasser's mind.

Nasser may secretly have wanted his arm twisted, it is argued — may have wanted to benefit politically from the appearance of firmness against Israel, but not run the risks of an actual confrontation with her.

No one can know whether this was, in fact, the case. Not a few western diplomats here, notably Americans and Canadians, wish fervently that Thant had been willing to try. The real reason why he did not, it is suspected, is that reference of the crisis to the General Assembly would have flown in the face of Soviet convictions that the Assembly is legally incompetent in the peace-keeping field.

This is not considered a good reason. It may have helped preserve Thant's acceptability as an East-West go-between. But it destroyed whatever hope there may have been of maintaining a significant UN presence on the Egyptian-Israeli armistice line. And headlines in subsequent days have reported the consequences.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

Go out to Beaver Lake and ramble along some of the still unspoiled trails leading towards Elk Lake.

By the lake trail the cattails are putting forth new sword-like leaves and the heads of the flowers are showing a bulge in the sheath.

There you will be able to find several kinds of bullrushes. Some are growing along the marshy shoreline, others in the shallow water. Here too you will see the yellow pond lily with its large floating heart-shaped leaves.

Growing here you can find the brooklime, with its dainty blue flowers. Look at the leaves and you will see how they vary on the same stem. This plant belongs to the same family as the forget-me-not in your garden.

The ox-eye daisy will soon show a mass of white blooms that will dominate the many meadows there.

These meadows are well worthwhile seeing. Most of them are surrounded by fringes of shrubs and trees. As the wind blows, the grasses wave like summer waves on the seashore.

Work your way up towards the higher ridge. Along the way there are several large clumps of thimbleberry with the maple-like leaf and showy white blooms.

Here the meadow broadens out and the pastoral scene is one that makes the Saanich peninsula so fascinating and beautiful.

As you work your way back to the parking lot you pass through some fine conifers. Mingled with them are many shrubs. Outstanding now is the Saskatoon with its saw-toothed upper leaf edge and clusters of white blossoms.

It is to be hoped that this park will, in most of its area, be left in its natural state, that its beauty can be seen by all.

Victoria Daily Times
VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, MAY 27, 1967—PAGE 19

Arthur Mayse

Yesterday evening, I looked in on some young men who have gone about as far as anyone can go toward perfecting wingless flight. They are members of the gymnastic team that is wowing Canadian Armed Forces Tattoo audiences with their vaulting and trampoline act; and if you have the bad luck to miss their performance, you may catch it later on the Ed Sullivan show.

The four I met at the Kindersley Street home of Petty Officer and Mrs. Louis Delesalle were relaxing in civvies. Out on the blacktop, under the spotlights, they wear two-way stretch gymnasts' uniforms of German manufacture, in colors that run through the spectrum and considerably beyond.

Also, though their flights appear to be effortless, they are the result of a rigorous training program that began last October and was eased only when they took to the road five months later.

"Buck's Bandits," they and the 72 other volunteers of the troupe call themselves, taking their name from Flight-Lieutenant William Buck, chief coordinator of a scene six to eight minutes long which is paced by a song from the Mary Poppins movie.

They have had their casualties, some resulting from mid-air collisions when a luckless vaulter missed the split-second timing that fills the air with soaring bodies.

But so intense is their enthusiasm that more than one team member has wept when he learned that he couldn't continue with the act.

★

The gymnastic display is tri-service; it just happens that the men taking it easy on Naden bandsman Delesalle's back lawn belong to the RCAF.

Three—crew chief Sgt. Les White, Cpl. Fred Wooster and LAC Dave Coffin are from Ontario. LAC Bruce Sayers, whose specialty is a fantastic somersault made at the height of a 15-foot leap, comes from Red Deer, Alberta.

From them, I got a participant's picture of the display that has engaged Mr. Sullivan's attention.

They feel the cold at this their first outdoor stand, especially when it stiffens their thin landing mats. Wind is also their enemy, since it can affect their balance.

They are not pampered prima donnas; they pack, set up and take down equipment, and have doubled in eight other Tattoo scenes.

The little ramp the vaulters take off from is a trampolet; and until they commenced training at Camp Borden, 60 per cent of the volunteers had never set eyes on either this miniature version of the bouncy trampoline, or the six-foot box horse over which they swoop in flight.

I asked about those color-coded costumes, and got a grin.

"When we first set out, we thought, 'Oh, brother, is this going to look sick!' Not now, though: we realize how much they add to the scene."

And anything that will improve the scene is seized on. They will work for hours to perfect a sequence, and much of their discipline is administered by the men themselves.

★

By this time, the evening was wearing on. It would soon be time to leave for the Tattoo with PO Delesalle—the bearded navy musician who handles his cymbals with such authority that he has been know to turn a set inside out.

On our way around front, the gymnasts spoke of Victoria in superlatives. "They like this city, and hope some day to return.

But a Vancouver engagement is waiting, and with that over, the Tattoo will load itself on board 135 transport aircraft for a flight to Montreal and Expo.

And later, when October brings an end to the Canadian tour?

England and the Continent, perhaps; but nobody knows for sure.

Meanwhile, tonight, in the capital of a province that bestowed the first sunshine of their trip, the young men in the many-colored garb take to the air in their wind-up showing.

If you're there, give them the hand they deserve.

DESK-BOUND artilleryman, Col. G. P. Marriott still manages to get a bang out of life in his post as Tattoo commander—several bangs. In fact, it's unlikely any gunnery officer in Canada will fire as many barrages as his command during the centennial year.

Talent Is Ammunition For Artillery Colonel

By TED GASKELL

Canadian Armed Forces Centennial Tattoo is a blaze of glory that started as a glimmer three years ago.

SOLDIER WOUNDED AT TATTOO

Powder in a musket exploded prematurely and sent a member of the Royal 22nd Regiment to hospital from the Centennial Tattoo Friday night.

The accident occurred in the opening scene when soldiers load their flintlock muskets, pouring powder in. The powder exploded and blew upwards driving powder grains into the face of a soldier whose name was not released.

He will be in hospital for a few days and will rejoin the Tattoo in Vancouver early next week.

That was when the planners first met to organize the show — really three shows — as the armed forces' contribution to the Centennial.

It's not the only Centennial participation, said Col. G. P Marriott, Tattoo commander. A staff division has been set up under Brigadier Arnold Peck whose job it is to coordinate naval shows, air force fly pasts; appearances at Expo and in provincial celebrations.

Planning started in 1964, he said, with detailed research into the Tattoo and its organization.

A year ago units were selected and given details of the scenes and instructions for rehearsal.

IDENTICAL SHOWS

Last February 800 men and women concentrated at Camp Picton to produce two identical shows known as Red and Blue. Each had 350 players. In March this year they went on the road playing in arenas all across Canada.

While the shows were on the road another 800 men gathered in Victoria to rehearse the tattoo and when the "little" shows ended, the three groups teamed up.

Victoria's performance was the first big outdoor show.

Col. Marriott is pleased with the show's success.

"People say there's nothing like it anywhere, not even in the United Kindgom."

It's difficult to assess the cost.

MULTI-MILLION

"All I can say is that it's a multi-million dollar show."

The gate won't approach expenses: equipment, retraining of technicians to operate lighting and sound equipment, plus professional fees paid for expert assistance.

It was hard work, particularly in Victoria, where practice with lighting couldn't start until 9:30 p.m.

"It's the most exciting thing I've had to do in my life," said Col. Marriott of his job. "It's hard work but I've loved it."

The Tattoo's production was done on military lines, but, "sometimes we came across problems which called for the book to be thrown away, and we threw it."

Big problem was the late arrival of props, costumes and other items.

"This meant we couldn't keep to the rehearsal schedule and we found ourselves doing more last minute work."

Col Marriott has a headquarters staff of 25 of all service branches to administer the show. It puts 1,100 to 1,200 "on stage" with four or five hundred behind the scenes.

Headquarters are situated at Naden where many of the personnel are housed.

From Victoria the show goes to Empire Stadium, Vancouver, then to Expo.

Then it will be broken down into two smaller units to play Quebec City and Niagara Falls in old Fort George. The troops get three weeks leave, then re-assemble to play Ottawa, the CNE in Toronto, and in Hamilton.

One trained group will be reconstituted to play Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, and four cities in Quebec before ending the tour Oct. 14.

Carpenter Jailed 7 Years For Pizza Parlor Slaying

Shows No Emotion But Friends Weep

Orlando Trozzo, 46-year-old carpenter, was sentenced to seven years imprisonment in B.C. Assize Court early today for the slaying of 18-year-old Mario Fata.

After five hours' deliberation, the 12-man jury returned a verdict of guilty of manslaughter. Trozzo was originally charged with capital murder.

THANKS FRIENDS

Mr. Justice P. D. Seaton then sentenced Trozzo to seven years.

Trozzo turned to the public benches, which were filled with men and women of Victoria's Italian community, and said:

"Thank you all very much."

He also thanked his defence counsel, Lloyd McKenzie, QC, and Kenneth Murphy. Crown prosecutor Louis Lindholm was assisted by Robert C. Simson.

Trozzo kissed his daughter, his wife and some friends as he was led from the courtroom by two RCMP officers.

He could serve as little as two years of the sentence under Canada's parole system.

WOMEN WEPT

Mr. McKenzie described Trozzo to the jury as "a pathetic little man, rather like Charlie Chaplin."

Trozzo showed no emotion in the dock but several women in the public benches wept openly.

A number of witnesses described him as an honest, hard-working man, a good friend and a good neighbor.

"Everyone thinks of him as a really great guy," said dark-haired Mrs. Norman Pimlott, a character witness called by Mr. McKenzie.

Johann Amering said he had known Trozzo for some years and had always found him very reliable.

"Would you say he was a hot-tempered person?" asked crown prosecutor Lindholm.

"No, I wouldn't," Mr. Amering replied.

Earlier in the trial, Dr. J. C. Thomas of Vancouver said Trozzo was in a prisoner-of-war camp from 1943 until the end of the war in Europe.

"At that time he weighed only 81 pounds," the doctor said.

"He received a big reception from the citizens of his home town in Italy. But it was almost two years before he could face the people of his community because of the depressed state of his mind."

ASKED DIRECTION

After hearing addresses from counsel, the jury retired at 5:30 p.m. and took a 1½-hour supper recess at 7 p.m.

At 9 p.m. the jury asked Mr. Justice Seaton to direct them on the law defining capital murder, non-capital murder, and manslaughter.

Eric Wilkinson, Victoria county sheriff, ordered coffee for the jury at 11:30 p.m. At 12:05 a.m. the 12 jurymen filed back to deliver their verdict.

Earlier in the trial Trozzo said he didn't remember firing the shot which killed Mario Fata.

"I wanted to scare him into paying me," Trozzo said. "I said: 'Mario, I don't want to hurt your. I don't want to do you any harm.'"

Trozzo said Mario simply laughed at him and said: "I don't owe you any money."

ARGUMENT

Trozzo claimed that Fata owed him about $3,000 for construction work on his pizza establishment. He said he waited in his car outside the pizza restaurant.

A car drove up and Fata got out. He went into the restaurant and came out with a pizza pie which he seemed about to deliver.

It was then that the argument over the debt took place.

Young Driver Sent to Jail

A young driver caught for the second time driving while his licence was under suspension was jailed for two months today.

John Charles Andrew, 20, of 3184 Millgrove, pleaded guilty and also admitted to being a minor driving without car insurance.

He was stopped by police Friday night after his car was spotted driving erratically on Yates Street.

Andrew was fined $10 on the second charge.

Uvic Names Review Committee

Four University of Victoria professors have been appointed to a committee to investigate the institution's contract reviewing procedures.

The committee was proposed by university president Dr. Malcolm Taylor as a result of student and faculty unrest after the non-renewal of the contracts of Professors Charles Tarlton, Jerry Schwartz and Alan MacKenzie this spring.

Professors appointed are Dr. Harry Scargill, chairman of the school of graduate studies; Dr. Roy Watson, chairman of the department of sociology; Dr. John McInerney, an assistant professor of biology, and Gerald Auchinachie, an instructor in the department of English.

Dr. Taylor, who will act as chairman, said the committee will review terms and conditions of employment as well as procedures for recommending renewal or non-renewal of contracts.

After the committee reports, negotiations aimed at producing mutually acceptable procedures will take place between the university and the faculty association.

Dr. Taylor said he hopes the new procedures will be approved by mid-September.

Defence Chief Here Next Week On Inspection

General J. V. Allard, chief of defence staff for the Canadian Armed Forces, will visit Victoria Wednesday.

The general will be in the area for three days during which he will tour facilities and speak informally to large groups of servicemen.

After being met at the airport by Pacific Maritime Commander, Rear-Admiral John A. Charles, the general will attend briefings related to operations, personnel and training at HMCS Dockyard.

On Thursday he will visit the Queen's Own Rifles at Work Point barracks, followed by lunch aboard the destroyer-escort HMCS Mackenzie. He will then visit the underwater weapons range at Nanoose Bay.

On Friday he will be inspecting officer at graduation ceremonies at Royal Roads.

IWA Man Defies Ouster Threat

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Labor Reporter

The president of the Victoria local of the International Woodworkers of America struck back at the B.C. Federation of Labour today.

Murray Drew was making his first public comment since the federation's executive voted 10-to-2 Wednesday to suspend four IWA locals on June 9 unless public apologies are made for public criticism by their presidents of a Canadian Labour Congress vice-president.

NOT NOTIFIED

"We have never been officially notified by the B.C. Federation of Labour of their intention to expel this union local and others from the federation," said Mr. Drew.

"It appears some people can go to the press when it pleases them but others cannot, depending on whose bull is being gored.

"The B.C. Federation of Labour officers have notified the four local unions through press, radio and TV of their intentions — something they say should not be done."

(The federation said earlier it revealed the ultimatum after Doug Evans of the Vancouver IWA made a public statement.)

STRONG CRITICISM

The federation said the presidents of the Victoria, Duncan, Vancouver and lumber inspector locals violated convention policy by taking internal matters to the public via the press.

The presidents had stongly criticized CLC vice-president Joe Morris in a public statement last month for his role in the Gold River certification battle.

All four presidents have said they will not apologize. Their union locals represent 10 per cent of the federations's membership.

Mr. Drew said he will never agree to keep anything from his union's membership, that the members are entitled to know what is going on in their union.

"I don't believe in hiding matters concerning the membership from them as is happening in some unions," he said.

OBJECTS TO INTER-

The philosophy of federation leaders seemed to be "it's all right to talk behind a closed door but don't let their membership hear. I don't operate that way, nor does our union."

He objected to the interference of federation president E. T. Staley in IWA affairs "the same way I'm sure the carpenters union (of which Mr. Staley is an official) would object if the IWA interfered in their internal affairs."

He recalled that the Victoria local, at a membership meeting, had endorsed his actions.

He said some officers of the federation don't want the four IWA locals at the October convention because "they, the officers of the federation, bungled the handling of the Pat O'Neal bugging affair."

Friday, Mr. Staley said the federation is not interfering with IWA affairs but trying to achieve responsibility in public statements.

CALLED SLANDEROUS

He called last month's criticism of Mr. Morris "slanderous" and that the four IWA locals members should "have a good look at what is going on."

Mr. Drew said he agreed with the "good look" comment and added that the supsension ultimatum was taken to deny a place at the October convention and "for no other reason."

The federations' action was opposed by Wyman Trineer of New Westminster IWA and Mr. Evans of Vancouver IWA. The latter said he will resign from the federation executive.

It was learned that regional IWA president Jack Moore, who is first vice-president of the federation, did not attend Wednesday's meeting.

Student Omitted

A Victoria student was inadvertently omitted from the Vancouver and Gulf Islands list of University of British Columbia graduates published in Friday's Times.

David W. Morrow, 2592 Bowker, received an honors bachelor of science degree in geology.

OVERHEARD TALK FOILS ROBBERY

City police have charged an 18-year-old soldier with assault with intent to rob, after a taxi driver reported he was threatened and forced to hand over $7 early today.

Bernard Giovannini, a member of the First Battalion, Canadian Guards, had his case remanded to Monday for plea when he appeared in central court this morning. His bail was set at $2,500.

His arrest followed an incident at Douglas and Superior shortly after 3 a.m.

Cabbie Gordon Galloway, 50, of 2981 Craigowan, told officers one of two men he had picked up as fares threatened him and made him hand over some money.

The taxi's radio microphone was on during the exchange and fellow drivers converged on the scene to assist in capturing a man.

Knights Donate $500 for Indians' Trip

The fund to send the Kuper Island Indian Band to Expo got a boost this morning when the Knights of Columbus, in convention here, donated $500.

State deputy Alan F. Ritz presented the cheque to Mayor Hugh Stephen at the official opening of the B.C. convention at the Empress Hotel.

NICKELS ADD UP

Also this morning Wolf Cubs of the 1st Douglas B pack gave $5.45 in nickels and dimes.

The donations bring the total up to $2,727.29.

The Indians themselves have collected $500, the Rotary Club of Nanaimo $500 and the Daily Colonist $200.

The fund was set up 10 days ago after students at S. J. Willis School decided to help the drum and fife band. A trip to Expo had ben planned but was called off when it was found there was to be no official backing.

The students council immediately put up $50. The Times added $200 and set up collecting centres at the newspaper office and the Bank of Nova Scotia at Yates and Douglas.

Mayor Stephen gave $100. Donations received at the bank total $225.98. The S. J. Willis collections amount to $446.86 including $150 from the Kiwanis Club of Saanich and $51 from St. Joseph's Parish.

It is estimated that $10,000 will be required to take the band to Montreal and there's little time left. The band is scheduled to leave June 28.

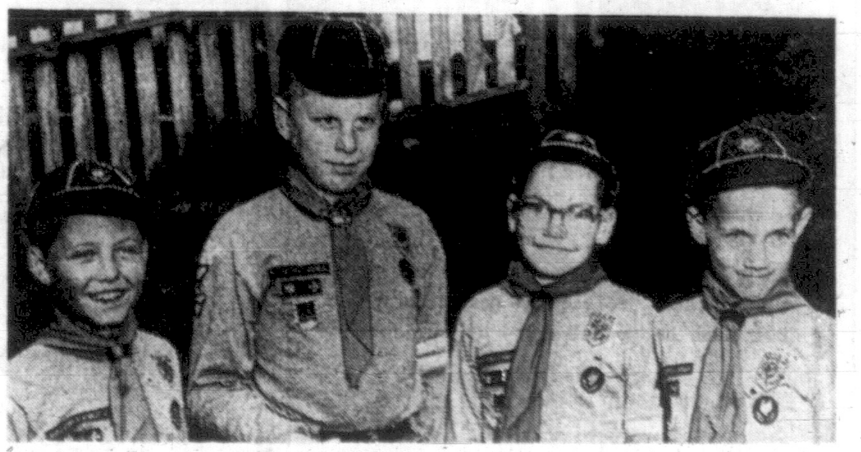
More donations are being sought from individuals and business firms but the students themselves aren't waiting. They are going to work.

CONCERT HERE PLANNED

The band is scheduled to play concerts at Chemainus and Cowichan Lake and arrangements are being made to hold a concert in Victoria.

S. J. Willis students have a busy time ahead.

They are planning bottle drives, sales, a car wash, dog wash, a slave day, a tag day and a shoe-shining project to raise funds for the band and to draw public attention to the need for support.



NICKELS AND DIMES all help say Wolf Cubs of the 1st Douglas B Pack who collected $5.45 to help send Indian Band from Kuper Island to Expo. Bob Young, 10; James Lott, 11; Brent Keene, 10, and Jim Wright, 10, are four of the 18 boys of the pack who raised the money.

'PLEASE SEND BACK MUSIC' —COMPOSER

A briefcase containing several pieces of original music was taken from the Empress Hotel Friday night while the composer played for a convention.

The briefcase belongs to pianist Peter Williams and contained a number of compositions he had written specially to use in the Jerry Gosley Smile Show and the Butchart Gardens show this summer.

"I don't mind too much about the briefcase," he said, "but the music represents a lot of work and I'd like it back."

He hopes whoever took the case will return the music and his prescription sun glasses by mailing them to him at Victoria Studio of Theatrical Arts at 1318 Broad Street or 4162 Kensington.

Bank Approves Share Split

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto-Dominion Bank Thursday became the second Canadian bank to have its shareholders approve a five-for-one split in its shares, the first in its history.

A. T. Lambert, president and chairman, told a special general meeting of shareholders the split would take effect June 1.

It will change the capitalization of the bank to 25,000,000 shares of a par value of $2 each from the present 5,000,000 shares worth $10 at par.

At present 3,000,000 shares are outstanding, held by about 15,000 shareholders. The shares traded at $69 on the Toronto Stock Exchange Thursday, down $1 from Wednesday.

FOR CONSUMER AFFAIRS

No Separate Department

The prime minister is not considering a separate ministry for consumer affairs, Victoria Chamber of Commerce learned Friday.

Having urged establishment of a consumer affairs department in the federal government, the chamber received a copy of a letter from Prime Minister Pearson to Canadian Chambers of Commerce president Roger De Serres.

It said:

"We expect that the registrar-general's department will be primarily responsible for developing and coordinating consumer policy for the government.

"There are no present plans to establish a new department solely for consumer matters.

"I can understand your concern about rising government expenditures and I agree that we should avoid if at all possible incurring the expenses involved in establishing a new government department," the letter read.

Chamber directors took no action.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Trading Light, Leadership Lack

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A lack of leadership, extremely light trading and disturbing world news added up to another dismal week for investors on Canada's major stock exchanges.

The markets have been in a slump for four consecutive weeks and the prospects for an immediate break appear dim.

The New York Stock Exchange, the traditional North American pace-setter, was rocked this week as tension increased in the Middle East.

The effect was felt on Canadian exchanges and Wednesday the Toronto exchange suffered its sharpest daily decline of 1967 when the industrial index slid 2.03 points.

RECOVER SOME LOSS

The markets recovered part of the loss Thursday but analysts attributed this to technical factors resulting from an oversold condition.

Also influencing investors is the fact that earnings appear to be advancing more slowly than in 1966.

At Toronto, the industrial index declined 2.09 to 164 and volume for the four-day week was only 9,113,000 shares compared with 13,116,000 shares last week. At Montreal, the index dropped 1.42 to 162.42 and volume fell to 3,634,000 shares compared with 4,481,000 last week.

Analysts said unless there is a sharp increase in trading figures there is little chance of any substained rally.

The Toronto exchange has been plagued by a sharp decline in trading and as of May 16 total industrial volume had tumbled to 45,689,000 shares compared with 94,438,000 for the same period last year.

BANKS SLIDE

Banks took it on the chin and at Toronto, Imperial-Commerce slid 4¼ to 63¼, Royal 3¾ to 79¾, Montreal 2⅞ to 65, Toronto-Dominion 2¼ to 68¾ and Nova Scotia ⅞ to 14¾.

Brokers could give no reason for the sharp drop in bank issues. However, since the beginning of the year the price of bank stocks has risen sharply.

Other losses went to Chrysler off 2½ to 44¼, Harding Carpets ½ to 15, ITL Industries 1½ to 34½, Consolidated Paper 1¼ to 39¾ and Stelco ⅞ to 22⅞.

On the plus side of the ledger, B.C. Sugar rose 2 to 34, CPR 1½ to 69¾ and Canadian Breweries and Magna Electronics ⅛ each to 7¾ and 20¾.

Consolidated Marbenor highlighted speculative activity, jumping 2.55 to 4.80. The company holds a 21-per-cent interest in Bowden Lake Mines in Manitoba, which announced it has encountered nickel mineralization.

BASE METALS GAIN

Among base metals, Inco gained 1¾ to 93¼ and Denison 1½ to 69¾. Noranda declined 1¾ to 51¾.

Silver issues, which ran up sharp gains last week following a U.S. government announcement that it is restricting sales of the metal, were trimmed in profit-taking.

Siscoe dropped 65 cents to 5.20 and Silverfields 20 cents to 3.75. United Keno moved up 35 cents to 5.70.

Among western oils, Dome advanced 2 to 55 while Canadian Superior retreated 1¾ to 35⅛ and Pacific Pete ⅝ to 13⅞.

On index, golds were down .90 to 167.01, base metals .01 to 95.97 and western oils 1.84 to 155.02.

At Montreal, utilities were up .13 to 146.86 while banks slid 6.02 to 129.53 and papers 3.02 to 113.97.

Man Gets 6 Months For Fraud

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 41-year-old man who pleaded guilty to fraud involving $258,000 was sentenced Friday to six months in jail and fined $15,000.

Walter Harvey Link of Vancouver pleaded guilty to defrauding several people between January 1962 and September 1963 by publishing literature containing false statements about mineral claims.

Link also admitted using the mails to send letters and circulars about a scheme intended to unlawfully defraud the public.

He received a second six-month concurrent sentence on the second charge.

Link committed the offences while he was manager of the now-defunct International Claim Brokers Co. Ltd.

Link testified he mailed everything "for the whole world to see on the advice of the finest mining lawyer in town."

"A copy of everything I did was sent to the Securities Commission so that if anything was improper they should have advised us."

Interest Higher

OTTAWA (CP) — New 91-day Government of Canada treasury bills auctioned Thursday: $110,000,000 at an average price and yield of 98.965 and 4.20 per cent. Last week, $105,000,000, same term, 98.974 and 4.16 per cent.

182-day: $30,000,000 at 97.881 and 4.34 per cent. Last week, same amount and term, 97.927 and 4.25 per cent.

City Must Build Centre: Savage

The importance of a convention centre to Victoria was laid on the line Friday by the city's centre study chairman Clyde Savage.

"I don't think we'll have any alternative but to build it," he told Chamber of Commerce directors.

He said his committee's report will be made public Wednesday when it is presented to city council.

He was confident it would be accepted.

Mr. Savage also was sure the entire concept of tourism and convention business in Victoria will change, that there will be intensive promotion to make them pay.

"We will have to spend a lot more money than is spent now," he told directors.

SECONDARY INDUSTRY

Mr. Savage, an ex-alderman and the chamber's industrial development commissioner, said:

"This city isn't going anywhere unless it has secondary industry as well as the tourist industry."

It is the commission's intention to draft a new submission to Saanich council, which recently opted out of the industrial commission to which the other Greater Victoria municipalities belong.

He said Saanich will be invited to reconsider its action, and a detailed picture of full area participation in the development of industry will be given.

Mr. Savage said the proposed 4 per cent tax on tourist accommodation is questionable at this point, even though the chamber tourist industry group is making a detailed investigation of revenues and expenses involved in the hotel business.

The tax, it was thought, would produce money to build a convention centre and provide for outside promotion.

But Mr. Savage said no one knew how much the tax would raise if it were accepted as a revenue-producing source.

Tourist group chairman Sam Lane said the tax is still under active discussion, although the "hotels and motels very flatly turned down the proposed 4 per cent tax as such."

By the end of the year he expected to provide positive figures showing the revenue raised from Victoria's 2,944 commercial bedrooms, the expenses in keeping them, the amount spent by private business on outside promotion, the taxes paid.

He said there is an area of agreement that some form of taxation might be used to increase promotion funds, but to apply it to rooms would make the hotelmen uncompetitive in this area, it is felt.

★ ★ ★

Directors agreed to spend about $200 to buy 50 copies of the pictorial book Vancouver Island for presentation to special guests of the chamber.

Still in a spending mood, they approved purchase of a Junior Achievement trophy for $42.50 and of 10,000 "welcome to Victoria" lapel badges for $500.

Comparisons Odious, Particularly This One

By JIM HUME

There are times when we wonder about the Hon. Dan Campbell, minister of municipal affairs.

Last Tuesday Mr. Campbell addressed the annual convention of the B.C. Association of Municipal officers, a rugged group of down-to-earth administrators.

Hume

During his speech Mr. Campbell said many municipalities in the province are creaking at the seams and couldn't be trusted to spend large amounts of money wisely.

He put it just about as bluntly as that, too.

The implication was that at the municipal level, administrators, elected or hired, were of the village pump mentality and couldn't really be trusted with serious expenditures, just a little too thick between the ears to be given much authority.

While there may be some merit to that charge, it doesn't bear examination at close range.

Take a look at just a few of the municipal leaders in our own backyard and — as bluntly as Mr. Campbell — compare them with the MLAs or cabinet ministers we know, who choose to serve at the municipal level.

In Victoria we have Mayor Hugh Stephen, a man who quite successfully operated a million-dollar business for many years. He was operating that business with all its complexities while Mr. Campbell was teaching school.

Nothing wrong with school teachers (well, not much, anyway) but I don't think there is too much doubt as to who would be the more experienced administrator.

In Oak Bay and Esquimalt we have Reeves Allan Cox and Ray Bryant, barristers by profession. Their years in law school and private practice give them quite an edge when it comes to facing administrative problems.

In Saanich there's Reeve Hugh Curtis who operates successfully in the world of radio and is no slouch when leadership and balanced thinking are required.

Out in the rural areas there are Reeves Gordon Lee, Central Saanich, and Jim Cumming, North Saanich. Knowing both men well I'd back them so far as intelligence, integrity and wise administration go, against 80 per cent of the provincial cabinet.

A little further afield we have Reeve Allan Emmott of Burnaby, Mayor Joseph Palyga of Trail, Mayor Maurice P. Finnerty of Penticton. The list could go on and on and the comparison between these men and senior government administrators could only grow more odious.

There may well be, in some of the remoter areas of the province, municipal councils which lack responsible leadership. But they don't come readily to my mind, neither would they come readily to Mr. Campbell's mind.

At the municipal level, uncluttered as it is by rigid party lines, we have a much better level of administrative government than the provincial government can ever hope to have.

On other occasions, in this column I have stated that I have a great deal of respect for Mr. Campbell. There is no reason to change that opinion now.

But there are times when Mr. Wonderful goes a little too far with his generalizations. Tuesday morning was one of them.

It is to date the weakest excuse, and goodness knows there have been some dandies, for the government's steadfast refusal to loosen its purse strings to help British Columbia municipalities.

In this corner we do not believe that provincial government members stand shoulder to shoulder with the angels. Neither do we believe that because a man has been elected to the legislative assembly he suddenly becomes wiser than the men who choose to serve at the municipal level.

. . . THANT

in this regard and my hope that no precipitate action would be taken."

Thant said there was no interference with shipping in the strait in the 10 years the UN Emergency Force was stationed nearby. But he now is pulling the force out by U.A.R. demand.

Thant declined to enter into the merits of the legal dispute in which Israel says the Strait is international waters and Egypt says it is territorial waters.

WANTS TIME

"At this critical juncture," he said, "I feel that my major concern must be to try to gain time in order to lay the basis for a detente relaxation of tension.

"The important fact is that in view of the conflicting stands taken by the United Arab Republic and Israel, the situation in the Strait of Tiran represents a very serious potential threat to peace.

"I greatly fear that a clash between the United Arab Republic and Israel over this issue, in the present circumstances, will inevitably set off a general conflict in the Near East."

Thant said other problems "endangering peace in the Near East" were "sabotage and terrorist activities and rights of cultivation in disputed areas in the demilitarized zone between Israel and Syria." He added that these "will, unless controlled, most surely lead to further serious fighting."

"In my view, a peaceful outcome of three present crisis will depend upon a breathing spell which will allow tension to subside from its present explosive level," Thant said.

"I therefore urge all the parties concerned to exercise special restraint, to forgo belligerance and to avoid all other actions which could increase tension, to allow the council to deal with the underlying causes of the present crisis and to seek solutions."

He did not refer specifically to the situation on the Egypt-Israeli line, which his report to the council a week ago called the most menacing since the invasion year 1956.

But he said both Nasser and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad "assured me that the United Arab Republic would not initiate offensive action against Israel."

"Their general aim, as stated to me, was for a return to the conditions prevailing prior to 1956 and to full observance by both parties of the general armistice agreement between Egypt and Israel," he said.

WANTS ISRAEL TO JOIN

Thant recalled that in his previous report he suggested that Israel resume participation in the Egypt-Israel Mixed Armistice Commission, set up under the 1949 armistice agreement to investigate complaints of violation of the agreement.

"I suggest that the council consider this possible approach during its search for ways out of the present crisis," he said. "This form of United Nations presence could to some extent fill the vacuum left by the withdrawal of UNEF."

. . . 'DESTROY ISRAEL'

Arabs will set out to destroy the Jewish state.

Israel was reported avoiding an immediate challenge to the announced blockade of its direct route for Iranian oil and other cargoes from the east. But it has said it will fight to keep the gulf open.

In Washington, President Johnson met Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban Friday night.

Foreign Minister Eban said in Paris today he received support from the United States government for free access by all shipping to the Straits of Tiran.

He told reporters during a brief stopover here on his return to Tel Aviv from Washington that "in Washington I noted the praticularly firm and vigorous feelings of those responsible for American policy in favor of free access to the Straits of Tiran by ships of all nationalities without distinction of flag or cargo."

The Soviet Union has called on the United States and other Western countries to restrain Israel from a thrust against the Arabs.

A test of Egyptian control measures over the Strait of Tiran, at the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba, was possible today—but not by an Israeli ship.

FREIGHTER ENROUTE

ADanish freighter, the Estelle Maersk, was due at the Jordanian port of Aqaba, two miles from Israel's gulf port of Elath, and it was the first ship since the blockade was announced to head for Aqaba without first going through the Suez Canal.

The canal bars shipping to Israel and four other ships that have come to Aqaba in the last three days already had been checked by Egypt when they entered Suez.

The skipper of one of these four, the West German freighter Stolzenfels, said Friday night he saw no physical sign of a blockade in the Strait of Tiran.

Al Ahram had reported that Egyptian authorities in the strait had stopped and searched the Stolzenfels. It also said Egypt had mined the strait.

The American freighter Green Island also was expected at Aqaba, but the Egyptian Middle East news agency said that on orders from the U.S. consul at Port Said, the Green Island changed course for an Ethiopian port. The U.S. embassy denied any knowledge of the reported change.

Nasser's speech came after Al Ahram, which often reflects Nasser's political thinking, said Egypt had achieved its objectives against Israel and that war would come only if Israel started it.

"The United States is our enemy," Nasser declared. "Britain is our enemy. Both are taking sides with Israel. So long as they support Israel, they are our enemies. When we are trying to exercise our legal rights, they threaten us with war and say peace is endangered."

He hoped all Arab countries around Israel would form a solid front, but conceded there were difficulties with Jordan, Israel's eastern neighbor.

Al Ahram reported that Israel had 72,000 troops facing the Egyptian army across the Sinai Desert and 16,000 on the border with Syria.

No Break Showing In Nurse Crisis

Talks continued this morning between leaders of the psychiatric nurses and the B.C. Civil Service Commission.

But no break appeared in the deadlock with about 800 nurses due to resign next Friday at government mental hospitals.

Asked whether they are optimistic or pessimistic, the nurses' leaders replied "we're neutral".

They met for 2½ hours Friday with the acting minister of health, Dan Campbell, and then met for three hours in the evening with the Civil Service Commission.

Late Friday, Dwight Wenham, executive secretary of the Psychiatric Nurses Association of B.C., said "there was no definite agreement on any point but there seems to be recognition on both sides there is a genuine problem and a genuine concern to resolve it."

Mr. Campbell said he told the nurses delegation it has a choice between "a professional solution to their problem and those tactics which are not narmally associated with professional groups."

The nurses want binding arbitration of differences on wages and working conditions but say the commission has refused to discuss some points not covered in the Civil Service Act.

In public advertisements, the nurses association said the request for binding arbitration was refused, but such arbitration was available to federal civil servants, municipal employees, general hospital workers, teachers, policemen and fire-fighters.

They say that dog catchers, laborers and untrained orderlies make more money than they do.

Meanwhile, Mr. Campbell—who announced one week ago emergency plans are being prepared in the event of a mass resignation—said all patients who can be released to their homes will be.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

An intense Pacific storm north of the weather ship is drifting slowly towards the Gulf of Alaska, where it will weaken. Intermittent rain associated with a disturbance which has moved out of the storm centre will reach the lower mainland early this afternoon. The disturbance will weaken on crossing the coastal mountains with little or no rain anticipated for the interior. Behind it showers will persist along the coast but some clearing should occur in the interior. Lower temperatures are also expected for most areas behind the disturbance.

Who Is Fleetest in Fleet? Only Breezes Know

Now is the hour and the largest fleet of yachts ever to compete in Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca contests have spread their wings. The first swarm of racing craft began their journey in light winds and haze, at 9:30 a.m. This Vancouver Island Helicopter view shows vessels hovering like gulls about HMCS Beacon Hill, their official guardian. This week-end culminates a year of tension for the 120 skippers. Time limit is 50 hours. Then the tension builds again for next year's Swiftsure over the same 136-mile course. Swiftsure Trophy is top prize. (Times photo by Strickland.)

RACE STARTS SLOWLY

Victoria boats were leading the way in the Juan de Fuca this afternoon but Seattle dominated the field in the main race.

In the lead as the Swiftsure yachts approached Sooke was the 59-foot Adios, skippered by C. Jensen Jr. of Seattle Yacht Club followed by Klahanie of Corinthian Y.C. of Seattle and the Mary Bower.

In the Juan de Fuca, Peter Coombs—last year's winner—was in the lead in Doxy II followed by R. Hume, also of Royal Victoria Yacht Club, in Khu.

In third place was the 30-foot sloop, Surfer, skippered by A. Repard of Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

By TERRY IZZARD

It could go down in history as "THE RACE THAT NEVER WAS."

The 26th annual Swiftsure classic will go down in history anyway because it got off to such a slow start.

For the first time since 1930, boats sailed over the starting line with spinnakers set to catch every ounce of wind. They barely billowed.

And 136 miles stretched ahead.

Last year several yachts were damaged by heavy winds. The 1967 start lacked this peril.

Winds were east to southeast at a mere four to five miles an hour.

To make matters worse, one of the heaviest flood tides this year greeted the record number of boats shortly after noon.

Unless the wind strengthens, the boats will have to sit out the worst of the tide for up to eight hours at William Head or Pedder Bay.

•

If the worst comes to the worst—and it's never happened to date—the winner may never make it in the 50-hour time limit.

In this case the first boat to the turning point 68 miles out would be declared the winner.

In the case of the shorter Juan de Fuca race, it would be the first boat to Clallam Bay, in Washington, 38 miles away.

When the starter's gun boomed from the decks of the Beacon Hill, off Brotchie Ledge at 9:30, the 49-foot sloop Mary Bower—first over the finish line last year—nipped into the lead.

Hot or her heels was the 47-foot sloop Hussy skippered by R. Page of Seattle, with the 26-foot sloop Moea of West Vancouver in third place.

At press time the Mary Bower, skippered by John Long of Vancouver, was still in first place.

LIQUOR PRICES TAKE JUMP —SO DOES McGUGAN SALARY

McGUGAN
. . . second in year

The provincial cabinet Friday approved a completely new liquor price list which will add about a dime on the average to a bottle of spirits or wine.

The new list goes into effect June 1 and will replace thousands of printed copies of a consolidation issued to LCB stores in April.

The cabinet also raised LCB chairman Col. Donald McGugan's salary to $19,500 by giving him his second $1,000 increase within a year.

The price increases are scattershot rather than uniform, with no apparent reasons for increases of from five to 55 cents, decreases in a very few lines of up to 10 cents and no change in a minority of the 1,500 items on the list.

On the whole, rye whisky has gone up about 15 cents a bottle but there are wide variations among individual brands. Rums went up a nickel a bottle in the majority of cases as did gins.

Many imported Scotch lines escaped increases—they were boosted heavily during the past year—but a few were raised 10 cents

Canadian wines showed numerous increases although a Port Moody winery's products were almost untouched while those of an Okanagan winery were raised in most lines, ranging from five cents for the pints to 25 cents for the gallon sizes.

Some imported wines were raised from five to 40 cents but many were unchanged. Imported beer and ale was untouched and there were no changes in Canadian brews.

Aldous Issues Denial Ferry Buy Bad Deal

B.C. Ferry Authority manager M. F. Aldous today denied a suggestion the crown corporation was "slickered" in purchasing a second-hand ship in Quebec.

Mr. Aldous denied reports that it is paying more than the ferry cost five years ago, when it was sold at a second-hand price.

And he denied it was sold by its last owners because it proved too costly to operate.

CONTRADICTION

"That isn't so," said Mr. Aldous in replying to a Canadian Press report quoting a spokesman for North-South Company, the last owners.

The company spokesman said the ship cost the company $1.2 million five years ago when acquired from a Lake Michigan service. Now it has been sold to the B.C. ferry authority for $1.69 million.

The company spokesman also stated in Montreal, according to the CP report, the ferry had been sold because operation of the vessel had proven too expensive.

He said the expense was involved in the annual replacement of rivets which was necessary after operation in salt water between Rimouski and Baie Comeau for five years.

"That also isn't factual," said Mr. Aldous. He said the ferry was sold because it was too large for winter traffic on the former service.

The Canadian Press report also stated that Maurice Tessier, Liberal member of the Quebec Legislature for Rimouski, charged the sale of the ferry was a scandal.

Mr. Tessier said the ship had been paid for with public funds and he criticized the Quebec government for letting North-South Company pocket the $1.69 million received from B.C.

Mr. Tessier, mayor of Rimouski, and a former secretary-treasurer of the North-South firm, said the law required the government to name an administrator to take charge of the ferry company when it entered Quebec public service.

Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson said his government could not have intervened because the law did not apply.

The North-South Company spokesman said the ferry purchase had been paid for out of federal subsidies of $300,000 paid annually. And since 1962 the provincial government had paid $200,000 toward the original cost.

Mr. Aldous said he could not comment at length but after reading the CP account, he discounted the whole story. He said none of the details listed were in accord with the information the B.C. negotiators had received.

The purchase of the ferry was revealed by the Times May 4 when it was unofficially learned a crew was being assembled here to travel east for the ferry.

CALLED BARGAIN

(Mr. Aldous today said the ferry is now en route to B.C. It has not yet reached Panama. But because of its short range radio, its actual position is not known to the ferry authority here.)

Last May 5, Premier Bennett said the ferry, presently named the Pere Nouvel, was worth $5 to $6 million.

"This was a tremendous bargain," he said. "This is a business government. Anytime we can get a value like this, we will take it. We are the trustees of the peoples' money and it is our responsibility to make the best possible deal."

The 150-car ship (most of the 25 B.C. ferries carry 110 cars) is expected to be used on the Sunshine Coast following renovations which will cost an estimated $500,000.

Victoria shipbuilder Harold Husband of Victoria Machinery Depot said May 13 that Pere Nouvel's operational life was already half over. He said the actual cost to B.C. thus is doubled.

He said cost of maintenance would be higher than for other B.C. ferries which have interchangeable parts.

The Pere Nouvel purchase followed rejection of bids last December for a new car ferry. The bids of almost $5 million were about 40 per cent higher than those for the previous vessel built here.

Pearson 'Idiot'

CAIRO (CP)—Egyptian government radio and press statements described Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson as "idiots" who have failed to learn the lesson of the 1956 Suez crisis.

The statements maintained that Israeli leaders are in collusion with Pearson and Johnson to plan aggression against Egypt.

"These idiots haven't learned the lesson from Suez," said a ministry of information statement.

Streak Ends

TORONTO (CP)—Eighteen-year-old apprentice jockey Richard Grubb failed today to extend his Canadian record of seven consecutive racing victories at Woodbine race track.

Grubb, who set his record by winning the last seven of eight races on May 16 and then was suspended for 10 days for careless riding, finished last with Hurry Man in the first race today.

He came back to win the second race aboard Chillicoot but the string had been broken, one short of the North American record.

Pope Plea

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul cabled his chief prelates in Cario and the Holy Land today to tell the Egyptian and Israeli governments of "the absolute need for preserving peace."

Thant Reports:
WAR FEARS GROW

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—UN Secretary-General U Thant reported to the Security Council today that he feared a clash between Israel and Egypt over Israeli shipping through the Strait of Tiran would "inevitably set off a general conflict" in the Middle East.

He gave that estimate in a six-page report to the 15-country council, of which Canada is a member.

The report followed his talk with President Nasser in Cairo early this week.

Thant called for "a breathing spell which will allow tension to subside from its present explosive level." He urged all parties to exercise restraint to let the Security Council deal with the underlying causes of the situation.

The secretary-general said that in his talk with Nasser Wednesday night, Nasser repeated the Egyptian position "substantially as set forth" in his Monday night speech, in which Nasser announced a blockade of Israeli shipping through the Strait of Tiran connecting with the Gulf of Aqaba and the Israeli port of Elath.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The United Arab Republic today requested an urgent meeting of the Security Council on the Middle East. It did not specify when the council should meet.

COULD MEAN WAR

Thant told the council Israel had declared that it would regard the closing of the straits to Israel ships as a casus belli, or cause for war.

"The decision of the government of the United Arab Republic to restrict shipping in the Strait of Tiran, of which I learned while en route to Cairo, has created a new situation . . ." he said.

"While in Cairo, I called to the attention of the United Arab Republic the dangerous consequences which could ensue from restricting innocent passage of ships in the Strait of Tiran.

"I expressed my deep concern

'We Will Destroy Israel'

CAIRO (CP) — Tension in the Middle East was at the crisis point again today after a declaration by President Gamal Abdel Nasser that Egypt will wage a war of annihilation against Israel if fighting breaks out.

Nasser said there would be a full-scale battle if Israel made any aggressive move against Syria or Egypt.

"Our aim will be to destroy Israel . . . If we entered into battle, we would be confident of victory," he said in a speech broadcast throughout the Middle East by Radio Cairo.

Israeli foreign ministry officials said in Jerusalem Friday night that the Gulf of Aqaba, barred by Egypt to vessels carrying strategic supplies to Israel, must be reopened and that the time for this is running out.

They said Israel is not delivering an ultimatum or setting a time limit, but time is crucial in the matter.

Nasser's close friend, editor Mohammed Hassen Haykal, wrote in his Cairo newspaper Al Ahram Friday that war with Israel is inevitable.

Heykal said Israel is bound to start fighting because it is vital to it that ships be able to pass through the gulf.

Nasser said he knows his blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba could lead to war with Israel and, if war does come, the

Seven Israelis Wounded

BEERSHEBA, Israel (UPI)—An official communique said tonight an Israeli halftrack truck was blown up by an Egyptian anti-vehicle mine on the southern Gaza Strip border.

Seven or eight Israeli soldiers were believed wounded in the incident which the military communique said occurred at 11:15 a.m.

According to the communique, the explosion occurred near Kere-Shalom, a settlement on the southern Gaza Strip border opposite Rafa.

It was the first incident in the Gaza Strip reported by Israel since evacuation more than a week ago by UN emergency forces touched off the crisis.

DIPLOMATS DOUBT NARROW STRAIT MINED

War of Nerves: Let Other Side Guess

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. experts say Egyptian mines in the narrow opening to the Gulf of Aqaba could be used selectively against Israeli ships while permitting routine passage of other vessels.

Officials who have studied the history and technique of naval blockades give that assessment amid a multitude of rumors here over whether Egypt has mined the Strait of Tiran, as claimed by a Cairo newspaper.

U.S. officials said they don't know whether the strait has been mined. Egyptian diplomats privately expressed their doubts, but some Israeli diplomats claimed to have intelligence reports confirming partial mining of the strait.

Egyptian diplomats decline to confirm or deny the reported mining.

This, it is acknowledged, is part of the war of nerves: Let the other side guess. The same tactic was used by both Egyptians and Israelis several years ago when the question came up as to whether the two were secretly making nuclear weapons.

Privately, Egyptian diplomats said they doubt mines were placed in the strait.

There is no need for them, they said, because it would be easy to control the narrow, 300-yard-wide navigable passage by deploying a few warships or with a few guns mounted on the plateau of Ras Nasrani, a hilly peninsula dominating the mouth of the strait.

Experts say there are two ways of using mines to achieve a selective blockade.

One is to lay mines according to a predetermined pattern with only the country that placed them knowing the zigzag route through the minefield. The same country then would provide pilots to guide any vessel that received permission to pass through.

Such a minefield could easily be deployed in the Red Sea at the mouth of the strait, but not in the narrow strait.

The other method would be to use mines that can be set off electrically from some observation point on the mainland.

Egypt is understood to have placed artillery on Ras Nasrani when its troops moved in after the departure of the United Nations force earlier this week.

They can be trained on the navigation lane about 1,000 yards from the shore.

Some o' them Swiftsure boats must be waitin' fer Chichester t' catch up.
